FOREWORD

At some time in life almost everyone, I think, wishes to know something about his early ancestors—at least who they were and where they lived... When first I became interested in my Taylor forebears, no one could enlighten me much; great-grandfather Taylor was killed in an accident when grandfather was a small child . . . I resolved if ever I had time, I would try to find the paternal ancestors of this great-grandfather. When opportunity came, although hardly in the manner anticipated, it was immediately seized. I shall never forget the thrill in being able to trace back five generations to that stalwart pioneer, Anthony Taylor,—the emigrant from England, who helped found the Town of Hampton in New Hampshire . . .

After tracking down scores of other pioneer predecessors, mere individual ancestor-hunting somewhat palled. The idea of a Taylor genealogy or family history took hold. In the History of Hampton by Joseph Dow was the nucleus of such an undertaking. In that now rare book were records of Taylors who lived in Hampton, with references to a few places to which members of the family removed. While only fourteen heads of Taylor families are indexed therein, they constitute the ancestors of all those mentioned in succeeding pages . . .

Throughout this compilation I was animated by the desire to present more than just a string of dates. To the pure genealogist the vital events of life are birth, marriage and death; all else is secondary. To the historian and biographer that which occurs in between is of prime importance. This book, to some extent, combines the necessary features of genealogy with those of history and biography; it attempts to place members of one of the oldest Taylor families in America in their proper historical setting and to indicate their participation, whatever it was, in the larger happenings of the times.

No one is more aware than I am of its shortcomings. Nevertheless, I do not hesitate to call it an unusually complete account, genealogically speaking, of an early colonial family. The ancestry and personal record of almost every Taylor son and daughter is traced to the Founder; these men and women are located throughout the United States, Canada, and elsewhere; their useful roles in upbuilding the country are suggested. The service in the French and Indian Wars and American Revolution of every Taylor son (all of age engaged) is recorded in detail, showing that every descendant now living is eligible for membership in some one or more of the historic-patriotic societies. Much new genealogy of allied families is included. More than usual attention has been given to maternal lines to obtain the parentage, including mother's maiden name, of wives and husbands of Taylor descendants. Few known facts in the early generations have been omitted, as it seemed better to include what might appear trivial to some rather than run the risk of leaving out information desired by someone else. Example —the account of Anthony Taylor. All that is known, or ever can be known of many founders of early colonial families is told in a few pages; Anthony Taylor can not, in justice, be disposed of so easily, for the references to him are unusually numerous.

The work is based primarily on original sources—town, county, state, federal, church, cemetery, family Bible. Practically all of the material has never been published before, or if so, mistakes have been corrected and new information added. In addition to unpublished records, over 1,200 printed volumes were consulted—including local histories and publications of a more general nature.

The compilation required my entire time for ten years—not such a long time to spend on a genealogy, but possible in this instance because the Family was comparatively small, and I did not labor intermittently. A more finished job would have resulted if more time had been devoted to it, but several important reasons, including the approach of the Tercentenary of the arrival of Anthony Taylor on these shores, seemed to compel publication at this time. The book was published under difficulties. Desired personal attention to editing, correcting proofs, and indexing was impossible. However, special care was exercised in preparing the manuscript; also, more than usual time and space were given to citing sources, so that, excepting a family record, the inquiring reader may verify almost any statement.

All known living descendants, as well as many now deceased, were contacted by extensive correspondence. Their family records are here preserved. In fact, it seems most fortunate that this compilation was undertaken when it was. In the early stages, many aged descendants were still living whose memories could bridge the difficult 6th and 7th generations and connect the present with the past. Delay of only a few years in beginning the work would have relegated valuable records into oblivion and made it literally impossible, I believe, to have completed several large branches of the Family at this or any other time.

To the hundreds of descendants who furnished records of their own lines, grateful thanks are due. Their response appears exceptional, judging from the experience of other compilers, in that nearly all—ultimately—were heard from. Without such co-operation, this labor of love could not have been.

To the following, mostly non-descendants, who generously contributed information and counsel, special acknowledgment must be made: Otis G. Hammond, Director, New Hampshire Historical Society, Concord, N. H., for abstracts of all unpublished Taylor wills and deeds containing genealogy; the late Samuel B. Shackford, Dover, N. H., for abstracts of Strafford County (N. H.) deeds; Mrs. Martha F. Duren, Swampscott, Mass., genealogist, for copies of records at Essex Institute, Salem, Mass., and in the Early Files of the Supreme Judicial Court, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Fannie Scott Chase, Wiscasset, Me., for information from her forthcoming history of that Town; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Folsom, Exeter, N. H.; Ellery Kirke Taylor, Philadelphia; Amos Leavitt Taylor, Boston and Belmont, Mass.; Lee M. Friedman, Boston; Mrs. Caesar Misch, Providence, R. I.; the late Edgar Yates and Col. Charles E. Banks, Boston; Merton Taylor Goodrich, Keene, N. H.; Edward M. Smith, North Hampton, N. H.; Frank Mortimer Hawes, Hartford, Conn.; Charles Thornton Libby, Yarmouth, Me.; G. Andrews Moriarty, Bristol, R. I.; Charles E. L. Wingate, Winchester, Mass.; J. Albert Holmes, Somerville, Mass.; Raymond P. Stickney, Cranston, R. I.; and many, many others.

I also wish to express appreciation of the wonderful facilities of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Boston; of the co-operation of custodians of records throughout New England, at Washington, D. C., and elsewhere; and of the assistance in locating "missing persons"—beyond line of duty—of postmasters in many States.

INTRODUCTORY

Authorities on the origin of surnames are agreed that TAYLOR as a family name is derived from the trade of tailor, and consequently belongs to that large classification known as Occupational Names—like Cooper, Fuller, Weaver. It is probably as ancient as surnames themselves; in England, therefore, it dates back to the period following the Norman Conquest, 1066.

Lower, a leading authority, states:

> While surnames occurred before the Conquest, to some extent, they did not become generally hereditary for some time afterwards. In fact it was not until after the Reformation (16th century) that surnames were employed with any regularity. The registers of the church had an important influence in bringing the use of surnames into common adoption . . . Some occupational names have been changed in orthography to hide their original meanness or "mollified ridiculously," as Camden has it, lest their bearers "should seem vilified by them." Examples, Carteer, Tailleure and Smeeth as substitutes for Carter, Taylor and Smith. (See English Surnames.)

Since there had to be a tailor in almost every place where people lived, many who pursued that occupation adopted or were called by that name. John the tailor was shortened to John Tailor or Taylor, and, at length, the last name became hereditary. Thus, in every part of England individuals, in no way related, came to bear the surname TAYLOR. Similarly, in Continental Europe: Tailleur in France; Schneider in Germany; Sarto in Italy.

From the most desultory study of the origin of surnames, it seems scarcely possible that anyone could entertain another view as to the derivation of TAYLOR. Yet a more romantic, if less scientific, account, with several variations, has frequently appeared in print. To wit: all Taylors have a single origin, being descended from the Norman Baron Taillefer, one of William the Conqueror's chieftains who was killed on the battlefield at Hastings; the name, through corruptions of time, about 1250, came to be Taylefar, from which, about a century later (during reign of Edward III), it became Taylour, Tailer or Taylor. Then are set forth traditions regarding a Taylor coat of arms, crest and motto. Referring to a part of this conception, Burke declared over seventy years ago: "A really respectable and ancient family of Taylor who apparently trace to Shadochurst, Co. Kent and the middle 14th century, absurdly attempt to deduce themselves, but with several hiatus valde deflendus, from Baron Taillefer who accompanied William the Conqueror in his invasion of Great Britain" (Lower's Patronymica Britannica, 340).*

Readers of this book are free of course to believe that all Taylors spring from a single progenitor and descend from the redoubtable Norman warrior, or that their particular Taylor Family is so descended; but one descendant of Anthony Taylor, the Hampton pioneer, prefers the occupational origin of the name, and is content to know with certainty that this immigrant ancestor was one of the historic founders of the Colony of New Hampshire; that progeny of this man, in their turn, became founders of other towns in several states and in Canada; that they were frontiersmen, farmers and artisans, who, when needed, served their country in every War, and in peace were useful members of the communities in which they lived.

There are several attractive TAYLOR Coats-of-Arms shown in Burke's Peerage and elsewhere, but it is extremely doubtful if Anthony Taylor, the Hampton pioneer, ever heard of them. Heraldry, in the United States, is not taken very seriously by most people and today Arms are chiefly regarded for their decorative value.

FREQUENCY OF TAYLOR SURNAME

The wide distribution of the occupation in England naturally led to the frequency of TAYLOR as a surname there. I found it in every county in any way searched; undoubtedly, it might be found in all of the 40 counties. By 1856, it ranked as fourth most common name in England and Wales, preceded only by Smith, Jones and Williams, and "owing to the great preponderance of Jones and Williams in Wales, where surnames are so few, Taylor challenges Smith* for numerosity in England" (XVI Report of the Register General of Great Britain). Even at the time of the American colonization, Taylors were so generally scattered throughout England as to sorely plague today's genealogist, who, if honest, can scarcely be persuaded to attempt a search for an emigrant of that name to New England without a definite clue with which to start.

During the early colonization, and afterwards, proportionately large numbers of Taylors came to New England. Before 1650, more than twenty-five young Taylors—all apparently unrelated—had arrived in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine and become potential founders of separate American Taylor Families. By 1692, more than fifty such Taylors had settled in those Colonies with Rhode Island and Connecticut added (Pope's Pioneers and Savage's Genealogical Dict. of New England, IV).‡ Of these, Anthony Taylor, of Hampton, was first of the name. The early colonial records likewise show that Taylors were numerous as pioneer settlers in the middle and southern Colonies as well as in the British isles of the Caribbean. It is not surprising, therefore, to read that TAYLOR is now included among the 500 most common family names in the United States (Surnames, White).† While accurate figures are not available, one writer estimates from telephone and city directories that there are today (1929) about 340,976 persons by the name of TAYLOR in the United States.

The earliest forms of the name in England appear in the Hundreds Rolls, or Rotuli Hundredorum, dated 1273, a survey of the Realm made by Edward I, for revenue purposes, upon return from his Crusade in Palestine. These were: Le Taylier, Le Tayller, Le Tayllour, Le Tayllur (note

*Smith outnumbered Taylor 2 to 1.

Miscellaneous notes on some of these Taylor Families have been gathered, more or less casually, during the course of this compilation.

‡Both these works appear to omit several founders of important Taylor Families. Example—William of Exeter (p. 79); James of Beverly.

†It is perhaps more extraordinary to learn that TAYLOR is not included among the ten more frequent New England surnames, said to be: Smith, Johnson, Brown, Williams, Jones, Miller, Davis, Anderson, Wilson and Moore (American Speech, Baker).

the Norman-French influence), Taylour, Taylur, etc. (Patronymica Britannica, Lower, xxx, 340). In the first Parish Registers of the Church, 1550-1620, the more common forms seem to be: Taylor, Tayler, Tailor, Tailer, Taylour, Taylller. In New Hampshire records prior to 1800, are found such spellings as Taylor, Taylore, Taylour, Tayler, Taler, Tailer, Tailor (see New Hampshire State Papers).

The English origin of Anthony Taylor of Hampton is not yet known—perhaps never can be. I would like to undertake further investigation later, but for the present the field is wide open for others.

Genealogical research in England takes a great deal of time, is expensive, and only occasionally proves successful. Although extremely fascinating, it is much like hunting for the needle in the haystack—especially if pursued with but one objective. In the few years I was able to devote to trying to find the early home of Anthony Taylor of Hampton, engaged in simultaneously with the following compilation, the surface could scarcely be scratched. The net result could be summed up in a single word—nothing. Yet this was probably the first specific, more or less extended investigation in Anthony Taylor's behalf, and therefore some account of it, negative though it is, may be of interest.

First, it is exceedingly strange, in the writer's opinion, that our immigrant ancestors left so little record of their parentage or previous residence in the "old country." It would have been easy, it now seems, for them to do so, thereby saving their descendants much blind groping in the dark. Generally speaking, it must be that these forefathers, when they decided to emigrate, completely severed the home ties and, perhaps because of economic and political conditions in England, preferred to forget the past.

About the only clue to Anthony Taylor's origin that can be gleaned from records on this side is the rather indefinite one of association. The fact that Anthony Taylor was a feltmaker and that trades at this time were even more hereditary than later was recognized as an aid in identification. The Passenger List, referred to on pages 30, 31, was considered less helpful as Anthony Taylor might have sailed from London and come from almost anywhere else.

Of the few Hampton settlers—associates of Anthony Taylor—whose English origin is known, the larger number are traced to the vicinity of Ormesby, in Co. Norfolk. Indeed, most of the Hampton settlers appear either to have been Norfolk men, or to have hailed from the other eastern counties which furnished the bulk of New England's colonists (consult Planters of the Commonwealth, 15, Banks). The idea that Anthony Taylor might have been an East Englander (East Anglian) is further supported by contemporary testimony supplied by Rev. Stephen Bachiler, first minister and leader in the founding of Hampton. He came from Wherwill in Hampshire, or South England. At Hampton, he soon became involved in a factional controversy with his assistant, Rev. Timothy Dalton, Cambridge graduate and, until ejected by the bishops, pastor in Woolverstone, near Ipswich, Co. Suffolk, or East England. In a letter, Feb. 22, 1644, he complained of "the major parte (of the Hampton inhabitants) cleaveing to him (Mr. Dalton), being his countrymen & acquaintances in old England" (Essex Institute Hist. Colls., July, 1917). However, it is not clear whether Anthony Taylor took sides with either Dalton or Bachiler.

ENGLISH RESEARCH

In any event, initial search was commenced in Norfolk. One hundred twenty-three Wills of Taylor testators in various parts of the County, filed in the Archdeanery and Consistory Courts (Ecclesiastical courts then the repository for wills) at Norwich, 1600-1675, were calendared and those at all promising were read. There were no Anthony Taylor Wills. Special attention was given to testators living in the vicinity of Ormesby. As John seemed a likely name for the father of our Anthony, all Wills of John Taylor—twenty in number—were carefully examined for reference to any Anthony. Not even the name was mentioned. Wills of Norfolk Taylors proved in the great Perogative Court of Canterbury (P.C.C.) at London, 1649-1656, part of the period when wills from various counties were there filed, were also examined; but no Anthony Taylor was found. All printed Registers of Norfolk Parishes were consulted without success. Twetshall was located as a village in which feltmaking was an industry and five Subsidy Lists (Special Tax Lists), during James I and Charles I, for Diss Hundred (which included Twetshall) were scanned. No Taylors appeared as feltmakers.

Previously revealed in Great Yarmouth was an influential Taylor Family in which Anthony recurred as a given name. Anthony Taylor was Mayor there, 1731; another one died there, 1751, ae. 63 (b. abt. 1688), with arms Sable a Copard passant or; this one's son, Anthony, was born in 1722; was also Mayor there, 1771 (Norfolk Families, Rye). To ascertain if these 18th century Anthonys were in any way connected with Anthony Taylor of Hampton, the P.C.C. Wills of all Great Yarmouth residents, 1635-1651, were listed, but only one Taylor testator was discovered—a Richard Taylor, mason, of Great Yarmouth, 1639. The Assembly Books of Yarmouth Corporation (local records) identified this man, but although paged for years 1604, 1622, 1631-1632, 1538-1631, 1635-1637, no record of any Anthony Taylor was discovered. A list of Great Yarmouth freemen, 1502-1663, failed to disclose any Anthony Taylor. Unpublished Parish Registers of Yarmouth—St. Nicholas, 1602-1612—and vicinity, if commenced early enough, were also combed without result. The earliest Anthony Taylor actually located there was a distiller, who, as a widower, married, 1671/2, and remarried, 1678, but further search disclosed no connection (Norwich Archdeanery, Marriage License Books, 1667-1676 and 1676-1681).* In 1679, another Anthony Taylor, grocer of Great Yarmouth, deposed he was aged about 54 and born in Bideford, Co. Devon.

(At this point, Miss Lilian J. Redstone, Woodbridge, Suffolk, wellknown English genealogist who conducted the Norfolk search for me, seemed to think that the possibilities there had been exhausted, although she could not say of course that our Anthony Taylor did not come from Norfolk until he was found in some other county.)

Because of the deposition above that Anthony Taylor of Great Yarmouth was born in Bideford, Devon, the statement that the great majority of the early settlers of New Hampshire came from counties Devon and Cornwall, and the indication that Thomas Canney of Dover (whose son married Anthony Taylor's daughter) and others might have come from Okehampton, Devon, it seemed reasonable next to turn to that County. (See N. H. Gen. Rec., 1:109 and 5:102.) The same procedure, though more limited, was followed in Devon as in Norfolk. Thirty-four Taylor Wills of testators in Bideford and vicinity, filed at the Archdeanery Court, Barnstaple, 1600-1645, were found and the likely ones abstracted. A few P.C.C. Wills were also examined and a pedigree of Taylor of Bideford and Wear Giffard was constructed. John Taylor of Bideford in Will, 1644, mentioned his son Anthony, but this man was probably born about 1624 and was the one who removed to Great Yarmouth. Considerable hope was aroused by the discovery of a John Taylor, feltmaker, of Great Torrington (6 m.s.w. of Bideford) Will proved 1601; this man could have been the grandfather of Anthony Taylor of Hampton, the possibility of which was enhanced by the presence in Great Torrington, 1624, of an Anthony Taylor as per subsidy list (Archdeanery Court, Barnstaple, folio 116; Devon Lay Subsidy, 1624, copy at Exeter Library made by the late Col. Charles E. Banks). This Anthony Taylor was apparently an older man than the one sought—and was so proved. But was he related? John Taylor, the feltmaker, had wife Elinor, who by the terms of his will was to account to their son John Taylor, perhaps the father of the Hampton settler. However, it was impossible to establish this latter possibility as fact; no Will of the son John Taylor could be found; the Parish Register did not begin until 1616, some five to nine years too late to contain the baptism of our ancestor; and the local records of Great Torrington could not help as they were burned years ago.

The limited investigation disclosed that feltmaking was a common industry in this section and that Anthony Taylor was a fairly popular name among the residents. It might be further observed that if Anthony Taylor of Hampton was a Devonshire man, he would more likely have sailed from Plymouth than from London, as believed.

During the Norfolk search, the Will of Anthony Taylor of Heckington, Co. Lincoln, 1655, turned up. Since Godfrey Dearborn of Hampton, another contemporary of our Anthony Taylor, is now known to have come from Lincolnshire (Register, 68:71), and since here at least was the name of the man wanted, a brief incursion into that County was made. All P.C.C. Wills of Taylor testators, 1652-1660, were casually examined. All Taylor Wills in the Lincoln Consistory Courts, 1590-1652, were listed and abstracts obtained of six. Anthony was frequently found as a Taylor name, not only in Heckington but in other Lincolnshire towns and villages. Of interest was the will of Anthony Taylor of Heckington, 1635, yeoman, which mentioned: his son Anthony Taylor; his cousin Anthony Taylor, the weaver; and "my other kinsman Anthony Taylor living with John Ireland and wife." These leads were followed up,—without result. The Heckington Parish Register was examined by the incumbent for baptisms of an Anthony Taylor, 1601-1610, but only christenings in 1601 and 1603 could be found. Lincoln Marriages, printed in 10 vols., and Heckington Lay Subsidies revealed nothing. A pedigree of Taylor of Heckington was constructed from the data obtained and shortly thereafter a somewhat similar pedigree was discovered published in Lincolnshire Pedigrees, 52:951, by the Harleian Society. Each contained several Anthony Taylors not included in the other as well as those common to both. With regret, Anthony Taylor of Lincolnshire had to be abandoned.

Among the manuscript copies of English records in the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass., is the Will of John Taylor of Stirton, Parish of Skipton-in-Craven, Co. York, 1633, proved 1636/7. This names his son Anthony Taylor as chief beneficiary. The printed Parish Register of Skipton, 1592-1680, was found to contain some 250 entries of Taylor baptisms, marriages and burials. There were several Anthonys, including the beneficiary above, but none apparently the right one.

Because of the supposition that Anthony Taylor sailed from London, an extremely cursory search was made in London and Middlesex records. It seemed scarcely to be expected that Anthony Taylor who hewed-out a home in the wilderness at Hampton could have originated in such a settled, busy metropolis as London. Nevertheless, all Wills of Taylors residing in the parish of St. Katherine (place of supposed embarkation) and the immediate vicinity were examined; also, the few printed Registers out of 107 London parishes; and other sources. In Whitechapel, a parish nearly contiguous to St. Katherine, was an Anthony Taylor who died in 1610, wife Bridget (London Commissary Court), but no children were found there or in neighboring Stepney. In another London parish, St. Andrews-in-the-Wardrobe, Anthony Taylor was a householder, 1638, paying a moderate rent of £2.* (The Inhabitants of London in 1638, p. 28, Gale).

ANTHONY TAYLOR IN ENGLISH RECORDS

In the course of the search in the counties above mentioned, several Anthony Taylors were uncovered elsewhere. None of them, upon investigation, seem to be the Founder of the Family in America, though possibly some of them were related to him. To give some idea of the distribution and frequency of Anthony Taylor in England just before and during the planting of New England, all men of that name, wherever found, are listed below:

CAMBRIDGESHIRE

Anthony Taylor of Willingham, 1659, m. Alice Preisly at Swavesey (PRP).†

CHESHIRE

Anthony Taylor of Disley, 1605, m. Eliz. Walkelett (PRP).

*A moderate rent was 3/4 the actual rental value. At that time the purchasing power of the £ was at least ten times what it is now; thus, a rent of £2 would represent about £20, or a actual rental value of nearly £27.

In a few instances the same individual is probably named twice. The limited character of this list should be emphasized; it merely pretends to be indicative.

Two specialists in English research told the compiler a few years ago that Anthony Taylor was not a common combination in England. Perhaps not, if compared with John Taylor or William Taylor; but a fair inference from the above enumeration would seem to indicate that it was not such an *un*common one, especially in certain localities. The search also made clear that a child might be baptised Anthony for euphonic reasons or because it was a neighbor's name, as well as because it was a family name. In any event, its frequency as a baptismal name in England was in decided contrast to its infrequency here. Anthony Taylor of Hampton was not only the first of the name in New England but the only one in the American Colonies for many years.*

*His great-grandson, Anthony[4] Taylor (19), born 1719, was the next one to bear the name in the Family or in New England. The second Anthony Taylor found on these shores was a man in Philadelphia, 1692 (Nat. Genealogical Soc. Quart., 14:49).

SINGULARITIES

Immediately below are some singularities to be noted in the Family founded by Anthony Taylor of Hampton, N. H., the genealogy of which comprises the rest of this volume:

Oldest of the many thousand unrelated Taylor families in America today (so far as known).

Name of Founder first in the Colonies—the only one for many years.

Name infrequent among descendants; not uncommon in England.

Canadian branch of six generations.

No intermarriages in early generations as in many other old New England families.

Descent of all living Taylors from either one of two grandsons of Founder.

Twelfth generation of descendants now here.

100% participation of all male Taylors of 5th generation in American Revolution.

Active military service of Taylor sons in every War.

Eligibility for membership, therefore, of all descendants in some one, if not all, of the historic-honorary-patriotic societies.

Early descendants all pioneers—founders or first settlers of many towns in United States and Canada.

First five generations all yeomen (farmers), frontiersmen, artisans.

One out of every three Taylors in first seven generations averaged more than 82 years of age.

Descendants resident in nearly all States of the United States and Provinces of Canada.

EXPLANATIONS—ABBREVIATIONS

All names of places in this book are situated within the present limits of the State of New Hampshire unless otherwise indicated (by usual abbreviations) or easily inferred from context.

VR, Vital Record—either birth, death or marriage—usually as reported by N. H. Vital Statistics, Dept. of Health, Concord, N. H., or by Division of Vital Records, Dept. of State, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Boston; sometimes as printed in published volumes; occasionally as furnished by town clerks and others. (A particular VR, now and then, may be specified as MR, marriage record, or DR, death record.)

FIRST GENERATION

1. ANTHONY[1] TAYLOR, born in Old England, 1607-1611; died at Hampton, New Hampshire, in New England, Nov. 4, 1687, aged 80 years (VR). Founder of one of the oldest Taylor Families in America; one of the historic Founders of the State of New Hampshire by reason of his participation in the planting of and life-long residence thereafter in Hampton, fourth oldest settlement; there as early as 1639; became a valuable and leading man in the community, for many years exceptionally active in town and county affairs; highly respected; was a feltmaker by trade; tavern-keeper; selectman, repeatedly; appraiser; fence-viewer; often, served on important town committees; constable, then the most essential local office; keeper of the county prison; juror on numerous occasions—trial, special inquest and grand juries; large landowner. TAYLOR RIVER, the Hampton above the saltmarsh, was named for him and has been so called from his day to this (see pp. 59, 60).

His wife was PHILLIPA, or Philis, who died at Hampton Sept. 20, 1683 (VR).

Children of Anthony and Phillipa Taylor, all born at Hampton, although none recorded (first "Regester" of births begins 1654):

2.* i. JOHN[2], b. 1640-4; m. (1) Deborah Godfrey.
3. ii. LYDIA, b. 1646; m. Lieut. John Moulton.
4. iii. SARAH, b. 1647; m. (1) Thomas Canney, Jr.; (2) Capt. John Wingate; (3) Richard Paine.
5. iv. MARTHA, m. 1667, Hezron Leavitt.
6. v. MARY, m. William Love; (2) Hon. Samuel Wyllys.

*Numerals, like this one, placed before a name, correspond with the same number in the next generation, where a more extended account of the person will be found.

Note: No records suppressed. In the narrative which follows, further detail about each of above references is given.

Three and a quarter centuries ago, about 1607-1611, Anthony[1] Taylor was born in England. James I was then King, following death of Queen Elizabeth; Shakespeare still lived; Capt. John Smith had planted in Virginia the first permanent English Colony in the New World; the Pilgrims were in Holland; the French, under Samuel de Champlain, at Quebec.

The year 1607, determined by age given in Anthony Taylor's death record, has been generally accepted as his date of birth, but there is some reason to believe he may have been born a few years later. His death record states he died Nov. 4, 1687, aged 80 years, which of course may mean he was in his 80th year, or perhaps be a good round number —an approximate figure. Further, Toppan, who collected the first records of Hampton settlers (and who, while in error in several particulars in his account of Anthony Taylor, may be correct in this instance), refers to a deposition dated

Oct., 1677, in which Anthony Taylor declares he was then 66 years of age.* This would indicate a birthdate around 1611. (Toppan Manuscript, see page 37, following.) Such a birthdate would be more comportable with known facts, for Anthony Taylor would have been about 28 years of age when, in 1639, he was called one of the "Yong Men" of Hampton (instead of 32), and between 29 and 33 years of age when his first child was born (instead of between 33 and 37). However, it must be noted that time-killing search has failed to locate the original of the deposition referred to, or the source of Toppan's statement.

Just how Anthony Taylor passed his youth and early manhood, or the precise reasons which induced him to make the change so momentous in consequence to his descendants we shall probably never know. After the usual lengthy apprenticeship, he must have qualified as a feltmaker (hatter); he was first so called in Deeds at Hampton. And having arrived at man's estate, he made the decision to "pass beyond the seas"—undoubtedly, to better his condition, to obtain a greater freedom in personal, political, and religious affairs than was possible in the old home.

THE CROSSING

In the latter part of April, 1635, the ship Ann & Elizabeth, John Brookhaven, Master, cast off at London, dropped down the River Thames, and set sail on its three-months' voyage over "the vast and furious ocean." The announced destination was Barbados and St. Christopher (St. Kitts), Islands in the British West Indies settled contemporaneously with New England. Among the passengers on board was Anth° Taylor, age 26. The shipping list begins:

"Theis under written names are to be transported to the Barbadoes and St. Christophers, imbarqued in the Ann & Elizabeth Jo: Brookhaven, Capten and M^r having taken the oaths of Allegeance and Supremacie. As also being conformable to the orders and discipline of the Church of England and no Subsedy Men, whereof they brought test from the Minister of St. Katherin's neere y^e Tower of London."* (Then follow, in order of application, the names and ages of 107 passengers—men and women, from 14 to 31; Anthony Taylor's name is the 24th. See Hotten's The Original Lists, 71; Drake's Founders of New England (1860), 104-5, reprinted from Register, 14:296; also see Banks' Planters of the Commonwealth, 1-43, for explanation of terms in shipping lists and interesting details of first trans-Atlantic travel.)

*It is well known that ages given in early depositions enjoyed considerable variation. Sometimes our forefathers may not have known their exact ages; sometimes the recording clerks or copyists made mistakes.

Feltmaking is considered one of the most ancient arts, preceding that of spinning, even that of weaving. Although it was sometimes a village industry in England at this period, more likely Anthony Taylor learned his trade in a town or city. It was often hereditary, that is, was handed down from father to son.

Although not positively proved, all the evidence there is points to the idea that Anthony Taylor of the passenger list and Anthony Taylor, the subsequent Hampton settler, were one and the same. This evidence is summarized as follows:

(1) It is a fact—though not widely known—that early emigrants for New England and Virginia were sometimes obliged to sail via the British West Indies; that some of the former settled in the Piscataqua region. (See Reg., 62:167; 67:360; Cutts Family and other scattered references.)

(2) Search in Barbados, St. Christopher and other English Islands fails to reveal Anthony Taylor of the passenger list (or companions) as an inhabitant there (List of Inhabitants of Barbados, 1638, in Reg., 39:133-144; Do. of St. Kitts, 1678, in Caribbeana, 2:68-77; Parish Registers, Wills, etc. in Caribbeana, 2, 4 and 5; special search for compiler by Edwin Fitzpatrick, verger at Bridgetown, Barbados and E. M. Shilstone, genealogist of same).

(3) The age of Anthony Taylor in the passenger list and that of Anthony Taylor of Hampton are approximately identical.

(4) Several fellow-voyagers of Anthony Taylor of the passenger list have names of New England settlers—example, Alice Hilton, of whom conjecture is that she was a daughter of William Hilton of Dover (upper

*St. Katherine's was a precinct of London (Reg., 47:506), near the place of embarkation. St. Katherine's docks are still near the ancient Tower on the Thames, at the southeast corner of the old walled City.

Piscataqua settlement), married George Walton and lived in Exeter and Great Island (Newcastle) (Scales' Hist. of Dover, 313; Do., Piscataqua Pioneers, 116; private correspondence with Charles T. Libby, Yarmouth, Me.).

(5) The family tradition that Anthony Taylor of Hampton came via the West Indies.

This tradition further relates that Anthony Taylor first came to Strawberry Bank (lower Piscataqua settlement, later Portsmouth) and there was, 1636. No documentary proof of any Strawberry Bank residence exists, as Portsmouth records prior to 1652 were deliberately destroyed (Reg., 58:294; Adams, Annals of Portsmouth). The family authority for this important account is traced to Anthony[5] Taylor (35) of Danbury, who received it from previous generations and transmitted it to his grandson, Moses[7] Leavitt Taylor (134) of Danbury. It should be regarded with more consideration than that usually accorded a family tradition, since the part of it referring to the Caribbean voyage is corroborated by the shipping list, existence of which was unknown by those responsible for the tradition.

The rest of the tradition—the Strawberry Bank residence—is supported circumstantially by these facts:

(1) It would have been easy for Anthony Taylor to have moved to Hampton from Strawberry Bank since it was the next settlement to the north and only distant about ten miles from the first Hampton homes.

(2) When Anthony Taylor did come to Hampton, he chose to live "on the border of the settlement, about two miles from the Meeting House," his home being on the direct way or road to Strawberry Bank and much nearer that place than the home of any other Hampton settler.

(3) Two daughters of Anthony Taylor preferred to take all five of their husbands from that section and lived in the neighborhood.

These facts, considered collectively, certainly suggest the possibility of Anthony Taylor's previous acquaintance and residence in Strawberry Bank and tend to substantiate the tradition in its entirety.*

First Recorded Appearance, 1639

Anthony Taylor's first appearance in the recorded history of New England is at Hampton, then under the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, in what later became New Hampshire. The time was the summer of 1639. The record tells us he was one of seven "Yong Men that had lots" there "the first summer Mr. B. came"; his name is the fifth (Recs. & Files, Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 7:280). Since Rev. Stephen Bachiler (to whom "Mr. B." refers) and followers, moving northwards from settled Massachusetts towns, made the beginnings of what was soon to be known as Hampton, in October, 1638, "the first summer Mr. B. came" would be the summer of 1639. This record is in the form of "A note of the families in Hampton,"—the First Comers—in the handwriting of Edward Colcord who came a year or two later; it is filed among Old Norfolk Co. Court Records for the year 1679. It is a plain, definite statement and may be considered more reliable as the date of "first appearance" than those previously given in genealogical dictionaries, whose dates vary all the way from 1638 to 1644.

The place to which "Mr. B. came," where Anthony Taylor decided to make his home and resided until death, was first called Winnacunnet, the Indian name. It referred to a river so designated (afterwards the Hampton in part,

*Some genealogists view with skepticism even the mention of family tradition, and they are somewhat justified; too often, tradition has proved misleading or wholly incorrect. Yet, in absence of documents, attention must be given to word-of-mouth accounts known to have been passed along from generation to generation, especially when such accounts do not fly in the face of historic facts and are partially substantiated by common sense or recorded evidence.

However, if Anthony Taylor came to Hampton from Strawberry Bank, it was an exceptional move. Hampton's pioneers generally came from the other direction—from Massachusetts towns, between which and the Piscataqua settlements there was little in common, especially in religious matters. The former were Non-Conformists, while the latter were mostly Conformists, or adherents to the Church of England.

N. H. Province Recs.*, 1:152, prints the names of twelve men in this grouping, but Anthony Taylor's name is still the fifth.

and Taylor's in part), flowing into the Atlantic a few miles north of the Merrimac and south of the Piscataqua, and a tract of land of indefinite extent in the vicinity of the river. When granted by the General Court of Massachusetts, under whose auspices the settlement was made, the whole territory was wilderness, uninhabited by white men. Virgin forests covered most of the land, except near the coast, the predominate woods being the pine and oak. The former was promptly reserved by the King for masts for the Royal Navy; from the latter the settlers were to develop a thriving industry in pipe-staves (barrel-staves). The forests afforded the Indian population a favorite hunting ground, while the river provided an abundance of shell and other fish as well as a convenient thoroughfare for the canoe. Indeed, the first settlers were attracted to the region "by the fishing, the fowling, the best of clams, and the salt marshes almost ready for the scythe." The name Winnacunnet, variously spelled, is also variously translated, as the Beautiful Place of Pines and Beautiful Long Place.

In the fall of 1639, the General Court decreed: "Winnacunnet shalbee called Hampton," the name of the place in England where Rev. Mr. Bachiler had his last church (Dow's Hist. of Hampton, 12). As granted, Winnacunnet, or more prosaic Hampton, embraced a large area of about 100 square miles, touching the coast between Salisbury, Massachusetts, and Portsmouth, the lower Piscataqua settlement, and extending inland some sixteen miles. The first band of pioneers approached their new home by water, proceeding up the coast in a shallop, entering present Hampton River and ascending same to a point which is near the spot still known as The Landing Place. The Founders Monument, a large boulder resembling a huge Indian arrowhead, unveiled Oct. 14, 1925, now stands nearby. The first Church was located about a quarter of a mile north from the Monument and was on the edge of a large tract of land long known as the Meeting House Green, part of which is still so called. About the Meeting House Green most of the first settlers built their log houses. This Green included part of the present business center of Hampton, through which, and wellknown Hampton Beach, run the shore routes north from Boston, about fifty miles distant, to the White Mountains and Maine.

Where He Lived—Licensed to Keep the Ordinary

Anthony Taylor early lived "on the border of the settlement, about two miles from the Meeting House" (Dow, 73), and it may be inferred that this homesite was the lot he possessed in 1639. Such would be the natural landgrant to one of the "Yong Men," the more centrally located lots being assigned to men with families or established social position. In any event, this site was where the old Towle House is now situated, on Lafayette Road near the North Hampton line—where the late Charles A. Towle resided.

In 1654, at the session of the County Court which began Oct. 3, "Anthony Taylor was allowed to keep the ordinary (inn) at Hampton and to sell wine and strong water" (Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 1:371). This action was a distinction in those days as only persons of reliable character were permitted to be proprietors of public houses. The records further show that the first ordinary was conducted by Robert Tuck, who, early in 1654, decided to visit England; whereupon, as stated, Anthony Taylor was chosen to open a similar establishment "although he lived on the border of the settlement" . . . Goodman Tuck remained abroad about a year, when he returned and re-opened his ordinary, "not doubting the existing ordinary would soon be closed." At the next court term, Tuck's license was renewed but he was fined £5 for re-opening before receiving official sanction. He continued in the business until death in 1664. Whether or not Anthony Taylor's engagement as innkeeper was a temporary public accommodation does not appear since the court records from 1654 to 1662 are missing. But as his house was on the direct way to Portsmouth, his location was advantageous to travelers to and from—if a bit inconvenient for local patrons—and he may have continued as innkeeper for a few years more. However, his children must have been born at this place or here passed their childhood, and it appears as the family residence for more than twenty-five years.*

Soon after May, 1666, because of increased demands on his time in the public interest, he moved to a more central location—to a lot previously owned near the Meeting House Green. In Deed bearing that date, Christopher Palmer to Isaac Cole, "the planting lot of Anthony Taylor" is mentioned (Essex Inst. Colls., 60:308); this lot adjoined the Meeting House Green. It is apparent he lived there the rest of life. This second place of residence was also on present Lafayette Road, but at or near the road leading to Hampton Beach and about a quarter of a mile south of the business center. After Anthony Taylor's death, 1687, his only son John continued to live there; and later, his grandson, Col. Joshua[3] Wingate. The house in which the grandson lived, built about 1700 (some say earlier), was used and known as The Garrison House during and after the Indian troubles. Col. Wingate's daughter Sarah married, 1727, Dr. Edmund Toppan, and under succeeding generations of Toppans, the House was added to and re-built, being known as the old Toppan House—long a historic place in Hampton until demolished in 1900. Its site, on or very close to the location of Anthony Taylor's last home, is diagonally across the street from the residence of Christopher S. Toppan (1935), descendant of the 9th generation.

LAND HOLDINGS: GRANTS, DEEDS, POSSESSIONS

1639, summer of: the lot above mentioned.

*Although this is Anthony Taylor's first definitely known place of residence, it seems quite likely that he previously lived near the river which to this day bears his name; he certainly owned land there prior to 1644, as related later; and the fact that, at such an early date, this stream bore the name TAYLOR, instead of that of some other abutting owner, certainly suggests residence.

Some early genealogists, like Quint and Savage, have said that Anthony Taylor removed to Dover, or was a taxpayer there, 1671. It is perfectly clear that Anthony did not remove to Dover, but always lived in Hampton after first locating there. And there is no evidence that he ever owned land in Dover, although he did have two daughters who married and resided in the vicinity. Here is an excellent example of an erroneous statement finding its way into print and being perpetuated for years.

1640, June 30: in the second grant, in which 57 persons participated, received "5 acres for house lot (2 1/2 a. nearer and 2 1/2 a. further off) and 3 acres of fresh m^{w}" [Toppan Ms. by Edmund W. Toppan who died 1845, now in possession of his grandson Christopher S. Toppan; typewritten duplicate at Tuck Memorial House, Hampton; copied in part by Isabel[10] Taylor Hobbs of Hampton and Caroline C. Shea of Exeter. The early grants were for House Lots, not farms, seldom comprising as many as ten acres, from 10 to 30 rods in width; these lay contiguous to each other so that when other grants were afterwards made to their owners, the land was in a different part of the Town; likewise, the grant itself might be divided so that part was "nearer" the Meeting House, the center of the settlement, and part "further off"; thus, we find Anthony Taylor living in one section of the Town, with other pieces of real estate received by grant or purchase in other locations, some at considerable distances apart (see Dow, 17)].

1645, Dec. 23: Two shares in the Cow Commons. (This was a large tract of ungranted land held in common but divided among the "p^{r}prietors of House Lotts" in 147 shares or rights, from one to three shares each. Anthony Taylor's name appears first in the list of the 57 proprietors.)

1651: One share in the Great Ox Commons. (Another ungranted tract, similarly divided, consisting of upland, salt marsh, and thatch ground, situated along banks and mouth of Hampton River, to be used for pasturing oxen "to the World's End.")

1669, Apr. 14: 40 acres in the New Plantation.

1670: 100 acres in New Plantation, Lot No. 24 (Toppan Ms.). [This tract was located in the northwestern part of the Town, near Exeter; in 1669, as an inducement to settlers who would build upon and fence the land, grants of 40 acres each were offered, as above; Anthony Taylor was one of 12 men who undertook to meet the terms; but to get the land settled greater inducements seem to have been necessary, for the next year, the grants were increased to 100 acres; Anthony Taylor's land was in what early became known as the Bride Hill neighborhood; part of this grant remained in the Taylor Family for eight generations, or 262 years, only passing into outside hands in 1931 (see No. 215)].

In the list of grants and possessions in Hampton Town Records, made soon after September, 1644, "in the beautiful handwriting of William Howard, town clerk," and now filed among the archives of the New Hampshire Historical Society, Concord, Anthony Taylor had:

"five acres of upland and swamp granted unto him at two severall times; and five acres of upland and swamp Bought of Thomas Kyng (Deed No. 2, below) granted unto him likewise at two severall times; Ten acres in all; layeing between the house lott of Walter Roper toward the south and common ground where the clay-pitts are, in p^{r}t: and the lott of Henery Green in p^{r}t: and a certayne swamp toword the west; more or less as it is layd out."

In this same list of possessions, under Thomas Levet (Leavitt), are two entries which indicate that Anthony Taylor had sometime previously sold three acres of meadow between his own property and TAYLOR'S RIVER, as well as five acres of salt marsh, both to said Thomas Levet (Sanborn's Thomas Levet, 17). But no Deeds of record appear.

In addition to the landgrants, Anthony Taylor was party to several real estate transactions, as shown by five Deeds filed among Old Norfolk County Records now at Salem, Mass.* Four of these name him as purchaser (the first appears as an exchange); only one as seller. In the first and last Deed, reference seems to be made to other land that Anthony Taylor had owned and sold,—1642, to John Legatt; and, prior to Mar. 30, 1659, land then owned by Rodger Shaw. But again, no Deeds of record appear (a fac-

*Old Norfolk County was established as part of Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1643, and continued as such until about 1680, when New Hampshire became a Royal Province. It comprised the original limits of Haverhill and Salisbury from the Bay Colony, and Hampton, Exeter, Portsmouth and Dover in what became New Hampshire. It extended from the Merrimac to the Piscataqua, and westward from the coast about eighteen miles. See Essex Antiquarian, 1:19, for map and details.

*During most of the Colonial era, the civil and ecclesiastical year began on March 25th. January was the 11th month; February, the 12th; and March, the 1st. This gave rise to the system of double dating, from January to March, till 1752, when the historical year alone came to be recognized. Further, Parliament decreed that the day after Sept. 2, 1752 should be reckoned Sept. 14, thus dropping eleven days. Dates before this change are considered Old Style; later dates, in New Style—all of which has led to considerable confusion among historians and genealogists in the matter of dates. Dates in this book are usually given as found in the records, with the year as now understood following in parenthesis. Not much attention has been given to Old and New Style dates, these also being given as found.

Anthony Taylor his O marke & seal to it

This Instrum^{t} was acknowledged by Anthony Taylor to be his act & deed before y^{e} court held at Hampton y^{e} 8:8 mo. (Oct. 8), 1659 as attests Thomas Bradbury rec^{d}.

Other Deeds indicate that Anthony Taylor owned land, at divers times, adjoining holdings of the following men: William Howard before 1645, Robert Sayward after that date; Edward Tuck and William Payne before 1649, Henry Green and William Godfrey after that date; John Cass and Christopher Palmer before 1660, Isaac Cole after that date; Henry Sayward and Jonathan Smith before 1667, Abraham Perkins after that date; and Isaac Cole before 1671, Abraham Perkins after that date. These are Deeds in which Anthony Taylor is named as an abutting owner. The property referred to was probably included, in whole or part, in his Grants and Deeds previously mentioned (see Essex Antiquarian, vols. 1, 9, 10, 11; and Mass. Supreme Judicial Court Files, Nos. 1277 and 1229).*

*In Room 161, Suffolk County Court House, Boston, repose what are called "Records of the Early Files, Supreme Judicial Court." These include, with data pertaining, the records of cases tried by the Quarterly or County Courts of Old Norfolk Co. and appealed to the General Court, or Assistants, at Boston, sitting as the Supreme Court. They are original documents, or vera copia, and have never been published. As a source for material during the Massachusetts jurisdiction, they seem to have been generally overlooked by the student of New Hampshire history and genealogy. Information concerning Anthony Taylor not found elsewhere has been located among these records and is reported later.

AS WITNESS AND APPRAISER

Anthony Taylor was a Witness to, or in connection with, the following: Deed, 1643, John Sanders to John Browne; Deed, 1649, John Wedgewood to Thomas Philbrick; Settlement of estate, 1658, Jeffrey Mingay ("Phillip his wyfe," that is, Anthony Taylor's wife, also testified—the first of only two records in which she is mentioned by name); and Court Case, 1660, James Bruse, "presented for excessive drinking" (see Essex Antiquarian, 1:113, 120; Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 2:375).

Several references to him as an Appraiser have come down through the years—a sufficient number to make it evident that his judgment in that capacity was highly considered by his neighbors. To wit: 1658, Thomas Coulman, Samuel Dalton, Thomas Marston and Anthony Taylor inventoried estate of Jeffrey Mingay, in amount £318-5-00 (photostat of Inventory as recorded indicates mark of Anthony Taylor was an "O"); 1660, in attachment proceedings, John Redman vs. Thomas Johnson and William Roberts, levied on defendant's land at Oyster River (Dover), John Sanborn and Anthony Taylor were the appraisers; 1666, in attachment proceedings, Christopher Palmer vs. Edward Colcord (Hampton's leading litigant),* levied "on three lots of land and corn and hay," also a small farm, Thomas Marston and Anthony Taylor were the appraisers (Mass. Supreme Judicial Court Files, No. 748); 1670, in execution, County Treasurer vs. Edward Colcord, "satisfied . . . by outsetting Nath[ll] Boulter[s] for his hay, received 800 red oak hogshead staves paid to Henry Roby and Christopher Palmer, by back meadow," Anthony Taylor and Alexander Denham were the appraisers (Essex Antiquarian, 2:84; 5:137; 8:39; 12:182). In 1674, appears this record: "Anthony Taylor and Alexander Denham being chosen prizers, Anthony (was) sworn to prize a black heifer & a two year old steere of Mr. Colcord to satisfie part of a fine & part of Capt. Hudson's Execution, we doe apprize ye heiffer att three pounds ten shillings & ye steere at two pounds ten shillings." And again, "Henry Roby & Anthony Taylor tooke ye prizers oath to apprize upon Capt. Hudson's execution & Anthony Taylor (was) Appointed by ye towne. Sworn 13:9mo. 1674" (Mass. Supreme Judicial Court Files, No. 1565).

At Salisbury Court, which began Nov. 14, 1676, the redoubtable Edward Colcord sued Abraham Drake, Sr., Marshall of Norfolk County, for illegally taking away five cattle—two cows, two heifers and a three year old steer. The suit was appealed to the next General Court at Boston (Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 6:210). Among the papers in the appeal (No. 1565), reposes this testimony of Anthony Taylor:

"Who saith that ye time when Abraham Drake, marshall, served Capt. Hudson's execution, I was chosen apprizer of some cattle & when we came to Colcord's House, Mr. Colcord said that Abraham Drake should carrie no cattle away from him, then Marshall Drake would have taken his person and in so doing there was some scuffling betwixt them & then Drake charged two men to assist him. Then said Colcord when hee saw that hee must be taken, 'will you take my person when I have (next word illegible) you my goods & do own them to bee mine and are at home.' And as I was chosen apprizer of ye meadow, I asked what Drake did. Answer was made me hee had executed Colcord's partes of ye meadow . . . and had served Capt. Hudson's execution upon his person, and forthwith we came (to) Colcord's house & hee tendered young cattle and an old cow & said his prizer was not ready, but come in ye morning soe soon as you please & I will get ready to apprize ye cattle for ye satisfying of ye execution and ye Treasurer('s) warrant as I was informed, & I did goe to Colcords house ye next morning be: ye 13th of ye 9th mo. 1674 & wee did apprize ye cattle as above said for (said) execution. Sworn before Salis. court ye 14th of ye 9th mo, 1676."

In 1668, the Town chose a Committee to regulate the bounds of Anthony Taylor, "at the north field" (Toppan Ms.).

Taxpayer in County and Province Rates

In the County Tax List of 1653, he was assessed 0.11.4 (1); out of seventy-one taxpayers, forty paid a larger tax. But in the first Province Rate, 1680, "Ant. and Jon Tayler"

(father and son) were taxed 0.8.7 1/2; out of one hundred and twenty-five taxpayers, only nineteen paid a larger assessment (Do.; N. H. Hist. Colls., 8:57 and N. H. Province Recs., 1:424).

In the Province Rate for 1684, sent to London, Anthony Taylor is in Constable John Smith's list (Aug. 25), but the listing is now for Jo: Taylor and father, and the amount of the tax, £1.2.6, has more than doubled (Archives, N. H. Hist. Soc., Concord).

In a Petition, about this time, against the notorious Gov. Cranfield, to be taken to England by Nathaniel Weare, agent for the Petitioners, Jo: Taylor and father are subscribers (Libby, Gen. Dict., 1:11, List 52*). From these last two listings, and with the Petition of the Aged Men (below) in mind, it is clear that Anthony Taylor had now practically retired from active life and resided with his son.

Mar. 2, 1683/4, Anthony Taylor was one of nineteen men, including some of the most prominent Hampton residents, who petitioned the Governor "that our heads may be spared since our hands can do so little for them," that is, "to be freed from head money"—precursor of the poll tax. This Petition, with its quaint phraseology, appears as follows:

"To the Rt. Hon. Edward Cranfield, Esq., his Majesty's Lieutenant and Governor for the Province of New Hampshire,

The petition of us, whose names are underwritten: Humbly sheweth—Whereas, we conceive it is the laudable custom of civil, and much more christian nations, to have tender respect to the decrepit, by age, we, your Honor's humble petitioners, being sundry of us about and above seventy years of age, some of us above eighty, others near ninety, being past our labor and work, do crave that favor, if your honor see meet, that we may be freed from our head money, we being heartily willing our estate should pay their proportion to all public charges, but we humbly crave our heads may be spared, since our hands can do so little for them. We also humbly suggest that some of us, that lived long in England, remember not that we paid anything for our heads, though we did for our estates. All which we present to your Honor, out of your clemency, shall see cause to favor us in our request, we shall not cease heartily to pray for your Honor, and remain,

*No Taylors are in the Cranfield Petition as printed in N. H. Province Recs., 1:577; Libby may refer to some London transcript.

Your aged and humble suppliants,

Petitioner in Howard and Pike Controversies —Indian Alarms

In Colonial days, and later, it was the practice for the people to register their opinion or express their wishes in Petitions addressed to the governing authority having jurisdiction. In 1643/4, Mar. 7, Anthony Taylor was one of twenty-nine Hampton men who signed such a Petition addressed to Governor, Deputy Governor, Council and Deputies of Massachusetts Bay Colony. It requested the removal of Lt. William Howard as their "training officer" or commander of the local military company always maintained for protection against the ever-threatening Indian danger. The chief objection to the man seems to have been that he was chosen only "by part of the towne to be our Leader," and held the "trainings" at inopportune times, so that the petitioners had not "profited by him as much in military knowledge or practis as we might," due to his conducting drills "in the winter season the snow being very depe & the weather percinge coulde (so) that our trainings was to little purpose, (and) when the weather was warme (at which time) we are Imployed in some towne business of another nature the most parte of the day." After a hearing, the General Court exonerated Lt. Howard but appointed a new officer temporarily in the hope that "after a while spirits may close again" (N. H. Prov. Recs., 1:165).

A much more important Petition to which Anthony Taylor was signatory was the Pike Petition of 1653-4. This has been called "one of the first recorded protests against the severity of the government in dealing with the inalienable rights of a freeman" (Sanborn Gen., 69). Among the Hampton signers, the O Mark of Antoni Talier is second from top of second column, below the ⌐ Mark of Joseph Morei (Merry) and above the ≻ Mark of John Cass.*

The Pike Petition was a protest to the General Court against the punishment of Robert Pike, prominent man of Salisbury, for criticising "the Lords Brethren" of Boston. The General Court had passed a law making it a misdemeanor for anyone to preach to the people on the Sabbath who was not a regularly ordained minister of the Church—a law aimed at two preachers of Baptist doctrines with Quaker tendencies. Robert Pike denounced the law in ringing words, for which he was speedily punished,—disenfranchised and heavily fined. This drastic punishment caused considerable consternation, not only in Salisbury but in Hampton and other neighboring Towns, and petitions of protest were drawn-up and presented to the General Court. These set forth "that whereas our Loueing freind Leaftenant Pike of Salisbury hath by occasion . . . Let fall some words for w'h this hon'rd Court hath bine pleased to censure him, us, Doe thearefore humbly desier that sd. Leaftenant Pike may bee Againe restored unto his former Libertye." Not such a violent protest, it would seem, but, especially since the Petition was numerously signed including the signatures of the leading men of each town, sufficient to make the Lords Brethren still more angry. The result was that they sternly reprimanded the Petitioners and ordered an investigation, appointing special commissioners for the purpose; but they also had the very good sense to repeal the obnoxious order concerning public preaching which had started the trouble, and soon the whole business was settled. A facsimile of signatures to the Hampton Petition, from original in Massachusetts Archives, Bk. 10, p. 299, State House, Boston, is shown on another page.

Historically, this Pike controversy was of real importance, for, in the day that Anthony Taylor signed the protest of Hampton, it was no idle gesture to question the wisdom of the Magistrates at Boston, no matter how moderate the criticism. To do so, indicated not only a degree of courage, but also a desire for civil and religious liberty which, in years to come, was to become more articulate with descendants of these signers (Consult Essex Antiquarian, 4:113; also, The New Puritan).

From the beginning,—in fact until the Peace of Paris, 1763—our forefathers lived in almost constant fear of Indian attack. In the early days of the settlement, the whites and their red brothers, generally speaking, were on friendly terms; Indian pappooses, it is said, would often go to the loghuts of the new settlers, to play with their children. Still, there was always that feeling of insecurity. Every town had its military company in a state of readiness, kept continuous watches and wards, maintained a place of retreat for women and children and storage of ammunition (the Garrison House). In Hampton, 1644, all persons were ordered to "have armes in their houses always fixed for service." Although Hampton escaped actual Indian attack, it did experience frequent very real Alarms, especially when bands of murdering savages were reported nearby. Anthony Taylor served in the military company for many years and so, not only was engaged in the regular "trainings" and stood long watches, but on occasion was called upon to abandon plough for heavy flintlock and scout the enemy.

Oaths of Allegiance and Fidelity —Seats in the Meeting House

The only mention of Anthony Taylor's trade or occupation is in the Deeds above—those executed in 1644, 1648 and 1659—wherein he is described as a feltmaker. He must have brought the trade with him from England; whether he followed it in Hampton, does not appear. In any event, it was a very uncommon occupation among the first settlers. Pope in Pioneers of Massachusetts found that out of 1725 men, there before 1650, only eight were designated in the records as feltmakers or hatters.

He took the Oath of Allegiance, or Freeman's Oath, to Massachusetts in 1648, as a resident of Hampton (Reg., 6:204); and the Oath of Fidelity, in 1655, Apr. 16 (Essex Ant., 2:11). [This latter Oath was required to qualify for holding certain offices; at first only church members were admitted freemen; later, no one was allowed to vote for magistrates or deputies (representatives) unless he had taken the Oath of Fidelity. See Chase, Hist. of Haverhill, 115].

In 1677, Oct. 22, Anthony Taylor and 49 other Hampton men petitioned King Charles II for a continuance of the Massachusetts jurisdiction, as follows:

To the High & Mighty Monarch, Our Deare & Dred Soveraigne Lord Charles the Second by the Good Providence of God King of Great Brittian France and Ireland and Defender of the Faith &c.

The Humble Petition of the Susbcribing Inhabitants of your Majesties Towne of Hampton in the County of Norfolke in New England, Submissely Showeth:

That Whereas wee are under a deepe sence of the Divine Benediction in our Enjoyment of Lands & Libertyes by your Majestyes Royall Protection under the Gevernement of your Loyall Collony of the Massachusetts for the space of about 40 yeares as also being awed by the Divine Aphorisme of that wisest of Princes who hath commanded us to fear God & Honour Our King & not medle with man given to change Wee therefore doe in all humble Loyalty beseech your Most Serene Majesty if it may Consist with your gracious Pleasure & our Allegiance & Duty that wee may bee continued under the Government of the Massachusetts and the Influence of your most august Sovereignty.

Hampton October 22 in the yere of our Lord 1677 and in the yeare of our Soveraigne Lord Charles y^{e} 2^{d} 29th and remaine

Your most Loyall Subjects & Constant Votaries at the Throne of Grace (N. H. State Papers, 17:527-8).

The next year, Dec. 4th, Anthony Taylor again took the Oath of Allegiance to Massachusetts, preferring, as did most of the inhabitants of Hampton, the government of the Bay Colony to that of Mason (Reg., 6:204). However, the wishes of the Petitioners were disregarded and Hampton became part of the newly created Royal Province of New Hampshire, subject, neither to Massachusetts nor Mason, but to the King himself, or his representatives.*

*In 1622 and subsequently, the Council of Plymouth had granted to Capt. John Mason as Lord Proprietor practically the entire territory of what is now New Hampshire. Capt. Mason died suddenly in England, 1635, without ever having visited his extensive Grant, but his title to the land was vigorously claimed and prosecuted by his heirs, from time to time, through five generations, until 1746. This long dispute over Mason's title, lasting nearly 125 years, is very important in New Hampshire history; it is known as the Masonian Controversy.

Jan. 30, 1746, Col. John Tufton Mason, who had inherited the claim to the Grant and was a lineal descendant of Capt. John, sold the Title to a group of twelve substantial New Hampshire men who became known as the Masonian Proprietors. These constituted a virtual corporation, which proceeded to grant out on liberal terms, the unoccupied lands as new Townships to other groups of men upon their application. These latter groups, usually consisting of from 20 to 60 men each, were known as the Proprietors or Grantees of the Township named. The Town Proprietors or Grantees rarely occupied the land

In the list of fifty-three voters in Hampton found eligible to participate in the first election under Royal Authority Mar. 1, 1680, the name of Anthony Taylor is included (N. H. State Papers, 19:660).

In 1650 (Mar. 4, 1649/50), Anthony Taylor and wife were assigned seats in the Meeting House—the second one, just completed; his place was last in "the third seat" reserved for the men, "on the south side aginst the desk" (there were five other seats for men "at the west end of the table"); his wife was probably the Goody T—— assigned to the third seat among the women, "next Mistris Whelewrit (Wheelwright)," the minister's wife; Anthony Taylor sat on the end beside John Cliffer (Clifford), while his wife was between Steven Samborn's wife and Goody Cliffer.*

In 1654, he built 3 1/3 rods of fence around the Burial Ground; the work was evidently satisfactory, for, in 1660, he was chosen fence-viewer for the Town (Toppan Ms.).

Neither Anthony Taylor nor members of his household are found among those admitted, Sept. 18, 1671, to full communion in Rev. Seaborn Cotton's church. It is likely they were among the much larger number of inhabitants who "owned the Half-way Covenant," the record of which is lost.

Town Father and Enforcement Officer

As early as 1656, Anthony Taylor was appointed on a Committee with Godfrey Dearborn, Morris Hobbs and Henry Dow, Jr., to enforce the regulation concerning dry cattle. To insure that owners of dry cattle would turn same themselves, being generally non-resident; but they, in turn, sold their grants, or rights, to actual settlers.

Between 1746 and the Revolution, scores of New Hampshire Towns were granted and settled in this manner. In their settlement, descendants of Anthony Taylor of the 4th, 5th and 6th generations were active either as Proprietors or as settlers. Consult New Hampshire State Papers, vols. 27, 28 and 29, especially, vol. 27, p. i to viii; also, Memoir of Capt. John Mason, by Tuttle and Dean, published, 1887, by the Prince Society.

*Others in the seat with Anthony Taylor were: Thomas Marston, Manewell (Emanuel) Hillyard, Gesper Blake, Moyses Coxe; with Goody T——: Goody Dow, Goody Blake, Goody Cox (Libby's Gen. Dict., 1:55).

One of the objects of the Half-way Covenant was to allow parents who felt themselves unworthy to partake of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, to participate in the rites of baptism administered to their children (Dow, 357-9).

over to the keeper provided by the Town, a fine of 6d (pence) per head was imposed on transgressors and 2d on each member of the Committee for failure in the performance of his duty (Dow, 51).

He was elected to serve his first term as one of the Selectmen, 1658. At Town Meeting, Mar. 12, 1665/6 he was again chosen to this office "to order ye prudentiall affayres for ye yeare following" (Supreme Judicial Court Files, Suffolk Co., Mass., No. 1372). He was re-chosen, 1670; and again, 1682. Inasmuch as these terms were at different periods, extending over a space of twenty-four years, it is apparent that the esteem and confidence with which he was regarded by his fellow-townsmen was not a temporary manifestation. He was a member of select boards with such men as Christopher Hussey, Capt. Henry Dow, Abraham Perkins, Samuel Dalton, John Redman, Benjamin Swett, Thomas Marston, Thomas Page, William Marston, Nathaniel Batchelder, Joseph Moulton, Edward Gove (Dow, 569-70).

At the Session of the County Court which began at Hampton Oct. 13, 1668, it was "ordered that Anthony Taylor be Keeper of the County Prison for Norfolk, now at Hampton, that he have 20s. for the year and have the same fees as the prison-keeper at Ipswich" (Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 4:64). He appears to have served the County in this capacity for several years as there are disbursements to him in Norfolk County accounts for fees, in 1672, 1673, and as late as December, 1674. The first item reads: "The County is Debtor to these Disbursements outt of y^{e} County Rate . . . To Ant Taylor for a Rest Due to Him £0.10.0" —that is, for an arrest, not a vacation (N. H. Province Deeds, unpub., Vol. A).

In 1662, he was plaintiff in a law-suit—the only one in which he was party—Anthony Taylor vs. Joseph Davis; and was awarded the verdict. He sued to collect a bill of £4. 8s. 6d. for staves and heading owed by one Joseph Davis, cooper of Haverhill, formerly of Piscataqua (Kittery). This bill was originally due Robert Jones, to be paid at Quechesha (Cocheco, i.e. Dover), but was assigned by Jones to Anthony Taylor. When the case came to court, Daniel Ela of Haverhill deposed that he met Anthony Taylor at Rowley (Mass.) last May (1662), who requested him (Ela) to ask Davis to pay the money to Capt. Paul White. Abraham Drake of Hampton also deposed that he went with Anthony Taylor "two years since" (1660) to said Davis' at Piscataqua, "York County side of the river," but Davis put them off in their efforts to collect; they then went to Portsmouth and remained overnight, as Davis promised to be "at Capt. Pemberton's the next tide" and pay the bill; they waited there but Davis failed to show up. In both instances, Davis had acknowledged the debt . . . Verdict for plaintiff. Writ dated 6:8:1662 (Oct. 6, 1662); signed by Samuel Dalton for Hampton Court; served by John Johnson, constable of Haverhill (Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 3:2). Since this was the only law-suit in which he appears as a litigant, as well as from the nature of the case itself, clearly Anthony Taylor was non-contentious in spirit and lived on friendly terms with his neighbors.

In 1666, the County Court excused him from "all military trainings and watches, allowing 4s. per annum to the Hampton company" (do., 3:64). The reason for the dismission is not stated but was due to his being engaged in other public service which warranted exemption. In 1681, June 29, his name is in a list of Hampton men "freed (by the Council) from training without paying anything for their freedom" (N. H. Province Deeds, Vol. A, p. 29). In this instance, being then 70 years or more of age, the inference is that he was beyond the age-limit for military exercises.

He was sworn Constable of Hampton at the Session of the County Court which commenced, Oct. 14, 1673 (Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 5:239). To many of us a constable may suggest a policeman directing traffic at a village cross-roads on a summer Sunday afternoon; but in Anthony Taylor's lifetime that office was a most important one. "There have been Towns in New England without Selectmen, without Ministers, without a Church or Common School, but there never was a Town without a Constable. He is the sine qua non of an organized Parish or Township, and that by authority of the Common Law, than which there is no greater authority in the history of English institutions."*

In the summer of 1677, Hampton Town Meeting voted, for the purpose of preventing damage "by violent and indiscreet riding in the town," that no person should gallop through the Town or any street thereof under penalty for every such offense of 2s 6d, payable one-half to the Town and one-half to Anthony Taylor who was to enforce the order.

From this and other like references in the records, it is evident that Anthony Taylor represented the law. For years he was the chief enforcement officer of Hampton, occupying a position in his community similar to that held in Plymouth by Capt. Myles Standish, first and most famous of New England constables.

*Adams in Reg., 36:174-187 and 255-271, enumerates the manifold responsibilities of Constables in 29 pages. Some of these functions were: "to whipp & punish" or provide for same; to send or convey persons "from constable to constable;" to "speede away all hues & crys" against theives, robbers, murderers, peace-breakers, etc. on penalty of 40s in capital cases; to apprehend without warrant all persons "overtaken with drincke, "all profane swearers, Sabbath-breakers, vagrants, night-walkers; to search for such persons in suspected or disorderly places and in houses which sell beer and wine; to warn any person to assist him and none to refuse on penalty of 10s; not to apprehend without warrant from magistrate; to levy all fines and "gather all toune rates"; to "carry his black staffe" in execution of his office that none may plead ignorance; to take notice of "common coasters, unprofitable fowlers & other idle persons, & tobacco-takers—and of such as harbor any young people, children, servants, apprentices, students or schollers," without hastening them to their respective employments; to aid custom house officers in search for wines, by breaking open cellars, etc; to clear accounts with the "countrje Tresurer"; to register in a book all lost goods and strays and to cry the same at "three generall toune meetings or lectures"; to present the names of all persons refusing "to watch and ward"; to begin "the constables watch" annually on the first of May and not give over until the last of September: to see that the watch be of "sufficijent able men and not youths"; to secure and commit "any inhabitant or stranger after time of the clocke at night"; to provide "at the tounes charge" all weights and measures as required by law for "toune standards"; to warn all inhabitants to bring in their weights and measures to be tried and sealed; to serve all attachments; to give notice of the annual toune meeting 2nd week of March; to make return under their hand of the names of deputies; to pay the Marshall General three pence out of every attachment; to execute warrants for jurymen and to warn persons chosen; in case of unusual death, "to summon a jury of twelve discreete men" to inquire into cause and manner of death; to give warning unto the inhabitants of their town of husbands living apart from their wives; not to refuse the office of constable under penalty of five pounds (ten pounds in Boston); "in case of any servants runing away, with suspition of the intention, in ye absence of a magistrate, the constable and two of the cheife inhabitants is to presse men, boates and pinnaces, at the publique charge, to pursue such persons by sea or land, & bring them backe by force of armes"; to inform the Court of all new comers who settle themselves without license.

Juryman: Trial, Inquest and Grand Juries; Witchcraft

Anthony Taylor was repeatedly called upon to serve on various juries. He was trial juror at Hampton Court, 1665, and similarly served at sessions held in Hampton and Salisbury, 1675, 1676, and 1678. A few of the cases on which he deliberated, as they appear in the records of the Quarterly Courts, follow:

Abraham Whiticker v. Jno. Haseldine. Trespass. For mowing a part of his grass and taking it away from his Spickett meadow and for laying claim to said meadow. Verdict for plaintiff.

Mr. John Wheelwrite v. Capt. Brian Pendleton. For unjustly detaining certain goods, a feather bed, bolster, two down pillows, one green worsted rug, one suite of silk curtains and valance, two round tables, ten pewter dishes, two pewter plates, two cushions, one carpet, one chafing dish, three pair of sheets, six napkins and three towels. Verdict for defendant.

Nathanell Boulter v. Abraham Corbitt. Debt. For 7750 pine boards delivered at Exiter to said Corbitt's man, as appeared by a receipt. Verdict for plaintiff.

Georg May, assignee of Willi. Marston, sr. v. George Walten. Debt. To be paid in cod fish. Verdict for plaintiff.

Henry Roby v. Dorman Disher. For detaining 1000 hogshead staves delivered by Wm. More for Henry Roby on account of Capt. Clarke, etc. Georg Walton forfeited his bond for said Disher's appearance.

Edward Clarke of Haverhill granted administration upon estate of Willi. Deale, late of Haverhill, and ordered to bring in an inventory.

Jno. Robison allowed to keep a ferry at Exiter and to have a penny for a passenger.

The committee concerning the repair of Exiter bridge continued and ordered to report to next Salisbury court.

A rate ordered to be made.

Jno. Huggins given until the next Salisbury court to bring in what he could find of Legat's estate.

A rate of 30li. ordered to pay the county debt.

Deborah Corlis of Haverhill, presented for committing fornication and having charged one as the father whom she afterwards acquitted, also refusing to challenge any man but taking all upon herself, court sentenced her, for refusal to declare the father, to be corporally punished and to pay a fine.

Robert Smarte, jr., presented with Elenor, his wife, for committing fornication, confessed, but she did not appear on account of her condition. Court ordered that they be whipped or pay a fine, and he was to give bond for his wife's appearance to receive her corporal punishment.

William Samborn sworn constable of Hampton.

William Sawer of Nuberie acknowledged judgment to Tom, the Indian, so called, in silver money and Indian corn to be delivered at Mr. William Bradburie's house in Salisbury. The Indian to have his wages from the country from the time he entered upon the service.

Henry True's fine for not attending the jury remitted.

(For full proceedings of these Courts, see Records & Files of the Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 3:279; 6:144, 208; 7:102.)

Anthony Taylor was a member of the Grand Jury which met at Salisbury, 1679, and the one at Hampton, 1680, as well as a special Jury of Inquest, also in latter year.* This last Jury was impaneled, July 31st, upon the sudden death of Nathaniel Smith, and reported: "We found him in a canoe at the landing place, with his face bloody; and we, washing and searching him, do judge that water was the cause of his death by drowning." The verdict was sworn to by all the jurymen, of whom Edward Colcord was foreman; Anthony Taylor, juror No. 2; and John[2] Taylor, juror, No. 12 (N. H. Hist. Colls., 8:49).

The Grand Jury of 1680 sat in a Witchcraft Case and their report, signed by each member, makes clear that all of them shared in the "delusion" then current, not only throughout New England but in Old England and most of continental Europe. Belief in Witchcraft "was not confined to the unlettered or ignorant; but it pervaded all ranks and conditions of society from the lowest upward to the highest . . . Eminently good men—jurists, statesmen and divines —deemed it little short of heresy to doubt the truth of marvellous deeds ascribed to the power of witchcraft" . . . In view of such widespread opinion throughout the

*This was a busy year for Anthony Taylor. N. H. Prov. Deeds, 5:33, seem to indicate he was also a grand juror at County Court held at Dover, June 1, 1680.

"enlightened world," it is not surprising to read, after the usual type of testimony, the verdict of the Hampton Jury: "We, whose names are underwritten, being called by authority to view a dead child of John Godfrey's* being about a year old upon the 13th of July, 1680, which was suspected to be murdered, we find grounds of suspicion that the said child was murdered by witchcraft: first in part by what we saw by the dead corpse; second (by) something we perceived by the party suspected which was then present and examined by authority; and third, by what was said by the witnesses. Signed by Grand Jurymen: Thos: Marston; Willyam Marston; Henry Roby, Foreman; Abraham Drake; Abraham Perkins; Anthony Taylor; John Smith; Thos: Levet; Aratus Levet; Gershom Elkins; Hen: Derbond (Dearborn); John Samborne (Sanborn)." This case was re-tried the next year at Dover and, we are glad to note, "the party suspected" (Rachael Fuller) was discharged. (N. H. Hist. Colls., 8:45; also, Dow).

Twenty-four years previously, in 1656, occurred Hampton's most notorious contribution to witchcraft history. In that affair Anthony Taylor was a witness, but his testimony, whatever it was, cannot be found as the original records of the Quarterly Courts for eight years, 1654-1662, are missing. Eunice Cole, or Goody Cole as she was called, a Hampton goodwife, had been tried by Norfolk County for being a witch. She was convicted, sentenced to be whipped and imprisoned, and was incarcerated in a Boston jail for fifteen long years, until 1671, when finally liberated (Dow, 53, 67, 79). Among the records in the case which, on appeal, reached the General Court at Boston, are two papers mentioning Anthony Taylor and others. The first is a list of eighteen men, women and children with sums "allowed them for their time expended in witnessing against Eunice Cole on tryall for witchcraft." Near the end of the list is the name of Anthony Taylor, "allowed 10s. 8d." The other paper (No.

26656) is a receipt or voucher "for expenses to Evan Thomas, ye full sum of four pounds ten shillings," paid to Anthony Taylor and six others.*

It is not stated for what purpose the "expenses to Evan Thomas" were incurred but that may be easily inferred. While this paper is undated like the first, it appears of similar age, and all of the names therein are included in the first. Furthermore, Evan Thomas was an innkeeper in Boston—Proprietor of the Kings Arms—and died in 1666. Accordingly, it is quite evident that the receipt refers to lodging, food or refreshment furnished the persons named when they were in Boston as witnesses in the Cole case.

Reference is also made to the Grand Jury which began July 7, 1680: Sept. 7th, Nathaniel Weare (later Chief-Justice of New Hampshire), Anthony Taylor and Thomas Roberts, "some of the grand jury at a court held at Hampton," complained under oath against Ephraim Foulsham (Folsom) that "the grand jury, coming forth out of the meeting house, he (Folsom) asked Nathaniel Weare, the foreman, why he did inform the court that John Palmer did give information of abuse the said Palmer had received from Nathaniel Foulsham. Nathaniel Weare told him they had no more to say of it now. Ephraim Foulsham said that the jury or Nathaniel Weare had told the court a lie" . . . (N. H. Hist. Colls., 8:44).

Anthony Taylor's first and last names are variously spelled in the records, but the greater liberties were taken with the surname. It appears as Taylor, Tayler, Tailler, Taler, Talor, Talier, Taylour, etc., although Taylor and Tayler, in that order, are the most frequent forms. The fact that he could not, or did not, write and always signed by mark, necessitated that his name be spelled or written by someone else. It appears that the way it was spelled depended on who wrote it. His mark was an "O" device, as has been noted. While, occasionally, some men of his time did not sign their own name because of defective eyesight—a frequent apologia of compilers of genealogies—the probability is that Anthony Taylor had not learned to write, "as was the case with the great majority of the people of England in that age." In any event, it may be said that his mark was neatly executed, in sharp contrast to some of the almost illegible marks of his contemporaries.

In connection with these witchcraft proceedings, it may be well to bear in mind that "although dead some time, our forefathers were quite human while they lived. . . . we must never be so clownishly unjust as to judge the doings of a former century from the viewpoint of our own" (Libby, Gen. Dict., 1:56).

Perhaps it should be here emphasized that no reader of these pages must be "so clownishly unjust" as to think of Anthony Taylor as illiterate, as we understand that word. Obviously, he was a man above the average intelligence of his day and generation; moreover, the records show that he used that intelligence exceptionally well. (As a matter of historical truth, many of our later ancestors, especially those who lived in rural communities where pioneer conditions existed and where, in consequence, the opportunities for education were slight, did not learn to write for decades after the Revolution!) It appears that compilers of genealogies are apt to soft-pedal the fact that their immigrant ancestor could not write—as if it were something to be ashamed of, or mayhap for fear that some descendant might not understand. Some excellent family histories do not mention the fact either way, although it seems likely their authors must have been aware that the immigrant actually did sign by mark; in a few cases, a purported facsimile is reproduced, but with no inkling where it came from, which raises the unfortunate suspicion that the signature might have been the work of the recording clerk, the words "his mark" being tactfully omitted for family perusal.*

After nearly fifty active, useful years in the land of his adoption, during which, as made clear by the records, he steadily won the increased respect of his neighbors and associates, Anthony Taylor died at Hampton, Nov. 4, 1687, and, according to death record filed among N. H. Vital Statistics, Concord, was aged 80. Undoubtedly he was laid to rest in the ancient cemetery, long neglected but now well cared for, wherein are interred the remains of the pioneer settlers—in the very burial ground he had fenced many years before.

No Will or Probate of Anthony Taylor's estate is to be found at this date in the archives of the New Hampshire Historical Society, where the earliest records are now preserved. In a personal letter to the compiler, Charles Thornton Libby of Yarmouth, Me., wellknown genealogical authority and himself a descendant of Anthony Taylor, wrote (1931): "The correspondence of Mr. Savage, which I have, shows a letter from Mr. Dow saying he knew that Anthony Taylor left a Will and that he would surely find it. But I think he never did. In the court files I found two Wills of which the record was missing, with missing leaves." . . . Was one of these the last Will and Testament of Anthony Taylor?

"PHILLIP HIS WYFE"

Anthony Taylor married a young woman whose first name was Phillip as read in the Mingay probate, or Philis as given in her death record, that is, PHILLIPA, or perhaps PHYLLIS. Jeffrey Mingay died June 11, 1658. In Court held at Hampton, which began ye 5th 8th mo: 58, Anthony Taylor and "Phillip his wyfe" were witnesses in the settlement of the Mingay estate, giving testimony "uppon their oathe" of Mingay's wishes as expressed in their presence the previous June 4th (N. H. State Papers, 31:37; also Essex Antiquarian, 2:84). In the seating of the Meeting House, 1650, she probably was, as stated, the Goody T—— who enjoyed the distinction of a place in the "seat next Mistris Whelewrit," the minister's wife. Philis Taylor (perhaps the name was spelled Philip in the original record and the final "p" was mistaken for the old style "f") died at Hampton, Sept. 20, 1683 (VR), age at death not stated.

These are the only facts concerning Anthony Taylor's wife which have come to light. Philip or Phillip was one of those names given in early times to either a male or female child, somewhat like Frances or Jessie in our day. As a feminine name, it was Latinized as Phillipa or Philippa (Reg., 17:16). However, the surname of Anthony Taylor's wife, our Ancestress, is unknown. There is a remote possibility that she was in some way related to Thomas Ward or his father-in-law Rodger Shaw, or even Thomas King, all early Hampton settlers. Referring to Deed above in which Anthony Taylor conveys to Thomas Ward, for money, "and for other good considerations me hereunto moveing," and also his conveyance to Thomas King, for money, "and for divers other good and lawful considerations me thereunto moveing," the quoted phrases are considered significant, indicating either a close friendship or kinship between the parties named. Of the two, the Ward Deed is perhaps the more suggestive, as it appears therein that Anthony Taylor might have sold land to Rodger Shaw. However, no kinship has been discovered; the names Thomas and Rodger certainly were not given names in Anthony Taylor's immediate family; and unless or until some unexpected discovery reveals Phillipa's identity, she must remain one of those unidentified wives, all too numerous in colonial history, who shared equally in the trials and hardships of their husbands, raised large families, but left little documentary evidence of themselves.

The date and place of their marriage is likewise unknown, but, tentatively, we are inclined to place it about 1640, and therefore in New England. In the summer of 1639, Anthony Taylor was referred to as one of the "Yong Men that had lots" at Hampton. In that list an attempt at classification seems to have been made among (1) men with families; (2) married men; and (3) "Yong Men." Some, if not all, of the other young men grouped with Anthony Taylor were then unmarried; and Anthony Taylor's first known child was born at Hampton, "soon after the settlement." On the other hand, in 1640, Anthony Taylor must have been between 29 and 33 years of age—which was a little beyond the average marrying age of the period.

Taylor's River

Anthony Taylor's name is preserved today in the geography of New Hampshire in Taylor or Taylor's River—a brook, perhaps, but nevertheless called a river.

This stream, about seven miles in length, rises in Kensington in two branches, enters Hampton Falls and flows northerly, easterly and then southeasterly, forming for a considerable distance the boundary line between that Town and Hampton and retaining the name TAYLOR until it reaches the saltmarsh, when, according to Dow, it becomes the Hampton River. But Brown, the historian of Hampton Falls, is somewhat doubtful just where "the TAYLOR RIVER, which takes its name from Anthony Taylor, an early settler," ends and the Hampton River begins (2:293). Be that as it may, the upper portion of the stream was known as TAYLOR'S RIVER from earliest times, and the reason must have been because Anthony Taylor was in some way closely identified with it. As noted, he owned land adjoining prior to 1644, at which time TAYLOR'S RIVER is so designated. Whether he also lived nearby for a time, before locating "on the border of the settlement," or perhaps was the first white man to discover or explore the mysterious upper reaches, does not appear, but it is perfectly clear that his association was sufficient for the watercourse to be called by his name, in preference to that of anyone's else, almost from the beginning.

In all earliest deeds of record, TAYLOR'S RIVER is named as such when a bound for land bordering thereon. It was the natural line of demarcation in religious and political divisions. It was a favorite place for fishing in the old days, even as late as 1850, and there are those who like it now. It also was important in the early commercial life of the Town, being the site of the first known sawmill, 1658, and of other mills, the last of which burned, 1876 (Dow, 532). While perhaps unimpressive to the motorist of today, with its fried clam signs, billboards and mudbanks when the tide is out, especially where most frequently seen, its visible shortcomings may be due in part to 20th century environment. At the bridge where Lafayette Road crosses the stream, the State of New Hampshire, as part of its program for identifying historic sites, has erected (1934) a metal marker bearing the name TAYLOR RIVER.

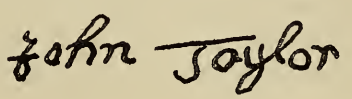
SECOND GENERATION

2. JOHN[2] TAYLOR (Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, 1640-1644, "soon after the settlement"; died there, Dec. 15, 1712 (VR); age at death not stated in death record. Yeoman in Deeds; man of sobriety and substance; soldier in French and Indian Wars; like his father, whose only son he was, ancestor of all descendants hereinafter mentioned (i. e. after No. 6).*



He lived with his father and afterwards succeeded to most of the estate. May 8, 1680, in Province Rate of that year, Anthony and John Taylor together were taxed 8s 7 1/2d; but in Rate for 1684, the order of names was reversed—Jo: Taylor and father—and the amount of the tax had greatly increased to £1. 2. 6. (N. H. Archives, Concord). By this time, evidently, John had assumed active management of the Taylor property. In the Masonian Controversy (see Footnote, pp. 48, 49), when it was a moot question whether the inhabitants of what was soon to be New Hampshire Province should be subject to the jurisdiction of Mason or of Massachusetts, he, like most of his fellow-townsmen, favored the latter. In 1678, on Apr. 25th and again on Dec. 4th, he subscribed to Oaths of Allegiance to Massachusetts (Register, 6:203-4). Feb. 20, 1689/90, following the overthrow of the Royal Governor, Edmund Andros, he signed a Petition "of the Inhabitants and train soldiers" of New Hampshire, addressed to the Massachusetts authorities,

*Our ancestor is not to be confused with John Taylor at Piscataqua as early as 1693. That man was a London merchant, engaged in obtaining the Colony's virgin pines to be made into masts for the Royal Navy—a business which became increasingly odious to the inhabitants, being one of the grievances leading to the Revolution (see N. H. Hist. Colls., 10:132:4).

for "Government and Protection, as formerly, untill their Maj[ts] pleasure shall be known concerning vs." His signature to this Petition, as shown in original document preserved among Massachusetts Archives, State House, Boston, Bk. 35, p. 228, is reproduced above. His name is with those of some 40 Hampton men, between that of John Sanborn, Jr. and John Godfrey (full list of Signers printed in Register, 8:233-5 and N. H. Hist. Colls., 8:298).

July 31, 1680, he was one of the special Jury of Inquest impaneled at the death of one Nathaniel Smith "found in a canoe at the landing place, with his face bloody." But his name does not appear in list of qualified voters of Hampton eligible (1680) to choose deputies to the first General Assembly under the Royal Commission, and the inference is that the family suffrage was to be exercised by his father. In 1683, May 13th, he took the Freeman's Oath, indicating he was in good standing with the authorities (Register, 3:345).

He performed active service in the first two French and Indian Wars. During King William's War, the record says he was paid Dec. 31, 1696, £8.8 "for wages at Garrition att Oyster River." This was for military service at one of the fortified houses—garrison houses—in vicinity of Dover used to repel Indian attacks; he was engaged there one month (N. H. Records, State Paper Series, 12:106). In Queen Anne's War, his name appears in return dated July 12, 1704, as a "souldier" "of Hampton" at Fort William and Mary* (Do., 111). At this time John Taylor was about sixty years of age, a somewhat advanced age for a "souldier"; but since the record specifically credits him to Hampton and there was no one else of the name there, the identification seems certain.

Mar. 10, 1695/6, for "thirty pounds of current money of New England," he bought 200 acres and buildings thereon, at Salmon Falls (Berwick, Me.), from Samuel Willis or Wyllys of Hartford (Conn.), his brother-in-law. The Deed begins: "I, Samuel Willis, in consideration of the Loue & respects which I bear unto my late wiues brother John Taylor of Hampton in ye Massathusets Province" . . . This property was situated on the east bank of the Piscataqua River, in Kittery, now Berwick, Me., and was bounded by the River on the west, by undivided lands on the east, by lands belonging to James Smith on the north, and "by Mr. Plaisted" on the south. It comprised the buildings, timber land, "Meadow pastures, Areable Lands, together with twenty thousand of Brick and Iron Ware or Implements of Husbandry" (York Deeds, IV, Fol. 116). He purchased this property to settle his sister Mary's estate; at least he sold it the next year, Apr. 22, 1697, with three town grants (locations not stated), to Edward Sargent, "vintner, of Newberry" (Mass.), for the sum of eighty pounds,—a substantial profit. The land was described as belonging formerly to William Love of Kittery, his sister Mary's first husband (Do., 118). These seem the only real estate transactions in which he participated.

Feb. 15, 1702, John Taylor signed his name as witness to an agreement between Hezron Leavitt (another brother-in-law) and his son, Thomas Leavitt (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:499-501; State Papers Series, 31).

No Will or Probate Record of estate known.

He married at Hampton, Dec. 5, 1667, DEBORAH GODFREY (VR), daughter of Deacon William[1] and Margaret or Margery Godfrey, born at Watertown (Mass.), about 1645; died at Hampton, July 10, 1699, aged 54. She was the mother of his children. She came to Hampton with her parents in or before 1650, when about five years old, and lived on land near Anthony Taylor; at the time of her marriage, the Taylors and Godfreys were called next-door neighbors. Her father, William[1] Godfrey, first appears in Dedham (Mass.), 1635; freeman in Watertown, 1640; in May, 1648, he bought a houselot in Hampton on Exeter road, between that of Giles Fuller and Thomas Leavitt; after May 18, 1649, he moved his family to Hampton but probably lived on another lot, near the present residence of Christopher S. Toppan; was selectman and for many years deacon; died at Hampton, Mar. 25, 1671, but made his Will three and a half years earlier, Oct. 2, 1667, naming his "daughter Deborah Godfrey," as she still was for two months (Dow and N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:108). Her mother, Margaret or Margery, maiden name unknown, married as her first husband, Thomas Webster, who died in England, Apr., 1634; they were direct ancestors of the great Daniel; thus, all descendants of John and Deborah (Godfrey) Taylor may trace a certain relationship with one of America's foremost statesmen; after Dea. Godfrey's death, his widow married as her third husband, John Marion; she died at Hampton, May 2, 1696, "between 80 and 90 years."

John Taylor married (2) Oct. 30, 1700, Mrs. Susannah Brackett, widow of Capt. Anthony Brackett who was killed by Indians in the fight at Casco (Me.), Sept. 21, 1689, and daughter of Abraham[2] (Robert[1]) and Jane Drake; Susannah was born about 1652 and died in 1719; she was named in her father's Will, Jan. 14, 1708/9, as "my daughter Susanna Taylor" (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1).

Children of John and Deborah (Godfrey) Taylor, born at Hampton* (VR):

7. i. SARAH[3], b. 1668/9; m. Peter Garland; (2) Dea. Samuel Dow.
   ii. JOHN, b. Oct. 26, 1673; d. Oct. 8, 1683 (VR).
8. iii. JOSEPH, b. June 20, 1677; m. (1) Mary Marston.
9. iv. RICHARD, b. abt. 1680; m. Sarah Taylor.
10. v. JONATHAN, b. abt. 1683; m. Mary Perkins.
   vi. MARY, b. May 3, 1687; d. Feb. 5, 1735; unm.

3. LYDIA[2] TAYLOR (Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, 1646; died there, 1729, ae. 83 (Moulton Annals). She married Mar. 23, 1666, LIEUT. JOHN MOULTON, called "The Giant"; they lived in Hampton on the original Moulton homestead to which he succeeded; were ancestors of a number of eminent descendants. He was son of John[1] and Anne Moulton, first settlers of Hampton, baptized at Newbury (Mass.), Mar. 16, 1638; died at Hampton, intestate, before Mar. 4, 1706/7, when administration of estate was granted to son John, who, with brother Daniel and brother-in-law Humphrey Perkins, furnished bond for £200 (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:585-7).

Children of Lieut. John and Lydia (Taylor) Moulton, born at Hampton (compare Moulton Annals):

i. MARTHA[3] MOULTON, b. Nov. 16, 1666; m. Humphrey Perkins.*
ii. JOHN MOULTON, b. May 30, 1669; d. Apr. 1, 1740; m. Rebecca Smith; lived on the homestead; ancestors of Hannah (Moulton) Dow, mother of Joseph Dow, Hampton's historian.
iii. LYDIA MOULTON, b. July 13, 1671; d. July 13, 1678.
iv. DANIEL MOULTON, b. Jan. 16, 1674; d. Jan. 14, 1718.
v. JAMES MOULTON, b. July 29, 1675; m. Dorothy Clements.
vi. NATHAN MOULTON, m. Sarah Resar or Reaser.
vii. DAVID MOULTON, m. Sarah Leavitt. viii. ANNA MOULTON, b. Mar. 2, 1679; m. Caleb Marston.
ix. LYDIA MOULTON, b. July 19, 1681; m. Thomas Marston.
x. JACOB MOULTON, b. June 21, 1688; m. Sarah Smith; they were parents of Gen. Jonathan Moulton, Indian fighter, legislator, Revolutionary officer.
xi. RACHAEL MOULTON, b. Oct. 4, 1690; m. Jabez Smith.

4. SARAH[2] TAYLOR (Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, about 1647; died at Boston, Dec. 23, 1707 (Wyman's Charlestown Genealogies, 2:722); not to be confused as the Sary Taylor mentioned in Hampton court, 1662/3 (Recs. & Files, Quarterly Courts, Essex Co., 3:44); that young lady, says the genealogist Libby, was a daughter of William[1] Taylor of Exeter, another Family. See note pp. 79, 80, post.

Sarah Taylor, the subject of this account, had three marriages; lived in Dover during the first two,—from second of which originated an unusually large number of prominent descendants.

She married (1) Oct. "thirth," 1666, THOMAS[2] CANNEY, JR. (Wingate Bible in possession of Charles Thornton Libby,

*For genealogy of this and all Hampton Families, consult Dow's History of Hampton, excellent authority in Hampton matters. The late Horace M. Lane, many years Town Clerk, who m. Flora[8] E. Taylor (122, iii.), used to say: "If it isn't in Dow, it isn't to be found in the Town Records."

Yarmouth, Me., 1933), son of Thomas Canney, who was an early settler in Dover; born there about 1645; died there, May 15, 1677 (this name is now usually spelled as Kenney). They lived at Thompson's Point, Dover Neck, at the mouth of Cochecho River. Thomas Canney's estate was administered by "Mrs. Wingate, relict of Thomas Canney"; inventory filed June 25, 1678; amount £311.8.0; refers to six Canney children (no names), oldest ae. 11, living with aunt (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:186).

Sarah (Taylor) Canney, after her husband's death but before June 25, 1678, married as his 2nd wife, CAPT. JOHN[1] WINGATE, planter at Dover Neck as early as 1658, born in England, about 1636; died at Dover, Dec. 9, 1687; selectman; was in King Philip's War (Wingate Family, 26). They lived in the house built by Mr. Wingate on Dover Neck, about 3 1/2 miles north of Hilton's Point, just off present Stark Ave. (sometimes called Dover Point Road). The site of their home is unmistakably identified as being located on a slight knoll close by a brook and a spring, now stoned-in, which bubbles as clear and cold for today's transient as it did for John and Sarah. Their homestead comprised about 100 acres and remained in the Wingate Family for 253 years, until 1911; in 1931, most of the original estate was owned by the Elliot Rose Co., although a few acres were in possession of heirs of M. F. D'Arcy (see Life of Paine Wingate, 25).

John[1] Wingate's Will, dated Mar. 12, 1683/4, codicil three years later, was proved Mar. 23, 1687/8; inventory £182.10.13. It left the homestead to John[2] Wingate, oldest son by first marriage, but carefully provided for Sarah, the second wife, who survived him. It also specified that her property formerly belonging to Thomas Canney should be divided by their mother among the five Canney children "which are not now married" (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:270-4). [Mr. Wingate's first wife was Mary Nutter, dau. of Elder Hatevil Nutter; they had five children.]

Sarah (Taylor) (Canney) Wingate, sometime afterwards, married at Newichewanock (Dover), Richard[2] Paine, son of Stephen[1] Paine; prosperous mast-maker of Dover and Charlestown, Mass.; they removed to Charlestown (Boston) where he died Mar. 29, 1708, ae. 72, three months after his wife. No children by this marriage (see Reg., 66:188).

Children of Thomas and Sarah (Taylor) Canney, born at Dover (Wingate Bible):

i. SARAH[3] CANNEY, b. Aug. 3, 1667; m. Thos. Roberts, Jr.

ii. MARTHA[3] CANNEY, b. Feb. 5, 1669/70; d. bef. Dec. 27, 1708; m. at Dover, June 30, 1687 (Rev. John Pike), Benjamin Nason of Kittery, son of Richard. 8 Ch.[4] (see Stackpole's Old Kittery).

iii. MARY CANNEY, b. Jan. 17, 1671/2; m. at Dover, Apr. 18, 1687 (Rev. John Pike), John Twombley (N. H. Gen. Rec., 4:9).

iv. LYDIA CANNEY, b. Aug. 26, 1673; m. Tobias Hanson. (Note: All these Canney girls have same given names as daughters of Anthony Taylor.)

v. THOMAS CANNEY, b. Nov. 1, 1675; d. 1707; m. by 1696, one Grace; in 1705, deeded 45 a. adjacent to Thompson's Pt. to brother Samuel. No Ch.

vi. SAMUEL CANNEY, b. May 24, 1677; bp. June 26, 1724; d. 1735; Will, July 25, 1735, proved following Sept. 1, names wife Sarah, eight children and four grandchildren (N. H. Prob. Recs., 2:541-4); blacksmith; in youth, Dec., 1694, he was one of eight prankish young men, "some of them doubtless merchants' apprentices, ordered whipped in dooryard of John Pickering, Jr. for stealing a turkey, cidar, etc"; 1715, his was one of six families "uncertain to wch meeting house they live nearest," the new one at Cochecho Point or the old one on Dover Neck (N. H. Prov. Recs., 11:509); his uncle, William Love (6), willed him 1 1/2 a. at Chalky Pt. which he sold to Ichabod Plaisted (Libby's Gen. Dict., 2:127); m. at Dover, Mar. 15, 1698/9 (Rev. John Pike), Sarah (Hackett) Rankin, widow of Joseph. (Their son Love, 1740, sold the homestead to Capt. John Gage.) 8 Ch.[4]

vii. JOSHUA[3] WINGATE, b. Feb. 2, 1679, at Hampton, "his mother being providentially there"; d. at North Hampton, Feb. 9, 1769, ae. 90; one of New Hampshire's most eminent sons in the colonial period; lived first on his grandfather Taylor's place, but later removed to North Hampton; he built his Hampton home about 1700; it was early called "The Garrison House," being stoutly constructed and the residence of the military commander, and later used as a place of refuge in threatened Indian attack; after his dau. Sarah[4] m. Dr. Edmund Toppan, the property passed into the Toppan Family and became known as the "Old Toppan House"; it was demolished (not accidently burned, as reported), in 1900; there is no building on the property today.

Col. Joshua Wingate, says Dow, lived at a time of great political turmoil and Indian hostilities. One of his early acts, by order of Gov. Dudley, was to establish garrisons in Hampton, "especially one near the meeting house, to be of large contents, where the women and children may repair in case of Danger," all the soldiers of the Town being called out to erect it. He was Captain in rank for many years; commissioned Major, 1731; Colonel of the Regiment, 1744, and took part in the Siege of Louisburg, 1745, in King George's War. In Town, as in Province affairs, Col. Wingate held a prominent place: selectman, repeatedly; custodian of the parsonage property; representative; on important committees, etc. "In his own person and through his children, he left his impress on the Town for many years."

He m. at Newbury, Mass., Nov. 19, 1702, Mary[3] Lunt, dau. of Henry[2] (Henry[1]), b. there, Jan. 16, 1681; d. May 27, 1772, ae 91. They had 11 children; their grandson was Hon. Paine Wingate, Harvard grad., clergyman, Congressional Delegate, U. S. Senator, Judge, who d. in his 99th year; their descendants, who also trace to Anthony Taylor, include the late Hon. John Wingate Weeks, Charles Thornton Libby, and members of such well-known families as Eliot, Cabot, Lowell, Pickering, Gardner, Lee, etc. (Reg., 82:130 and Life of Paine Wingate, by C. E. L. Wingate).

viii. ABIGAIL WINGATE, b. 1684-7; named in codicil of father's Will; m. Nov. 16, 1704, Samuel Kenny, trunkmaker; lived in Boston. 8 Ch.[4]

[Savage mentions four other Wingate children, but they are not named in their father's Will and prob. d.y.]

5. MARTHA[2] TAYLOR (Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, date unknown; died there, after Feb. 15, 1702/3. She married Sept. 25, 1667, HEZRON[2] LEAVITT, son of Thomas and Isabel (Bland) (Asten) Leavitt or Levet, born 1644; died at Hampton, Nov. 30, 1712; tanner and shoemaker; they always lived in Hampton. Hezron Leavitt, Feb. 15, 1702/3, made an agreement with his son Thomas (witnessed by John[2] Taylor), disposing of his property (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:499). Hezron's father, Thomas[1] Levet, was one of the first settlers of Exeter but came to Hampton as early as 1644; he is thought by Sanborn to have come from Lincolnshire or Yorkshire, but the proof is not yet established; Hezron's mother, Isabell Bland, widow of Francis Asten (Austin), came from Colchester, Essex Co., England (Sanborn's Thomas Levet).

Children of Hezron and Martha (Taylor) Leavitt, born at Hampton:

i. LYDIA[3] LEAVITT, b. Aug. 5, 1668; m. Mephibosheth Sanborn.

ii. JOHN LEAVITT, b. Nov. 26, 1670; m. Sarah Hobbs; they were ancestors of Mrs. George R. Blinn (Clara[9] A. Pollard), of Bedford, Mass., former president of Piscataqua Pioneers.

iii. JAMES LEAVITT, b. Jan. 31, 1673; d. Apr. 6, 1673.

iv. MOSES LEAVITT, b. Jan. 30, 1674; m. Mary Carr.

v. THOMAS LEAVITT, b. May 8, 1677; tanner; succeeded to most of father's estate as per agreement above; m. Elizabeth Atkinson of Newbury, Mass., dau. of John and grandchild of Hon. Theodore Atkinson.

vi. MARY LEAVITT, b. Oct. 20, 1679; m. Capt. Benjamin Thomas, son of James of Dover; lived in what became North Hampton.

vii. ABIGAIL LEAVITT, living Feb. 15, 1702/3.

(Dow's question marks removed on these two daughters.)

6. MARY[2] TAYLOR (Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, date unknown; died before Mar. 10, 1695/6; not mentioned by Dow, but entitled to place in Anthony Taylor's family by reason of Deed in which Samuel Wyllys conveys to "my late wiues brother John Taylor of Hampton" her property at Salmon Falls (Berwick, Me.).

Mary Taylor evidently mastered the culinary arts in her father's ordinary at Hampton, for she kept tavern with her first husband at Salmon Falls, and later, at Great Island (Newcastle). She married William Love of Salmon Falls who died between 1683 and 1688. He owned land above the Falls; as early as 1655, William Love's bridge is referred to in York Deeds; in 1680, he was licensed to keep a public house of entertainment; was selectman, 1683. He willed his nephew, Samuel Canney, 1 1/2 acres at Chalky Point. Stackpole says his house, where several families then lived, was destroyed by Indians, 1689; a map in Old Kittery indicates its location.

Mary (Taylor) Love married at Berwick, Me. (Salmon Falls), Nov. 28, 1688, as his 2nd wife, Hon. Samuel Wyllys (Willis) of Hartford, Connecticut Colony (Rev. Benj. Woodbridge) (Me. Hist. & Gen. Rec., 9:380). He was son of George and Mary Wyllys, born at Fenny Compton, Co. Warwick, Eng., 1632; died at Hartford, May 30, 1709; grad. Harvard College, 1653; Assistant (Connecticut) over 30 years, 1654-1685; Commissioner to Congress of New England Colonies, four years; held other important offices. At time of marriage to Mary, he was extensively engaged in West Indian trade and was part owner of a sugar plantation in Antiqua; he was often at Piscataqua, between which and Caribbean ports then flourished a lively commercial intercourse, and, on some one of these occasions, had undoubtedly sampled Mary's cooking at the Love tavern; finding it excellent, when opportunity offered, he married the cook. (Cf. Regs., 37:33; 67:360). [Mr. Wyllys' 1st wife was Ruth Haynes, dau. of John Haynes, 4th Governor of Massachusetts Colony (1635) and 1st Governor of Connecticut (1639), often re-elected; they had four children, of whom, Ruth Wyllys m. Rev. Edward Taylor of Westfield (Mass.), founder of another unrelated Taylor family; Mr. W.'s father, George Wyllys, was also Governor of Connecticut, 1642.]

Mary Taylor had no children by either marriage.

THIRD GENERATION

7. Sarah[3] Taylor (John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, 1668/9; died there after June 19, 1714. She married 1687, as his 2nd wife, Peter[3] Garland, son of John[2] (William[1]) and Elizabeth (Philbrick) Garland, born Nov. 25, 1659; died between Nov. 13, 1705 and Feb. 13, 1708; mariner; sailed a sloop named for his wife—the Sarah Taylor; also, the New Design, in which with Samuel Nudd, he made weekly trips between Boston and Hampton; lived in what is now Rye. She married (2) Feb. 13, 1708, also as his 2nd wife, Dea. Samuel[2] Dow, son of Capt. Henry[1] and Hannah (Page) Dow, born Nov. 4, 1662; died June 20, 1714; they lived in Hampton.

Children (Garland and Dow Genealogies):

i. Jonathan[4] Garland, b. Oct. 28, 1689; d. May 11, 1760; m. Rachael Dow.

ii. John Garland, b. Apr. 13, 1692; living at Rye, 1752, says Dow Gen.; m. Elizabeth Dearborn; direct ancestors of Hamlin Garland, author.

iii. James Garland, b. abt. 1694; living 1724/5, when on muster roll of Col. Westbrook's Co.; in 1719, sold land to Simon Moulton formerly owned by Seaborn Cotton; was a petitioner for new Town of Weare.

iv. Mary Garland, b. Sept. 7, 1699; m. Henry Moulton.

v. Abigail Garland, b. Feb. 25, 1704; m. Worthington Moulton.

vi. Hannah Dow, b. Jan. 10, 1709; d. Nov. 13, 1796; m. Shubael Page; they were ancestors of Edward[8] M. Smith of North Hampton, also descended from John[4] and Mary (Dearborn) (Hobbs) Taylor, valuable contributor to these pages.

8. Capt. Joseph[3] Taylor (John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, June 20, 1677; died at North Hampton, July 17, 1852, ae. 75; Will dated Sept. 25, 1750; proved July 29, 1752 (unpub. Wills, N. H. Hist. Soc., Concord).

Served in three French and Indian Wars, attaining rank of Captain; Selectman, 1721 and 1736; styled gentleman and captain in Deeds; lived almost on what is now North Hampton line—near residence of late Charles A. Towle—where his grandfather Anthony[1] Taylor first located.

Some of Joseph Taylor's military record follows:

In King William's War: 1694, engaged at the Garrison, Oyster River (Dover), from Oct. 12 to Oct. 20, Capt. John Woodman's Co. (N. H. State Papers, 17:644). 1696, at above, two months service as per payroll receipt; May 11, paid £1.4 for one month, and Aug. 3, the same (do., 12:108). 1697, at Fort William and Mary (Newcastle), for 2 weeks 2 days during June, in Capt. Tuttle's Co., paid July 3, amt. 3s 8d (do., 2:246 and 17: 667-8).

In Queen Anne's War: 1704, engaged at Fort William and Mary, period of service not stated, as per muster roll dated July 12 (do., 12:111).*

In King George's War: 1740, engaged at Fort William and Mary as Captain of Company of 82 men in Col. Sherburne's "Ridigiment," period of service not stated (do., 16:902).

Joseph Taylor informed the Town Meeting June 17, 1708, he intended to fence in a way crossing his land unless the Town would let him have an equal number of rods at the east of his lot, in which case he would let the "way still stand" for public use. This way was part of the Back Road leading to the old sawmills on Little River (Dow, 174). As early as 1718, he was petitioner for "aparrish" separate from the original one at Hampton (N. H. State Papers, 17:740). In 1742, Nov. 16, Capt. Joseph Taylor lived in a "new dweling house," a rod north of the proposed line between North Hill Parish (subsequent North Hampton) and Hampton Parish, on the "Country high way that Leads from Portsm° to hamton." He had ten acres there, 1738, which were owned by Henry Batchelder about 1796 (Do., 12:120 and 129).

In 1717, he sold land in Hampton to Samuel Shaw; in 1722, appointed on a committee to divide common lands; in same year, drew one share each in 2nd Division and Ring Swamp (Tǒppan Ms.); in 1736, deeded land in Hampton to Joseph[4] Taylor (nephew); participated in other conveyances including rights in Chichester (unpub. Deeds, at Concord).

*Joseph Taylor reported in Capt. Gilman's Co., 1712 (N. H. State Papers, 14:12), was probably son of William[2] (William[1]) of Exeter. See note pp. 79, 80.

He married at Hampton, Nov. 28, 1698, MARY[4] MARSTON, daughter of Ephraim[3] (Thomas[2], William[1]) and Abial (Sanborn) Marston, born there, Oct. 9, 1678 (VR); died July 19, 1732 (Reg., 58:30); she was bequeathed a feather-bed in her father's Will of 1729, but in his last Will, 1736, this highly-prized article (in ye olden times), or £4, was left to daughters Deborah Weare and Mary Weare (Marston Gen., 163). He married (2) at Salisbury, Mass., Jan. 10, 1733/4, Sarah Morrill, widow (VR), who survived him, being named in his Will, as also daughters Deborah Weare and Mary Wiggin, and grandsons (namesakes), Joseph Taylor Weare and Joseph Weare. He had no sons to carry on the name, but through his younger daughter, whose first husband was Daniel Weare, the name Taylor persisted as a given name in the Weare Family through the 10th generation.

Children of Joseph and Mary (Marston) Taylor, born at Hampton:

11. i. DEBORAH[4] b. July 4, 1700; m. John Weare.
12. ii. MARY, b. July 10, 1703; m. Daniel Weare; (2) Thomas Wiggin.

All descendants of ANTHONY TAYLOR with the surname TAYLOR descend from either one of the next two men—RICHARD who settled in what was set-off as North Hampton and JONATHAN who remained in old Hampton. RICHARD had only one son who left male descendants. JONATHAN, although he died in early life, had three. The descendants of JONATHAN are very much more numerous. As shown in the following pages, descendants of both these men founded or settled new towns in New Hampshire and elsewhere, and, later, became resident in nearly all of the United States and Provinces of Canada.

9. RICHARD[3] TAYLOR (John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, about 1680; died at North Hampton, 1756, between Feb. 5, when he deeded land, and Jan. 26, 1757, date of probating of his Will; aged about 76.

Soldier in Queen Anne's War: "one of the souldiers att her Majesties ffourt Wm. and Mary at New Castle," during July, 1708, in anticipation of a sea-attack by the French upon Portsmouth (Adj. General's Rept., 2:26, also N. H. Prov. Recs., 12:111); and for two weeks during summer of 1712, one of Maj. Smith's Scouting Party in search of raiding French and Indians (Do., 14:11).

Three times Selectman: 1724, 1734 and 1742 (Hampton Town Recs.); lived on what is now Hobbs Road, North Hampton, off Lafayette Road and about two miles north of Hampton center—near the residence (1935) of George L. Seavey. The old Richard Taylor house was demolished about 1850, but part of the original homestead is still owned and occupied by descendants as represented by the Smith and Seavey families.

Richard Taylor was a carpenter and farmer; in later Deeds and in his Will, styled gentleman. He bought and sold considerable real estate in Hampton, Chester (the "Chestnut Countrey"), and subsequent North Hampton; also had interests in Chichester. If living today, he might well have qualified as a realtor.*

As early as 1718, Richard Taylor was among petitioners for a separate parish at North Hill, later North Hampton, in these words:

"To the Honourable John Wentworth Esqu^{r}—Lieut. Governour &c and y^{e} Rest of his Majesties Council Resideing in y^{e} province of Newhampshire—the petition of us y^{e} Subscribers humbly Sheweth:

(Apparently this petition was drawn up because no specific action in the matter was taken "att a Loyall meeting of y^e^ free-holders of y^e^ old parrish on y^e^ north side of Taylor River y^e^ 17^th^ of y^e^ 7^th^ m 1718" (Sept. 17, 1718), "to consider of y^e^ building of a new meeting house: & about hireing a Schoolmaster").

Nov. 27, 1722, Richard Taylor was appraiser of the estate of Philemon Dalton (Do., 32:132); Sept. 1, 1724, bondsman in settlement of brother Jonathan Taylor's estate (Do., 227); and Nov. 30, 1730, again petitioner in favor of the establishment of North Hill Parish (Do., 9:340).

Mar. 23, 1731, Richard Taylor and sons John and Joseph Taylor, Jr. were among 93 men who petitioned the Governor and Council for a grant in unoccupied lands or in Chichester. Since this Petition is a fair sample of similar ones to come, in which Taylors were especially active, it is given below in full:

"To his Excellency Jonathan Belcher Esq^r^ Governour and Commander in Cheif in and over his Majesties Province of New Hamp^r^ and to the Honourable his majesties Council the Petition of sundry Inhabitants of the Town of Hampton in the s^d^. Province humbly sheweth—

That most of the Towns and Parishes within the province of New Hamp^r^ have been favoured respectively with Charters for considerable tracts of his Majesties Wast Lands within this province for the making of new Towns proper to them, and though it was proposed in the time of granting these Charters that a Charter should be granted to the Inhabitants of the Town of Hampton, yet through neglect due notice was not given to the greatest part of the Inhabitants of that town to seek after a right in any of the New Towns or in any entire body of Land for their proper use, most of whome have done very great service in this his Majesties province as souldiers against the Indian enemy but have not been favoured with any share in the new grants, at which they are extremely grieved, and therefore earnestly pray for help from your Excellency and Honours, and pray that you will please to grant your Petitioners who are represented by the subscribers and a List of their names hereto annexed, a Tract of Wast Land within this province to be embodied into a Town as the other new Towns be, or that whereas your Petitioners are informed that the Charter of Chicester is forfeited by the Proprietors by thier neglect of fulfilling the conditions thereof, which Town was originally designed for the Town of Hampton that your Excellency and Honours will please to make them a grant thereof, and yo^{r} Petitioners will punctually comply with the conditions to be set thereon and shall ever pray as in duty bound &c" (N. H. State Papers, 12:116-7).

In the fall of 1742, Richard Taylor (also his son John), among 45 others, signed a remonstrance against the separation of North Hill Parish from the old one at Hampton, conceiving the plan proposed "would be Introductive of Multiplied Confusions & alltogether Impracticable . . . (and) otherways it would be in the power of a few men frequently in a sort to Tyranize over their neighbors" (N. H. State Papers, 12:121; 13:79). This would seem to indicate a reversal of his position in 1718 and 1730, but evidently was due more to his opposition to the particular plan of separation than to the fact that he was then a Selectman of the old Town.

In this same year, Oct. 19th, "for y^{e} naterall affection and Love which I have & Do bare towards my well beloved Daughter In Law Elizabeth Taylor wido which was y^{e} wife of Joseph Taylor," . . . Richard Taylor deeded 40 acres in Chester with "dwelling house and barn," to said daughter-in-law and her daughters, Ann and Abigail (Deeds, Concord, 32:15). He owned land in Chester as early as 1730/1, for on May 6th of that year his "homb lott" is mentioned in the laying-out of a road; Taylor's Lot was so called as late as 1756 (Hist. of Chester, 1869, p. 192).

He made his Will, Jan. 13, 1753. By its provisions, son John (15) was chief beneficiary and executor; wife Sarah was provided for "so long as she shall live unmarried"; and daughters and granddaughters received legacies, to wit:

Sarah[4] Dearborn; Catherine[4] Knowles; Anne[5] Marston, "daughter of my daughter Annah Marston"; and "my grandchild anne[5] Taylor, the Daughter of my son Joseph Taylor Deceased" . . . This Will is the second oldest Family Document of its kind known to have survived the mutations of Time. With some punctuation added and the modern "s" substituted for the old-style letter, to facilitate reading, but retaining original spelling, it reads as follows:

IN THE NAME OF GOD AMEN. I, Richard Taylor of Northampton parish in the province of Newhampshire, Gentleman, Being aged but of sound mind and memory, and considering that I Know not the day of my Death, Doe make this my last will and Testament and after Recommending my Soul to God, the father of Spirits, hoping for Pardon and acceptance throw the merits of Jesus Christ our Lord, and my Body to a Decent Burial according to the discression of my Executor herein after named, believing in the Resurrection of the Dead and Hoping for Eternal Life and touching my worldly Estate which god hast blest me with, I give, give and Devise and dispose there of in the manner fowlling and form:

Richard Taylor married about 1704, SARAH TAYLOR (Dow), probably an unrecorded daughter of Benjamin[2] (William[1] of Exeter) and Rachael (Lawrence) Taylor of Stratham, who survived her husband and so died after Jan. 26, 1757. The usual documentary evidence is lacking, but her identity is determined by these facts: propinquity; the frequent use of the name Sarah in the Exeter Taylor Family; she best "fits" as a daughter of Benjamin Taylor of Stratham; she gave to her own daughters the names Catherine and Anna, names which later recur in the Exeter Family; and most important of all, she named a son Benjamin (for her father)—a name never before used in the Hampton Family but frequent thereafter in her line for several generations,—a name whose origin can not otherwise be explained.*

*William[1] Taylor of Exeter was there as early as 1646 and died in 1677 (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:204). He is not mentioned by Savage or Pope, yet he founded a large Taylor Family, having four sons. Among descendants are the late Maj. General Harry[8] Taylor of Washington, D. C. and Charles[8] H. Taylor, founder of the Boston Globe.

[One William Taylor, ae. 23, was a fellow-passenger on the Ann & Elizabeth with Anthony Taylor, (pp. 30-1, ante). It might be supposed they were related. However, the names of passengers bound overseas were generally entered on the shipping lists in order of application. In the shipping list of the Ann & Elizabeth, Anthony Taylor's name was near the beginning—24th—while William Taylor's name was near the end—83rd. If these men were brothers, or related, would they not travel together and so present themselves for embarkation at about the same time? The answer is: "Not necessarily." It is well known among authorities that, to obtain permission to leave England, applicants often had to resort to all manner of subterfuge; members of the same family sometimes applied at different times in different groups, or at different ports; gave incorrect ages, fictitious names or residence—all to conceal their real identity. See Jacobus, The Bulkeley Family. Consequently, the order of the names in the shipping list has little significance as to any possible relationship between Anthony and William Taylor.]

Although William Taylor of Exeter and Anthony Taylor of Hampton lived only a few miles apart, there is nothing in the records to suggest the least relationship between them. It does not seem natural that two men closely related should live contemporaneously, in new settlements united by common interest, and no evidence of consanquinity anywhere appear. It must be concluded, for the present at least, that there was none.

In any event, descendants of each man later appear frequently enough in the same town, at the same time, to harass the genealogist, and it has often been necessary to spend much time tracing a line back to Exeter in order not to omit a possible Anthony Taylor descendant. Instances of intermarriage between the two Families occurred, as above, but they are surprisingly few.

For descendants of William Taylor of Exeter, through his oldest son Joseph who removed to Wells, Me., with two generations through his other three sons, consult Early Taylors of Exeter, a manuscript by Edgar Yates (1915), in the Library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society,

Children of Richard and Sarah (Taylor) Taylor, born at Hampton, in that part set-off as North Hampton (VR):

Edward Williams' Co., Col. Moore's Regiment, composed of Hampton and Hampton Falls men, and did not return home (Adj. General's Rept., 2:67).

vii. BENJAMIN, b. Nov. 3, 1720; d. Jan. 25, 1736.

viii. JONATHAN, b. Mar. 8, 1724; d. Oct. 17, 1736.

10. JONATHAN[3] TAYLOR (John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, about 1683; died there, intestate, prior to June 3, 1724, when estate was appraised; cousin Capt. Joshua Wingate, one of the appraisers (N. H. Prob. Recs., 2:227).

Boston. In the preparation of this volume, a large number of additional records of the Exeter Family, as well as other unrelated Taylor Families, have necessarily been collected. It was hoped to include them herein but space and expense prevent; they may be published later provided there is sufficient interest.

Soldier in Queen Anne's War: "served att her Majesties ffourt Wm. and Mary," during July, 1708, to repel threatened attack of the French Fleet (Adj. General's Rept., 2:26); also, appears on muster rolls of Capt. James Davis' Co. and that of Lt. Joseph Swett (Dow, 236).

Farmer; lived in Hampton, probably on Exeter Road at Bride Hill—then and now so called—on the virgin acres granted by the Town, 1669-70, to his grandfather, Anthony Taylor.* Part of this grant continued as the Taylor ancestral home for many succeeding generations, until 1931, when sold outside the Family. (See No. 215.) Heretofore, Jonathan's place of residence has been unknown. It was believed that his grandson, Henry[5] Dearborn Taylor (32) was the first of the Family to live at Bride Hill; but Deeds at Concord and Exeter, indicate otherwise. Henry Dearborn Taylor received the Bride Hill Homestead from his father, John[4], who, in turn, had acquired from each of the heirs his or her right in the estate of Jonathan Taylor, above (Deeds, Concord; and Rockingham Co., 141:449).

Oct. 3, 1717, Jonathan Taylor was petitioner for a grant of land in a new township—"in ye Chestnut Countrey Commonly so called" (Chester). This petition was signed by some 96 Hampton and Hampton Falls men, "His Maje[ts] Loyal & good Subjects," addressed "Too his Excelency Samuel Shute Esq. Govern[r] in Cheeff of His Majesties Province of New Hampsheir . . . and the Honourable the Council," and presented by George Jaffrey in behalf of Maj. Peter Weare (N. H. Prov. Recs., 12:114).

Jonathan Taylor sold land in Hampton and in what is now North Hampton, as evidenced by the following abstracts of Deeds:

1712, Apr. 1, to John Garland, 20 acres in Hampton.

1719, Dec. 11, to Benjamin Thomas, abt. 15 acres in Hampton, First North Division, on north side of Winnicut River (in present North Hampton).

*The tradition is that a certain couple were proceeding along this road to Exeter on horseback - the young man in the saddle, the young lady on the pillion - object: matrimony. On the way, they met the one authorized to marry and the ceremony was performed then and there. Henceforth, the entire neighborhood, in commemoration of the romantic incident, was known as Bride Hill.

1721, Nov. 22, to Jonathan Brown, 1 acre salt marsh.

Nov. 23, to Abram Brown, 7 acres in Hampton: 1/3 part of two shares in First West Division, lots No. 333 and No. 334, in exchange for 7 acres, 2/3 part of half share in same.

1723, Mar. 14, to Simon Marston, 5 1/4 acres in Hampton at a place called Woodchuck Plain.

June 24, to Ensign John Sanborn, abt. 15 acres in Hampton.

(Last two grantees lived in North Hampton.)

His estate, of which his widow Mary was granted administration, Sept. 1, 1724, was valued at £597 s16—an amount well above the average for time and place, and the more notable for a man just entering the prime of life when overtaken by death.

He married at Hampton, about 1707, MARY[3] PERKINS, daughter of James[2] (Abraham[1]) and Leah (Coxe) Perkins, born there, Dec. 2, 1686; living May 20, 1728, when deeded land by her mother. She was named in her father's Will, 1723, as "my daughter, Mary Taylor"; the Will was proved Dec. 9, 1731, indicating she was also living at latter date (N. H. Prob. Recs., 2:161-2).

Children of Jonathan and Mary (Perkins) Taylor, born at Hampton (all VR, except iv and viii):

i. LYDIA[4], b. Jan. 23, 1708; m. Jonathan Norris of Epping, son of Jonathan and Lydia; in 1748, July 12, she and husband deeded right in her father's estate to her brother John. Child (Morrison's Norris Family):

1. DAVID[5] NORRIS, b. abt. 1746; d. 1799.

(N. H. Gen. Rec., 2:116-7.)

19. vii. ANTHONY, b. Sept. 25, 1719; m. Bethia Tuck.

viii. MOSES, bp. Apr. 25, 1722; prob. d. young; he is only child whose right in father's estate was not acquired between 1736 and 1749 by brother John.

20. ix. JAMES, b. Jan. 9, 1723/4; m. Mary Tuck.

FOURTH GENERATION

11. DEBORAH[4] TAYLOR (Joseph[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, July 4, 1700; died after 1752 (father's Will). She married Dec. 6, 1720, JOHN[3] WEARE, son of Nathaniel[2] and Huldah (Hussey) Weare, born Nov. 12, 1696; deacon at Hampton Falls where they first lived; removed to Kensington about 1741. He was older brother of Hon. Meshech Weare [Harvard, 1735; Patriot Leader; Chief-Justice of New Hampshire, 1776-1783; first President (Governor) of same, 1784]; and grandson of Nathaniel[1] Weare, also one of the most illustrious men of his time [over 20 years a Councillor; Chief-Justice of Colony, 1694/5, etc.].

Children of John and Deborah (Taylor) Weare, born at Hampton Falls (see Hist. of Hampton Falls, vol. 2, for baptisms):

i. JOSEPH[5] WEARE, b. Nov. 21, 1721; living 1752.

ii. SUSANNA WEARE, bp. July 28, 1723; d. at Kensington, Jan. 9, 1814, ae. 90; m. at Hampton Falls, Dec. 18, 1744, her first cousin, once removed, Nathaniel[4] Healey, son of Nathaniel[3] (Samuel[2], William[1]) and Susanna (Weare), b. Nov. 21, 1722; d. Jan. 22, 1791; farmer in Kensington; Captain and Major of Cavalry; Representative. (Information furnished by Mrs. Mattie[9] (Healey) Hobart of Duxbury, Mass., 1933, from notes of late Judge Samuel Bell of Manchester, N. H.) Children:

1. NATHANIEL[6] HEALEY, b. Nov. 17, 1749; d. y.
2. ANNE HEALEY, b. July 5, 1752; m. Ebenezer Clifford.
3. EUNICE HEALEY, b. Dec. 31, 1754; d. y.
4. NATHANIEL HEALEY, b. June 24, 1757; d. 1823; Harvard, 1777; teacher in Portsmouth, Hampton Falls, Hallowell and Clinton, Me.; unm.
5. NEWELL HEALEY, b. Mar. 30, 1759; d. 1830; m. Eunice Wells, dau. of Aaron who was b. Ipswich, Mass.; lived in Hampton Falls; ancestors of Mattie (Healey) Hobart of Duxbury, Mass.

iii. JONATHAN WEARE, b. June 28, 1724; d. Nov. 6, 1790; m. Sarah Lane, dau. of Dea. Joshua and Bathsheba (Robie); she d. June 8, 1784 and he m. (2) Mary French.

iv. MARY WEARE, bp. Nov. 13, 1726.
v. JOHN WEARE.
vi. HULDAH WEARE, b. Feb., 1730.
vii. JEMINA WEARE, b. 1732. viii. DEBORAH WEARE, b. Aug. 19, 1735.

12. MARY[4] TAYLOR (Joseph[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, July 10 (Apr. 10), 1703; died at Stratham, May 3, 1776 (Cf. N. H. Gen. Rec., 2:58). She married 1724, as his 2nd wife, DANIEL[3] WEARE, son of Nathaniel[2] and Huldah (Hussey) Weare, born Sept. 12, 1693; died before May 8, 1733, when administration of estate was granted to widow; inventory £1215.5.7, a considerable figure for place and period (N. H. Prob. Recs., 1:472-5); he was older brother of John Weare above (also Hon. Meshech), first instance of many to come of two brothers marrying two Taylor sisters, or vice versa. Daniel and Mary lived at Hampton Falls. The Taylor name persists as a given name in this branch of the Weare family to this day.

She married (2) at Hampton Falls, June 15, 1737, also as his 2nd wife, Cornet THOMAS[4] WIGGIN (Hist. of Hampton Falls, 1:133), son of Bradstreet[3] (Andrew[2], Capt. Thomas[1]) and Ann (Chase) Wiggin, born at Stratham, Mar. 15, 1701/2; died there, Apr. 26, 1776; they lived in Stratham. It has often been stated that Mary married (2) Sylvannus Smith and had daughter Huldah born about 1762. On the face of it, this statement may readily be questioned as the mother would then have been about 59 years of age. Fortunately, there is documentary evidence which disproves it (see her father's Will; Hist. of Hampton Falls, 1:133; and N. H. Gen. Rec., 2:58).

Children of Daniel and Mary (Taylor) Weare, born at Hampton Falls:

i. NATHANIEL[5] WEARE, b. Sept. 2, 1725; d. 1734.
ii. DANIEL WEARE, b. July 3, 1728; rem. to Chester.
iii. JOSEPH TAYLOR WEARE, b. June 3, 1731; d. at Orford whither he removed; m. Feb. 7, 1751, his first cousin, once removed, Sarah[5] Marston, dau. of Capt. Ephraim and Mary (Nudd), b. Dec. 10, 1728; d. May 26, 1769 (Dow). Ch. b. at Hampton:
1. MARY[6] TAYLOR WEARE, bp. Sept. 24, 1752; d. 1754.

2. JOSEPH WEARE, b. Oct. 7, 1754.
3. DANIEL WEARE, b. Apr. 22, 1757; d. Mar. 20, 1835; m. Betty Hobbs, dau. of Capt. Morris. Ch.:
   a. TAYLOR[7] WEARE, b. Oct. 1, 1786; d. May 4, 1849; m. Mary Redman, dau. of Joseph. Children:
      1. DANIEL[8] WEARE, b. June 22, 1821; m. Sarah Lamprey; their son, HENRY[9] TAYLOR WEARE, b. 1851; m. Julia E. Lane; he and two daughters, Mrs. Grace W. Brown and Mrs. MABEL[10] TAYLOR (WEARE) JOHNSON, were living in Hampton, 1933.
      2. JOSEPH TAYLOR WEARE, b. 1823; d. y.

13. SARAH[4] TAYLOR (Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Dec. 20, 1705; died at North Hampton, Sept. 18, 1779. She married Dec. 23, 1725, JEREMIAH DEARBORN, son of Samuel and Mercy (Batchelder) Dearborn, born Apr. 1, 1704; died at North Hampton, 1751. They occupied the Dearborn homestead.

Children of Jeremiah and Sarah (Taylor) Dearborn, born at Hampton (North Hampton):

i. JEREMIAH[5] DEARBORN, b. Dec. 20, 1726; d. Jan. 27, 1784; m. Mary Nudd; they were great-grandparents of Edmund B., early Dearborn genealogist who lived in No. Hampton, and of Jonathan Dearborn, one-time mayor of Portsmouth. (A copy of E. B. D.'s Ms. was in possession of Lawrence F. Foster, Berkeley, Cal., 1935.)

ii. SARAH DEARBORN, b. 1728; d. May 1, 1736.

iii. MARY DEARBORN, b. May 1, 1732; d. Mar., 1736.

iv. SARAH DEARBORN, b. July 11, 1737; d. Nov. 25, 1826; m. Simon Page, son of Jonathan; they had a son, Taylor[6] Page, prob. the one in Parsonsfield, Me., 1785 (Dearborn's Hist. of Parsonsfield, 186); they were more likely the ancestors of Taylor Page of Lee and Dover (b. Parsonsfield, 1793; d. Dover, 1865; m. Martha Hilton Goodwin) and descendants than those incorrectly ascribed to him in Scales' Hist. of Dover, 343. Compare (32, i).

v. MARY DEARBORN, b. Mar. 23, 1740; d. Feb. 7, 1826; m. Stephen Page, son of Jonathan.

vi. ABIGAIL DEARBORN, b. Apr. 4, 1743; d. unm.

vii. ANNA DEARBORN, b. July 30, 1745; m. Wm. Godfrey.

14. JOSEPH[4] TAYLOR (Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Dec. 24, 1712; died at Chester, before Oct. 19, 1742, as per Deed. Farmer; in 1736, Sept. 27th, he was deeded land in Hampton by his uncle Joseph; but he settled in Chester where his name last appears on Tax List of 1741 (N. H. Prov. Recs., 11:309).

He married 1740, ELIZABETH TAYLOR (Dow). Her first name was certainly Elizabeth but her parentage is unknown. I cannot place her in any of the Taylor families. We know that Elizabeth, "widow of my son Joseph Taylor, deceased," was living Oct. 19, 1742, when her father-in-law deeded her land in Chester, at which time her daughters Ann and Abigail are mentioned. In 1752, Mar. 31, the Town of Chester gave deed of land to her daughter Ann; and in 1756, Feb. 25, Abraham Drake of North Hampton was appointed guardian for this daughter Ann.

Children of Joseph and Elizabeth (Taylor) Taylor, born at Chester (VR):

21. i. ANNA[5], b. Feb. 15, 1741; m. Weare Drake.
ii. ABIGAIL, b. Mar. 18, 1742; prob. d. after Oct. 19, 1742 and before 1753; at least, she is not named in her grandfather Richard Taylor's Will, Jan. 13, 1753, whereas her sister Anna is so mentioned.

Not a little difficulty was met in connecting the various JOHN TAYLORS in this and later generations with their respective achievements as these appear on the records. Sometimes as many as five men with this name, all related, were living at the same time within a few miles of each other,—besides others with the same name who belonged to unrelated Taylor families. At one time, JOHN TAYLOR is called lieutenant or sergeant, deacon or shoemaker; at another, he is husbandman, third, or Junior; or perhaps he is just plain John. Often the same individual is referred to under different designations; sometimes not. Simply because a man was called JOHN TAYLOR, JR., it does not follow that his father was named JOHN; it might be that he was known as Junior to distinguish him from an older JOHN TAYLOR, either related or not, who lived in the same town, while his father enjoyed some other name. Most of these JOHN TAYLORS, after study hardly recognized from the text, have been positively identified. If occasional mistakes should be detected, the indulgence of the reader is anticipated.

15. JOHN[4] TAYLOR (Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Feb. 27, 1714/5; died at North Hampton, Jan. 16, 1795, ae. 80 (VR); Will, Oct. 28, 1792; probated Feb. 18, 1795 (Rockingham Prob., 31:468). Farmer; succeeded to the Homestead on Hobbs Road, North Hampton, where he lived and died. Selectman; Town Leather Sealer for many years. Soldier in King George's War: in 1746, during July and August, was one of fourteen mounted scouts under Capt. Nathaniel Drake who searched ten days for hostile Indians in Nottingham woods "without avail" (Adj. Gen. Rept., 2:92).

1749, June 28, John Taylor was an original grantee of Leavitts Town (Effingham); in 1762, he drew Lot No. 37, First Division, and Lot No. 44, Second Division, the latter being in what is now Freedom; in 1766, when that place was re-granted, his title to the land was confirmed; in a report to the Masonian Proprietors,* 1770, John Taylor had built a frame house on Lot No. 37 and "feld 3 Acres" (N. H. State Papers, 27:237, 245-8, 251-2). Effingham Town Records show he was active in the meetings of the Proprietors held at North Hampton for promoting the new settlement, but it remained for his sons and grandsons to become first settlers —although on other land. In 1791, he sold, for £15, one-half of Lot No. 44 to Levi Marston, who later sold it to John[4] Taylor (17); Lot No. 37 was sold at Tax Sale, in 1800, five years after his decease (Strafford Deeds, 44:134 and 51:113).

As Selectman of North Hampton, 1753, he served with Dr. Dearborn, Thomas Harris, Reuben Dearborn, and Eben Sanborn; in 1754, he was chosen leather sealer, which post he held many years.

He signed the Association Test of 1776, at North Hampton, and all of his four sons were soldiers in the Revolution. In the First Census of the U. S., 1790, he was head of a family in North Hampton consisting of two males over 16 years of age and four females. (See pp. 105, 106.)

His Will is abstracted as follows:

I give & bequeath to my beloved wife Mary, the improvement of one third of the real estate which I herein give to my son Abraham; also the household goods she brought with her.

*See footnote, pp. 48, 49, ante.

I give to my son Joseph Taylor all the remaining part of the share or lot of land where he the said Joseph now lives, containing 24 Acres more or less, bounded easterly on land of Benj. Hobbs, southerly on land of Morris Hobbs, westerly on my own land, northerly on 6 acres which I formerly gave him, the said Joseph. Also one third part of a lot or share of land lying in North Hampton, the whole share containing about 30 Acres, bounded westerly on a road, northerly on land of Morris Hobbs, easterly on land of Sam'l Robey Fogg, southerly on land of Thomas Hobbs, the said third part of the lot to be on the south side of the lot adjoining to said Thomas Hobbs. Also, the one half of about 7 Acres of land lying in North Division so-called, adjoining to land of Samuel Batchelder. Also one third of about 6 Acres of land in Winnicut so-called & said peices are in North Hampton. Also, about 3 Acres of salt marsh lying in Hampton and bounded southerly on Parsonage marsh, easterly and westerly on marsh of Robert Moulton, northerly on Brown's pond. Also, one third part of all my stock and cattle.

to son Richard Taylor 3 shillings.

to daughter Anna, wife of Increase Batchelder, 5 shillings.

to son John Taylor, 1 yoke of steers, 1 heifer, 3 or 4 sheep.

to dau. Elizabeth, wife of Nathaniel Batchelder, 5 shillings.

to dau. Sarah Taylor, 10 pounds, 1 heifer.

to dau. Hannah Taylor, while she remains unmarried, maintenance.

to dau. Mercy Taylor 10 pounds, one heifer.

to son Abraham Taylor, all the remainder of my estate and I do appoint said Abraham, Executor.

He married at Hampton, Jan. 15, 1746, ABIGAIL[5] DRAKE, daughter of Abraham[4] (Abraham[3], Abraham[2], Robert[1]) and Theodate (Robie) Drake, born there, Nov. 28, 1724; died at North Hampton, after Apr. 4, 1755, when daughter Abigail was born, leaving five young children; her emigrant ancestor, Robert[1] Drake, came from vicinity of Colchester, Essex Co., England (not from Co. Devon as in Dow), according to deposition of Nathaniel and Abraham Drake, 1691 (Reg., 21:316); lived in Exeter, before removal to Hampton, 1651; Abigail's mother, Theodate[3] Robie, was a grandchild of Judge Henry[1] Robie or Robey, a prominent man in Hampton from 1650 to death in 1688; he came from England to Dorchester, Mass., 1639; removed same year to Exeter but settled in Hampton about ten years later; Abigail's younger brother, Simon, was ancestor of Samuel Gardiner Drake (1798-1875), eminent antiquary and historian; she is mentioned in father's Will, Dec. 11, 1752, as "my daughter Abigail Taylor" (Wills, Concord).

John Taylor married (2) about 1758, MRS. MARY[6] HOBBS, widow and 2nd wife of Morris Hobbs who died in North Hampton, Apr. 20, 1756, and daughter of Jonathan[4] (Thomas[3], Godfrey[2], William[1]) and Mary DEARBORN, baptised at Hampton, Nov. 5, 1727; buried at North Hampton, Apr. 7, 1806, ae. 79; cause of death, "decay of nature" (Church Recs.); her emigrant ancestor, Godfrey[2] Dearborn, was son of Willam and Agnes, baptised at Willoughby, Lincolnshire, England, Sept. 24, 1603 (Sanborn in Reg., 68:71), a fact which should be specially noted, as he too has been credited, many times, to Co. Devon; he also settled first at Exeter, 1639, but came to Hampton, 1648-1650.

Children of John and Abigail (Drake) Taylor, born at North Hampton (VR):

22. i. ANNA[5], b. Mar. 14 or 16, 1747; m. Dea. Increase Batchelder.

ii. BENJAMIN, b. Oct. 20, 1748; twin; birth not recorded but he and Joseph were baptised Oct. 30, 1748; d. y.

23. iii. JOSEPH, b. Oct. 20, 1748; m. Mary Lovering.

iv. ABRAHAM, b. Dec. 19, 1750; d. Mar. 27, 1830, ae. 79; farmer; occupied part of homestead and lived with half-sisters Sarah and Hannah. He was executor of his father's estate; soldier in the Revolution: guarded prisoners en route from the prison camp in Exeter to Newport, R. I., Feb., 1777, as private in Capt. John Haven's detail; and was at Saratoga (Stillwater), at the "taking of Burgoyne," in Capt. Moses Leavitt's Co. (N. H. State Papers, 14:551 and 15:321). Writes Edward M. Smith, a descendant of half-sister Mercy, "Old uncle Abe Taylor, as he was always called in the family, once borrowed the ox-cart of my great-grandfather, Dea. Morris Hobbs, his nearest neighbor. One morning early, about 3 a.m., Dea. Hobbs intended to start for Rye Beach after a load of rock weed when he recalled that uncle Abe had borrowed the cart the day before and apparently not returned it. He asked Abe about it who drawled, 'Oh, you'll find it down in the field filled-up with potatoes.' Dea. Hobbs gently reminded him he had expected the cart would be returned, to which uncle Abe replied, 'Waal, it's trouble enough to borrow things without having to return them.' " He was unmarried.

28. xi. MERCY, b. Jan. 25, 1769; m. Samuel Chapman.
xii. JONATHAN, bp. June 14, 1772; d. Mar. 22, 1773, ae. 9m.

16. ELIZABETH[4] TAYLOR (Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, July 21, 1709; died there, Oct. 14, 1766. A few days before marriage, Mar. 11, 1737, Elizabeth Taylor of Hampton, daughter of Jonathan, released right in father's estate to her brother John (Deeds, Concord). On the 17th following, she married, as his 2nd wife, JONATHAN[4] ELKINS, son of Jonathan[3] (Gershom[2], Henry[1]) and Joanna (Roby) Elkins, born Oct. 8, 1704. They lived in Hampton.

Children of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Taylor) Elkins:

i. RACHAEL[5] ELKINS, b. Dec. 20, 1737; m. Samuel Towle.
ii. ANNA ELKINS, b. Sept. 12, 1739; d. July 13, 1747.
iii. MARY ELKINS, b. Dec. 9, 1741; m. as his 1st wife, Samuel Nay, son of John (John) and Elizabeth (Ladd), b. 1739; d. Oct. 1, 1817; Capt. in the Revolution; they lived in Hampton and Epping, but about 1784 settled in Raymond. Of their 10 children[6], John Nay went to Georgia, Vt. and had dau. Abigail[7] who m. John Taylor (85), of North Hampton and Effingham, and son Jonathan[7], who m. Sarah A. Taylor (40, iii) (consult Fullonton's Hist. of Raymond, 260).

17. JOHN[4] TAYLOR (Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Jan. 12, 1712; died there, Feb. 28, 1796, ae. 84 (VR); Will made July 2, 1778; probated Mar. 29, 1796 (Rockingham Co. Prob. Recs., 32:107). Farmer in Hampton, called husbandman; lived at Bride Hill on land acquired from his father's heirs between 1736 and 1749 (unpub. Deeds, Concord); the house in which he lived is the old Taylor Homestead, said to be over 200 years old, still standing on land granted to Anthony[1] Taylor, 1669; it was the home of successive generations of Taylors until sold outside the family, 1931, to Mrs. N. Devereux (Regenia M.) Putnam of Washington, D. C., who has renovated the house—retained its original architecture in essential respects and restored much of the interior, such as uncovering an old kitchen fireplace—and now (1935) occupies it as a summer residence (see No. 215).

John Taylor was Selectman, 1751 and 1759; owned considerable land in Hampton, North Hampton and Hampton Falls; and had interests in landgrants in Moultonborough, Sanbornton and Effingham (Freedom). Nov. 5, 1770, he conveyed most of his Hampton real estate, including "where I now live," to sons John and Henry Dearborn Taylor; but the Deeds were not recorded for many years thereafter—that to John, Dec. 28, 1793; and that to Henry, Mar. 19, 1796, the month after the father's decease. These Deeds are important because they positively establish the location of his home at Bride Hill—a fact not previously clear, either from Dow's History of Hampton or family tradition. They are recited in some detail under Lt. John[5] Taylor (30) and Henry[5] D. Taylor (32).

In 1748, Nov. 15, he was petitioner for a grant of land; 1763, Nov. 17, a grantee of Moultonborough; 1764, June 7, drew Lot No. 3, 14th Range, 1st Division; Lot No. 7, 1st Range, 2nd Division; and Lot No. 4, 1st Range, 3rd Division—all in Moultonborough; he was a non-resident proprietor,* his rights there, 1770, being claimed by purchase by Moses Little (N. H. State Papers, 27:521-33).

Also in 1748, Dec. 31, he became an original grantee* of Sanbornton; 1753, Feb. 13, drew Lot No. 60, 1st Division, and Lot No. 74, 2nd Division (Do., 28: 229, 235, 240); these rights in Sanbornton, he conveyed by Deed (same date as transfers above, Nov. 5, 1770, but recorded at Dover), to sons John and Henry Dearborn Taylor (Strafford Co. Deeds, 16:430).

In 1763, Feb. 25, he and wife Sarah deeded to son John Jr., all of Hampton, "part of the estate of Henry Dearborn set to Sarah Taylor by heirship"; and in 1770, Nov. 25, they made a similar transfer (Deeds, Concord).

He signed the Association Test of 1776, at Hampton, and was reported there in the Census of 1790 as head of a family consisting of four males over 16 years of age, one male under 16, and six females. (See pp. 105, 106.)

During the Revolution, he appears to have supplied the American forces with meat. There is a voucher in Hampton Town Records, 1780, showing "13,008 lbs. of beef delivered Capt. Giddings for the State of New Hampshire by the Selectmen." This was six months' supply furnished, June 17, 1778, by John Taylor, for which he was allowed £464 (Toppan Ms.).

In 1794, Jan. 11, then at advanced age of 82, he bought of Levi Marston, for £39, land in that part of Effingham now Freedom. This was one-half of Lot No. 44, 2nd Division (Strafford Co. Deeds, 17:296), which appears in inventory of his estate below. It passed into the hands of son John, Jr., who removed to Effingham (Freedom), about this time, but was originally owned by cousin, John[4] Taylor (15), the grantee.

He owned a pew in North Hampton Meeting House, said pew being inventoried for $60, from which it is inferred that he and family, in later years at least, went there to worship instead of to the old church in Hampton, the former being a little nearer.

By terms of his Will, made nearly eighteen years before death, he made cash bequests to: son John; daughters Sarah Blake, Elizabeth Batchelder, and Abigail Shaw; and grandsons Henry and Simon Batchelder, sons of "my daughter Mary Batchelder, deceased." His son, Henry Dearborn Taylor, was to receive all stock, cattle, horses, sheep and tools of husbandry, and was named as executor. The estate inventoried for $1,278.46 which, added to the property disposed of before decease, valued at £700, was considerably above the average for the times and place. The inventory is given below in full as it illustrates the household effects possessed by our forefathers just prior to 1800. It included:

One moiety (one half) of the dwelling house	$200.00
One moiety of the outhouse	8.00
about 5 acres of land at home	100.00
about 20 acres lying in the half-mile shares	300.00
about 7 acres in North Division shares	70.00
about 4 acres in Winnicut (No. Hampton)	12.00
about 3 acres of salt marsh by great pond (Hampton).	60.00
about 5 acres of same in Hampton, called spring marsh	50.00
2 thatch shares, about 1/1/2 acres, in Hampton	20.00
one pew in North Hampton meeting house	60.00
1/2 a lot in Effingham, 2nd Division	127.00
one yoke of oxen	45.00
two steers	37.00
three steers, 2 years old	27.00
five sheep, two pigs	18.00
one bed and bedding	3.00
wearing apparel, case of drawers and three tables	16.58
crockery ware, pewter and six chairs	1.67
andirons, shovel and tongs	1.00
crane and trammels	1.00
pine escritoir (desk) and books	1.00
pr. saddle-bags, housing and pr. steelyards	2.50
two foot wheels, one woolen wheel	2.00
wooden ware, earthen ware and casks	.50
chains, axes, forks, caps, crow plow and cart	22.00
yokes, bows, staple and rings	1.34
four cows	72.10

The following articles the widow brought with her:

three pine chests, crockery and glass, 34 or 5 pewter platters and plates	4.00
warming pan and ladle	.50
two beds and bedding	(?)14.10
one looking glass, iron and brass ware	1.17

The utter lack of luxuries among rural residents in the "good old days"—not to mention what we consider as "bare necessities"— must be apparent.

John Taylor married at Hampton, Feb. 19, 1734, SARAH[5] DEARBORN, daughter of Henry[4] (Henry[3], Godfrey[2], William[1]) and Hannah (Dow) Dearborn of Winnicut Road (North Hampton), born Feb. 20, 1709; died at Hampton, Dec. 8, 1789. Her emigrant ancestor, Godfrey[2] Dearborn, was son of William[1] and Agnes Dearborn of Willoughby Lincolnshire, England (see p. 91, ante). She was a cousin, once removed, of Maj. Gen. Henry Dearborn, physician; Revolutionary officer; Commander, U. S. Army in War of 1812; Secretary of War; Minister to Portugal. After her death, Mr. Taylor married again—a widow, as indicated by above inventory. This second wife may have been the Sarah Taylor living at Effingham, 1804, who witnessed Deed of Lt. John[5] Taylor (30) to his son John[6] Mills Taylor (53) (Strafford Deeds, 47:15).

18. JONATHAN[4] TAYLOR (Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Mar. 6 (10), 1716; died at Brentwood, Aug. 4, 1784 (FR and VR). Early settler and farmer in Brentwood; part of his land is owned and occupied today (1935) by Taylors of the 8th, 9th and 10th generations. He lived in the northwestern part of the Town, where the Taylors were first settlers, about 3 miles from Epping and 1 1/2 miles from present Fremont.

In 1738, Apr. 4, Jonathan Taylor deeded right in his father's estate in Hampton to brother John; 1743, Sept. 6, called husbandman, of Hampton, he is mentioned in settlement of brother Anthony's estate; three months later, he married at Kingston; and 1747, Mar. 4, his second child was recorded in Deerfield. It is not supposed he lived any length of time in Deerfield, as there is no land evidence.

His first purchase of land in Brentwood was before 1771, probably some years before; at least in that year, Jonathan Taylor of Brentwood bought of Joseph Gilman of Exeter, land in Exeter (Brentwood) near Deer Hill, bounded by land bought by said Jonathan Taylor from Mrs. Mary Gilman. This purchase from Mrs. Gilman has not been found (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 106:390).

In May, 1784, Jonathan Taylor deeded to his son Jonathan "the land and buildings where I now live in Brentwood, which I bought of Wid. Mary Gilman," adjoining land of Nathaniel Prescott and Esq. Lawrence of Epping (Do., 121:509). This conveyance was in lieu of a Will, as he died intestate the following August.

Jonathan Taylor signed the Association Test of 1776, at Brentwood. His date of death, as well as the dates of birth and death of his wife and the birthdates of his children, are not recorded in the vital records, but, fortunately, they are entered in the Taylor Family Bible now in possession of Mrs. Cora B. Taylor of Brentwood, who loaned same to the compiler. (See pp. 105, 106.)

He married at Kingston, Dec. 21, 1743, SUSANNA SMITH (Kingston First Ch. Recs., in N. H. Gen. Rec., 3:41), born Mar. 29, 1722 (FR); died at Brentwood, Nov. 4, 1782 (FR); she was probably a daughter of William Smith (Robert[1] of Salisbury, Mass.) who was born in Salisbury, May 6, 1703

(VR) and came to East Kingston when 21 years of age, says tradition (Hurd's Hist. Rockingham Co., 188).

Children of Jonathan and Susanna (Smith) Taylor (FR):

i. LIDAH[5] (Lydia), b. Sept. 28, 1744; n.f.r.

33. ii. SUSANNA, b. Mar. 4, 1747; m. Samuel Hoit.

34. iii. JONATHAN, b. June 15, 1749; m. Elizabeth (Manson?).

19. ANTHONY[4] TAYLOR (Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Sept. 25, 1719; died Sept. 2, 1742; drowned in Hampton River; adm. of estate granted Apr. 25, 1744 (N. H. Prob. Recs., 3:177).

Tanner; the first one in the Family to bear the name of its Founder; his son, born after the father's untimely death, was also named Anthony, but lived only a few months.

Mar. 12, 1740/1, Anthony Taylor of Hampton, son of Jonathan, deeded his right in father's estate to his brother John (Deeds, Concord). In the settlement of Anthony Taylor's estate, 1744, the Court summoned Bethia Taylor, widow; John Taylor, husbandman; Jonathan Taylor, husbandman; Joseph Taylor, gentleman; and Richard Taylor, yeoman, all of Hampton, "to show cause why administration . . . should not be granted to Gershom Griffith, of Hampton, innholder, principal creditor." Mr. Griffith was duly appointed and the estate appraised by Edward Shaw and Joshua Lane. In the final settlement, July 30, 1746, receipts were £223.4.0 and expenditures £230.5.1.

He married at Hampton, Mar. 18, 1742, BETHIA TUCK, daughter of Dea. Jonathan[4] (John[3], Edward[2], Robert[1]) and Tabitha (Towle) Tuck, born Mar. 17, 1723. She married (2) Jan. 9, 1746, Jonathan Garland, son of Jonathan and Rachael (Dow); lived at Bride Hill "near where the sawmills used to be"; and had three sons.

Child of Anthony and Bethia (Tuck) Taylor, born at Hampton:

i. ANTHONY[5], bp. Jan. 2, 1743; d. Apr., 1743.

20. JAMES[4] TAYLOR (Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Jan. 9, 1724 (1723, Dow); died at Alexandria, now Danbury, Feb. 4, 1794, ae. 70; buried there in

First Cemetery (burying-yard hollow) nearly opposite where he lived (all Fam. Bible Recs.). Farmer; first in Hampton and then in Sandown; in 1772, removed to that part of Alexandria set-off as Danbury, where he was one of the first settlers.

In 1749, Apr. 17, James Taylor deeded right in his father's Hampton estate to his brother John (17) (Deeds, Concord). In 1759, Apr. 2, he and wife Mary, "of Hampton," sold land there to Nathaniel Batchelder of No. Hampton (Do.), and presumably moved soon afterwards to Sandown, near Hampstead line, where the two youngest children were born. They did not live in Hampstead as inferred from family tradition, although they did attend the Church there and were more closely allied socially to that Town (see Hist. of Hampstead). In 1771, Feb. 22, James Taylor and wife Mary, "of Sandown," sold land there to Edward Emmons of Portsmouth (Deeds, Concord).

Nov. 28th, following, he and son Jonathan appear among seven men who had already agreed in writing to settle in the new Town of Alexandria upon promise of 100 acres of land each by Jonas Minot, agent for the Grantees. Minot's report, part of which is here inserted, reflects something of the local temper in the beginnings of the new settlement:

"Honred Sirs (the Proprietors) I Proceeded to Alexandria to Put on Setlers found that All Major Tolfords Pretences to Settle with us weare a peice of Deceit he wos Endeavouring to Possess him Self of the Town Encourageing himself and oathers that when that is Done they will be Safe and Shure to Hold the Town I made Proclamation that all People that would then Ingage to Settle in that Place under the Proprietors the origenall Grantors Should be Received as their Setlers and Have one hundred acres to Each Setler their Performing Duty &c where uppon Jonathan Corless Moses Corless Joseph Basford William Corless James Taylor Jonathan Taylor Asa Hasting all Entered into written obligation to Settle under us & Timothy Stevens & Nathaniel Bartlet Signed for our Setlers but I found my Self Nessietated to wright a Line praying you to Give them a Title for Tolfords & Macmurphy Sons weare Present to use Every meens they Could to Prevent any Person Setling under the Grantors telling the People they Should undoubtedly Hold the Town that they Should Sew those that Setled under us that their Charter wos Not out that the Proprietors Could Not Take

Concord November the 28 1771 Jonas Minot

N B . . . I Just Now heard that they are Sending Som famelys in to Alexandria to winter their" [our italics; see Anthony Taylor (35)]. (N. H. State Papers, 27:25-6; also, see footnote, pp. 48, 49, ante.)

The next spring, 1772, James Taylor and wife removed to that part of Alexandria now Danbury, whither their older son Anthony (35) had gone the previous year as first settler.

In 1775 and 1776, James Taylor signed petitions at Alexandria, the latter being for guns and ammunition for purposes of defense in the "exposed position" in which the first settlers found themselves (Do., 11:11). In the Census of 1790, he was head of a family in Alexandria consisting of himself and one female. His farm was on the road west of Danbury Four Corners,—"up the hill and before one comes to burying-yard hollow"; his son Jonathan built a house on this farm, occupied in Civil War days by Wait(e) Danforth who kept a store there; later, Charles Stickney lived there; the house, still standing (1934), is said to be the oldest house in Danbury.

He married at Hampton, Apr. 7, 1748, MARY[5] TUCK, daughter of Dea. Jonathan[4] (John[3], Edward[2], Robert[1] of Hampton) and Tabitha (Towle) Tuck, born at Hampton, July 6, 1727; died at Danbury, Dec. 25, 1801, "in the 74 yer of her aige"; buried there in First Cemetery (FR). Her sister, Bethia Tuck, married Anthony[4] Taylor (19). Her father was a miller, highly respected and deacon for 39 years; he was great-grandfather of Hon. Amos Tuck, anti-slavery pioneer and a founder of the Republican Party, whose son is Edward Tuck, born in Exeter, 1842; living in Paris, France, 1936; prominent financier and philanthropist at home and abroad.

Mary (Tuck) Taylor was probably the one who made the first entries in a little paper Booklet which has survived to this day; in 1935, it was in possession of Amos[9] L. Taylor of Boston and Belmont, Mass., having been handed down from father to son for five generations. Though yellow with age and very tender, this Booklet is in a remarkable state of preservation, all the entries being reasonably clear, although of course the ink is much faded, especially in the older ones. It now consists of eight paper leaves 8″ x 3″, folded in the middle and stitched with linen thread, so as to make sixteen pages, 4″ x 3″ in size. The entries on the first page, or what is now the first page, give births of three children of James[4] and Mary Taylor, as follows:

"Jonathan Taylor was Born in December
8th Day in yer 1750

June The Sixteenth Day
James Taylor was Born

The 8 Day of May our Mae T.... (torn) was Born

These last two children,—named for each parent, respectively, —died in childhood, both in 1764, twelve days apart; accordingly, it was quite natural that the parents should single them out from the others and record their births as "our James" and "our Mae." Later in the Booklet, the birth and marriage of Anthony, oldest child, is recorded in same hand and faded ink as entries above. For some reason, the three youngest children are not entered. The other entries in the Booklet were obviously made at a later date and by two or more other persons, one of them Priscilla (Clark) Taylor, daughter-in-law (p. 143).

Children of James and Mary (Tuck) Taylor, born at Hampton, except last two at Sandown (baptisms from Dow; births from Booklet referred to and other FR):

35. i. ANTHONY[5], b. Mar. 26, 1749; m. Priscilla Clark.
36. ii. JONATHAN, b. Dec. 8, 1750; m. Dolly French.
iii. JAMES, b. June 16, 1753; bp. July 15; d. June 26, 1764.
iv. MARY (MAE), b. May 8, 1756; bp. June 6; d. June 17, 1769.
v. SAMUEL, b. May 27, 1759; bp. July 23; d. July 8, 1764.
vi. TABITHA, b. Jan. 15, 1762; d. July, 1764.
37. vii. MARY (MOLLY), b. June 9, 1765; m. Peter Smith.

[Some family lists insert another child, Dorothy, b. Sept. 30, 1757, but undoubtedly she is confused with Dorothy, usually called Dolly (French), b. that date, who became Dorothy Taylor as wife of Jonathan (36).]

FIFTH GENERATION

21. ANNA[5] TAYLOR (Joseph[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Chester, Feb. 15, 1741; died at Effingham, Oct. 15, 1811 (FR). In 1752, Mar. 31, aged 11, she was deeded land by Town of Chester; 1756, Feb. 25, she had a guardian appointed for her—Abraham Drake of North Hampton, her future father-in-law (Deeds, Concord). She married at Hampton, Dec. 2, 1760, WEARE[6] DRAKE, son of Col. Abraham and Abigail (Weare) Drake (and nephew of Hon. Meshech Weare, first President of New Hampshire), born at Hampton, Dec. 4 (14), 1738; died at Effingham, 1820 (FR).

They first lived in North Hampton where he built the house owned and occupied by the late Clifford S. Drake, Boston realtor, who, 1932, furnished some of the records below. This is said to be the oldest house in Town still standing; it is situated at the intersection of Lafayette and North Roads, near Drake Bridge over the railroad. About 1762, Weare Drake sold this house and five acres of land to Abraham Drake, and afterwards removed to Leavitts Town, now Effingham, being one of the founders, prominent in its affairs over 50 years. It must not be supposed, as some have said, that he and family went there in 1762; the land was not surveyed until 1761, nor a trail blazed from the "lower settlements" until the year following when the place was re-granted. Barker says the first settler appeared about 1768 (sketch of Effingham, Hist. of Carroll Co.). And it will be noted that Weare Drake's children were all born in North Hampton, as late as 1770. But he was at Leavitts Town before Mar. 8, 1773, when his was one of seventeen families (N. H. State Papers, 27:255).

Children of Weare and Anna (Taylor) Drake, born at North Hampton, except last (Weare Drake's "own book"):

i. JOSEPH[6] DRAKE, b. Oct. 5, 1761; d. Jan. 19, 1765.

ii. BABY[6] DRAKE, b. Feb. 10, 1763; d. next day.

iii. ABIGAIL DRAKE, b. Dec. 8, 1763; d. Jan. 25, 1843; m. as his 2nd wife, Thomas Parsons, Jr.; (2) Benjamin Hobbs; lived in Effingham.

iv. ELIZABETH DRAKE, b. July 11, 1765; d. May 10, 1813; m. Aug. 6, 1786, Asahel Dearborn, son of Josiah; had son[7] Weare, b. Dec. 17, 1787.

v. JOSEPH DRAKE, b. Nov. 2, 1766; d. Oct. 17, 1840; m. Oct. 16, 1791, Lucy Towle; had son, Thomas Parsons Drake, descendants of whom live in Effingham summers.

vi. JOHN DRAKE, b. Nov. 6, 1768; d. Dec. 10, 1836; m. June 10, 1792, Mary Leavitt; descendants res. Effingham, 1932.

vii. MARY DRAKE, b. Aug. 6, 1770; d. 1791; m. John Wedgewood.

viii. ABRAHAM DRAKE, b. Effingham, Nov. 29, 1773; d. there, May 3, 1813; m. Susan Leighton, b. 1781; had son, George Washington Drake, b. Dec. 14, 1799; d. May 27, 1857, who m. Susan Barker and had 3 children[8].

(Additional information concerning Effingham Drakes may be found in Dearborn's Hist. of Parsonsfield, Me.)

22. ANNA[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Mar. 16, 1747; died at Northwood, Sept. 15, 1827, ae. 81 (Cogswell's Nottingham, 630). She married at No. Hampton, Feb. 25, 1769, INCREASE[6] BATCHELDER of Nottingham (Ch. Recs.), son of Samuel[5] (Samuel[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Stephen[1]) and Sarah (Drake) Batchelder, born Dec. 28, 1743; died at Northwood, July 7, 1827. She is named in her father's Will of 1792 as wife of Increase Batchelder. They were pioneer settlers of Northwood where he was a farmer and deacon. Her younger sister, Elizabeth, married his brother, Nathaniel (see 27).

Children of Increase and Anna (Taylor) Batchelder, born at Northwood:

i. JAMES[6] BATCHELDER; his dau.[7] Mrs. Martha Sherburne, lived in Northwood, where he died.

ii. JOHN BATCHELDER, b. Dec. 9, 1776; d. Jan. 21, 1851; m. Betsy Sherburne, dau. of Col. Samuel; (2) Sally Davis; lived in Northwood. 8 Ch.[7].

iii. BETSEY BATCHELDER, b. Feb. 22, 1779; d. May 22, 1838; m. Dea. John Batchelder, son of Abraham and Abigail (Buzzell). 4 Ch. He m. (2) Mrs. Mary Fox (Sanborn) Folsom; lived in Meredith.

iv. ABIGAIL BATCHELDER.

v. MARY BATCHELDER, d. Apr. 1, 1827; m. Abraham Batchelder, son of Abraham and Abigail (Buzzell); lived in Northwood. 7 Ch. He m. (2) Betsey Hoitt, dau. of Samuel of Lee.

vi. MARTHA (PATTY) BATCHELDER (not Fanny; see viii.)

vii. JACOB BATCHELDER, m. Nancy Sherburne; (2) Abigail[6] Taylor, dau. of Joseph (23, vii), q.v.

viii. JOSEPH BATCHELDER, not Increase, as given in the Batchelder Gen., 157, who belonged to another family, according to private letter from Charles H. Batchelder of Portsmouth in 1933.

In the TAYLOR FAMILY, as in most other old New England Families, it fell chiefly to the lot of the young men of the fifth generation to carry on the American Revolution. All TAYLOR sons of the fifth generation were engaged in the War,—either in active military service in the field or in a civil capacity as signers of the Association Test.* All descendants of the men enrolled below are eligible for membership in the Patriotic Societies, such as the D.A.R. and S.A.R. (See Footnotes p. 106.)

JOHN[4] TAYLOR (15) of North Hampton.
JOHN[4] TAYLOR, (17) of Hampton.
JOHN[5] TAYLOR (30) of Hampton (above).
JONATHAN[4] TAYLOR (18) of Brentwood.
JONATHAN[5] TAYLOR, JR. (34) of Brentwood.
JOSEPH[5] TAYLOR (23) of North Hampton (above).
RICHARD[5] TAYLOR (24) of Leavitts Town, now Effingham.
(No Taylors "refused to sign").

*The Association Test of 1776 was a virtual Declaration of Independence by the people of New Hampshire, preceding the National Declaration by several months. It was a referendum on resistance to "one of the most powerful sovereigns of the World"—by force if necessary—and committed practically every male inhabitant either FOR or AGAINST the American Cause. Had that Cause failed, all Signers would have been liable to treason.

Apr. 12, 1776, TEST PAPERS, as the Declaration was called, were submitted to the several New Hampshire towns, whose officers, in turn submitted them for signature to the inhabitants, i.e., males over 21, "Lunaticks, Idiots and Negroes excepted." Some of these Papers are now lost, as not all towns are represented by the returns now preserved in the State Archives and printed in N. H. State Papers, vol. 30—which explains the absence of the names of Anthony and Jonathan Taylor of Alexandria (Danbury), the return from that Town being among those missing.

Throughout the Colony, 8,567 persons signed the Test Papers, while 781 refused, some being Quakers or conscientious objectors who later served with credit in the War. The document read:

. . . "To show our Determination in joining our American Brethren, in defending the Lives, Liberties, and Properties of the inhabitants of the United States:

"WE, THE SUBSCRIBERS, DO HEREBY SOLEMNLY ENGAGE, AND PROMISE, THAT WE WILL, TO THE UTMOST OF OUR POWER, AT THE RISQUE OF OUR LIVES AND FORTUNES, WITH ARMS, OPPOSE THE HOSTILE PROCEEDINGS OF THE BRITISH FLEETS AND ARMIES AGAINST THE UNITED AMERICAN COLONIES."

MEMORIAL CONTINENTAL HALL
WASHINGTON, D. C.

July 10, 1933.

Dear Mr. Taylor:

Answering your inquiry of the 26th ultimo, you are advised that descendants of Signers of the Association Test of 1776 are eligible for membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution. This is considered civil service and as such acceptable for membership.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Mrs. John M. Beavers
Corresponding Secretary General, N.S.D.A.R.

As a matter of fact, every lineal descendant of Anthony Taylor, Founder, is eligible for membership in some one or more of the honorary Colonial and Revolutionary Societies.

23. JOSEPH[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Oct. 20, 1748, twin; died there, intestate, Mar. 27, 1824, ae. 74, "in consequence of a tree which he was felling falling upon him; survived 3 hours" (Ch. Recs.); buried in North Hampton, Center Cem. (GR). Farmer in North Hampton; soldier in the Revolution.

He lived on Hobbs Road, east of and next to his father, whose chief beneficiary he was; occupied part of original Richard Taylor Homestead. In Census of 1790, he was head of a family in North Hampton, consisting of five males under 16 years and three females. [This suggests he had another son besides the four given below. If so, he was probably named Joseph, as the vital records name a Joseph instead of the John here listed. However, the birthdate for John is certainly correct and no other record of Joseph appears. The vital records of the children are otherwise confusing, as Abigail b. 1790 is recorded as the 6th child while Joseph (John) b. 1787 is given as the 7th child.]

Joseph Taylor disposed of most of his property between 1809 and 1815. Of eight Deeds, the first, Dec. 8, 1809, conveys to son John Taylor (41) "one-half the piece of land I now live on with one-half the buildings thereon"; the last, Mar. 30, 1815, conveys to John and Abraham Taylor (brother), land and buildings, wife Margaret relinquishing dower (Rock. Co., Deeds, 189:157 and 208:26). No probate of his estate appears.

In the Revolution, Joseph Taylor was at the Siege of Boston during 1775 and 1776, and in the Rhode Island Expedition of 1778. He enlisted at North Hampton, May 27, 1775, in Capt. Henry Elkins' Co., Col. Enoch Poor's Regt., and on July 7th and Aug. 1st was paid wages for service of one month and two months, ten days, respectively, receiving coat and blanket on latter date (N. H. State Papers, 14:118 and 139). On Aug. 4th, he receipted for money to provision himself "to join the Army at Medford," one of the posts near Boston, amt. £1 10s (do., 158). Oct. 10th, still in Capt. Elkins' Co., he receipted for $4 for a regimental coat (another one ?) and Jan. 5, 1776, as a volunteer from North Hampton, he authorized Capt. Moses Leavitt to draw his billeting money (do., 192, 255). He served these enlistments with his brother Richard. He signed the Association Test of 1776 at North Hampton. In Aug., 1778, his name appears on payroll of Capt. Moses Leavitt's Co., Col. Moses Nichols' Regt. of Volunteers for the Rhode Island Expedition; entered service Aug. 5th; discharged Aug. 27th; travel allowance for 115 miles, same as for known North Hampton men (do., 15:522).

(The above is a typical Revolutionary service record of the private in the ranks. How much it leaves out! In this War, as in all wars, the lowly private had to bear the brunt of the actual fighting. The accumulated service of men and boys like Joseph Taylor, his brothers and cousins, won American Independence. Mostly farmers, farmers' sons, young men learning trades—ill clad, poorly fed, indifferently equipped—they were to engage and eventually defeat the trained, professional soldiers of "one of the most powerful sovereigns of the World.")

Joseph Taylor married at Rye, June 20, 1776, MARY LOVERING (Hist. of Rye), daughter of John and Anna (Sanborn) Lovering, born at Hampton Falls, Dec. 6, 1742; died at North Hampton, Mar. 30, 1806, ae. 48 (Ch. Recs.), discrepance in age unexplained; and (2) at North Hampton, Nov. 14, 1811, MARGARET MASON, of that place, Rev. Jonathan French officiating.

Children of Joseph and Mary (Lovering) Taylor born at North Hampton:

38. i. BENJAMIN[6], b Oct. 21, 1777; m. Betsey Davis.
39. ii. THOMAS, b. Feb. 8, 1779; m. Elizabeth Foss.
40. iii. EBENEZER, b. Oct. 8, 1781; m. Nancy Rand.
iv. LYDIA, b. Dec. 26, 1783; bp. May 3, 1784; d. Dec. 11, 1797 (Ch. Recs.); unm.
v. MARY, b. Mar. 27, 1785; d. Oct. 27, 1864; unm. (GR).
41. vi. JOHN, b. Dec. 16, 1787; m. Betsey Marston.
vii. ABIGAIL, b. Nov. 29, 1790; m. at Greenland, May 18, 1814, as his 2nd wife, her cousin JACOB BATCHELDER, son of Increase and Anna (Taylor) (22, vii); lived in Nottingham. Their only child, except possibly some who died young, was, says Charles H. Batchelder of Portsmouth:
1. ABIGAIL[7] A. BATCHELDER, b. Feb. 19, 1831; m. George W. White.
viii. SARAH (Selle), b. Jan. 26, 1793; bp. Mar. 31, 1793.
ix. ANNA, bp. Sept. 3, 1797; perhaps d. at Stratham, unm., Jan. 30, 1843 (VR).

24. RICHARD[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Mar. 21, 1753 (VR), 1752 (PR); died at Freedom, Jan. 31, 1842 (PR); buried there, Sanborn Lot, Cushing Corner Cem.; grave marked by monument which incorrectly gives his age as 93 years (no dates) instead of 89:10:10. Pioneer settler in Leavitts Town (Effingham); cordwainer (shoemaker) by trade; later lived in Newfield, Me. and Freedom, N. H.; soldier in the Revolution.

The ending of the French and Indian Wars had opened up the wild, unoccupied lands to peaceful settlement. The New Hampshire frontier began moving northward and westward. Richard Taylor, aged 21, joined one of these migratory movements and became one of the early inhabitants of Leavitts Town, soon changed to Effingham.* Jan. 3, 1775, Richard Taylor of North Hampton, cordwainer, bought of Seth Fogg of North Hampton, yeoman, for "£15 lawful money of said Province," the northerly half, fifty acres, of Lot No. 81, 2nd Division, in Leavitts Town, which Lot was formerly owned by Samuel Roby Fogg, original grantee; deed witnessed by Morris Hobbs and Joseph Taylor; recorded Apr. 3, 1775 (Strafford Co. Deeds, 1:296). As an example of conveyances of the period, this deed is given in full as follows:

"Know all men by These Presents that I Seth Fogg of North Hampton in the County of Rockingham in the Province of New Hampshire Yeoman For & in consideration of the sum of £15 Lawful money of said Province to me in hand paid before the Delivery hereof by Richard Tayler of said North Hampton Cordwainer the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge have given granted bargained sold & released & by these presents do give grant bargain sell alien release convey and confirm to him the said Richard Tayler his heirs and assigns forever all the

Richard was the first Taylor to settle in Effingham, followed by others of the Family, as related in succeeding pages. Two descendants of the Exeter Taylor Family also were early settlers there—William and Benjamin, brothers, who came from Stratham. William, b. 1761; d. Parsonsfield, Me., 1820; came about 1780 and is said to have been the first minister and doctor; married Mehitable Low of Stratham and had 9 children. Benjamin married Betsey Titcomb. These were the ancestors of the South Effingham and Parsonsfield Taylors, so many of whom later lived in the former place that the locality was known as Taylor City. Records of these were furnished me (1931) by Fred H. Morgan of Morrill, Me. and Wollaston, Mass. and by Guy Nelson Taylor of Lynn, Mass. (See pp. 79, 80, ante.)

In 1776, Richard Taylor was one of seventeen signers of the Association Test at Leavitts Town. The Town Meeting, Nov. 23, 1778, voted to lay out a road "by Weare Drake's house, thence to Capt. Carr Leavitt's, thence to Richard Taylor's land." His house was a log cabin, as were the first homes, and was in what is still known (1931) to old residents as Richard Taylor's Field, on Lord's Hill (see Map). All signs of human habitation have long since disappeared. He lived here, after his "return from the wars," about thirty years. His name appears occasionally on Effingham Town Records surviving fire. He was surveyor of highways, 1783; fence-viewer, 1792; tithing man, 1796; signer of petitions for Town betterments; school committeeman, 1797, serving on board with Col. Carr Leavitt and Maj. John Taylor (30). In the U. S. Census of 1790, he was head of a family in Effingham consisting of two sons under sixteen and two females.

In or about 1805, he removed to Newfield, Me., selling his farm, Mar. 17, 1805, to Jacob Taylor, "yeoman of Effingham" (not related, see dau. Elizabeth[6], 45, ii) (Do., 40:335). In 1809, Dec. 28, Richard Taylor bought of William Campbell of Newfield (perhaps intended for his father-in-law, William Campernell or Campnell), the southerly half of Lot No. 11, L Range lying in Small's right, Newfield (York Co. Deeds, 81:265); he sold same, Oct. 14, 1815, "with the building thereon," to Thomas Challies of Newfield (Do., 111:217). No other deeds of record appear, but he continued to live in Newfield, perhaps with his wife's parents, until 1832—a residence of 27 years. At that time, he moved to North Effingham, N. H., later set-off as Freedom, where he died some ten years afterwards. He was survived by his wife.

In the Revolution, he was actively engaged the first three years: 1775, New Hampshire coast defense; 1775-6, Siege of Boston; 1776, Ticonderoga (N. Y.) sector; 1777, guarding prisoners to Rhode Island; 1777, Stillwater (Saratoga, N. Y.), at Gen. Burgoyne's Surrender. The Revolutionary Rolls printed in New Hampshire State Papers, vols. 14 and 15, the Pension Rolls, ditto, vol. 30, and especially papers in Richard's Pension Claim S-17721, at Washington, D. C., give the following particulars of his military service:

May 27, 1775, while residing at North Hampton, Richard Taylor ae. 23, enlisted as private in Capt. Henry Elkins' Co., Col. Enoch Poor's Regt., 2nd New Hampshire, and served until Aug. 6th; immediately re-enlisted and was in action rest of year; was first engaged in patrolling the New Hampshire coast: June 15, the Committee of Safety ordered Capt. Elkins "to man two whale boats out of (his) company, & keep them constantly cruising off & on the coast, & direct them to acquaint all vessels bound to Piscataqua, having provisions . . . that the man-of-war there has orders to sieze them; and advise them to get into York, Newburyport, Hampton, or Rye, as they judge expedient." June 18th, "upon receiving the news of the engagement at Charlestown" (Bunker Hill), it directed Col. Poor to order all the Companies in his Regiment, except Capt. Elkins', "to march immediately to Cambridge." June 26th, it directed "Capt. Elkins to order his Boatmen to put into the Shoals & bring to Hampton any Cannon Shot they may find there, if the People at the Shoals will allow it to be done." Aug. 1st, it ordered Capt. Elkins to march his Company immediately to join the Army at Medford, for participation in the Siege of Boston. These four orders by the Committee of Safety to Capt. Elkins' Co., the organization to which Richard Taylor then belonged, dispose of the following Dec. 9th to Ira Moulton at Portsmouth, attorney for his widow, Hannah Taylor.

Richard Taylor married HANNAH CAMPERNELL, daughter of William Campernell of Ipswich, Mass. and Newfield, Me.; her birth, death and marriage are not recorded, but she was born at Ipswich, probably about 1756; died after Dec. 9, 1842; buried in Sanborn Lot with husband, Cushing Corner Cem., Freedom, ae. 88 (gravestone).

Her ancestry is very unusual in colonial history in that her ancestor, David Campanell, was a Spanish Jew*—a product of the migration of Jews, driven from Spain by Ferdinand and Isabella, to Holland and Brazil, some of whom, much later, came to New Amsterdam (New York), and then to Newport, R. I. In 1698, Oct. 5th, David Campanell, mariner, arrived at Newport in the sloop Speedwell from New York (R. I. Land Evidence, 2:79; original in State Library, copy at R. I. Hist. Society). He must have been related to Mordecai Campanall, historic Jew at Newport as early as 1658, said to have first introduced the Masonic Order in America (Am. Jewish Hist. Colls., 19:9-20). Very likely, he was the David Campanell, "Jew from Rhode Island," warned out† of Boston, June 15, 1726 (Boston Rec. Com. Rept., 10:154) and the David Campanal, "a Jew," who died at Ipswich, Oct. 17, 1732 (VR). At least four generations of Campanell are found in Ipswich Vital Records (printed); after the first David, they all seem to have em-

*All Jewry is divided into two groups—the Sephardim and the Ashkenazim; the former (Spanish Jews) flourished in the Mediterraneum Basin, especially when the Moors governed Spain, but there are comparatively few in the World today (only 40,000 in the U. S., 1930); the latter (German Jews), of northern and eastern Europe, are now by far the more numerous (about 4,190,000 in the U. S., 1930). The Jews, who came here in the pre-Revolutionary period and were prominent in colonial history, were Sephardic; the Ashkenazic congregations were established much later. Eminent Sephardic Jews: Spinoza, Disraeli, U. S. Supreme Court Justice Cardoza.

_The American Jewish Hist. Colls._ give much interesting information on these migrations; see also Settlement of the Jews in North America, 1893, Daly; Jewish Pioneers in America, Lebeson; History of the Jews in America, 1931, Wiernik.

†Before and after this time, it was common practice in New England for town authorities to "warn out" certain persons, i.e., refuse to allow them to settle within their jurisdiction; this applied especially to persons likely to become public charges, but was also frequently employed against the early Scotch-Irish immigrants and others.

braced Christianity—at least they all took Puritan wives and husbands and certainly their friends and neighbors were of that faith. In the middle 18th century, the Campernells are noted by Waters in his History of Ipswich for their skill in the art of weaving. Scattered evidence invites the idea that the name was corrupted, in some lines, at least, to Campbell. Variously spelled in early records as Campanal, Campanall, Campernall, Campanell and Campernell, in later New Hampshire records,—after the Revolution,—it appears more than once as Campnell; I have been unable to find but one of the above variations in New England within recent years, but there were Campbells in Newfield, Me., shortly after the Campernells moved there.*

William Campernell, father of Richard Taylor's future wife, was born in Ipswich, Mass., May 27, 1739, son of David (David[2], David[1]?) and Hannah (Newmarch) Campernell; weaver in Ipswich; for five years soldier in the Revolution, including the Battle of Princeton; in 1818, received Pension, giving details of service (Certificate 17690), at which time was living in Newfield, Me., ae. about 80; he removed from Ipswich to Newfield before 1791 (Hist. of York Co., Me.) and died there after Mar. 4, 1825, date of last Pension payment and before 1838, when he had been dead "several years"; he had a son, William Jr., b. at Ipswich, 1759 (not recorded), who in 1834 was living in Solon, Somerset Co., Me.; this son appears in an unfortunate light; for some years after his parents' death, he posed as his father in order to obtain his Pension; he was eventually discovered. (PR). William Campernell, Sr. married thrice: (1) name unknown, the mother of Hannah and William Jr., above; (2) at Ipswich, Jan. 23, 1762, Mrs. Jemima (Mina) Hurlburt who died Nov., 1762; and (3) at Ipswich, Jan. 12, 1765, Wid. Elizabeth Hodgkins, who may have been the widow Campernell who died there, Feb. 11, 1774.

The Campernell propensity for skill in weaving seems to have found expression in Hannah in needlecraft work; a sampler wrought by "Hannah Campernell" is still in existence and in 1935 was in possession of descendants, Mrs. Cora[8] (Dennett) Huse and Mrs. Emma[8] (Dennett) Skinner of Wakefield, Mass. The wedding ring of Richard and Hannah (Campernell) Taylor was, 1931, in possession of her great-great-grandchild, Mrs. Gertrude[9] (Crawford) Abbott of Melrose, Mass.

26. JOHN[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Aug. 25, 1759; died at Candia, of an accident, Oct. 24, 1821, ae. 62 years (VR). Shoemaker by trade; early settler in Effingham and then in Candia, where he was much respected; Revolutionary soldier.

Jan. 31, 1781, he bought from Weare Drake 30 acres of land in Effingham, at which time he was a cordwainer of North Hampton. The following March, still of North Hampton, he bought 20 additional acres in Effingham from John Leavitt. These tracts adjoined each other and were in Lots 94 and 88, 2nd Division, respectively, near Lord's Pond (Strafford Co. Deeds, 4:67). It is presumed he settled on the land and was the John Taylor, called Captain, active in Effingham affairs, 1785-1790, as moderator, deacon, tax assessor and highway surveyor; however, it may be noted that John Taylor of Candia, Nov. 22, 1786, sold the above property to Benjamin Hobbs (Do., 33:323); also, that he is unidentified in any Town in Census of 1790, unless he is the John Tyler of Candia listed as having in his household three sons under 16 and three females.

He appears in Candia on tax lists of 1800, 1810 and 1820. He lived on the Colcord road and his house was the first erected in the vicinity; it burned in 1882. In 1807, John Taylor bought 5 acres in Candia "on the new road," in Lot No. 7, from Benjamin Bean of Candia; in 1811, he sold 16 acres there, part of Lots No. 9 and No. 10, to Eleazer B. Cheney, also of Candia (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 179:83, 200:46). He was Justice of Peace, and Representative in the State Legislature, 1807, 1811 and 1812. "On Oct. 20, 1821, he was driving his ox-team down the Colcord road, near his home, when he fell and one of the wheels of the cart passed over his body." He died four days later (Moore's Candia, 244). Nov. 2, 1821, son Daniel Taylor was made executor of his estate, with Hosea Chase of Candia and Benjamin Jenness of Deerfield; Bond posted at $3,000 (Rockingham Co. Prob., 46:92).

From his Pension Record, Claim W. 22367, paid to widow on her application executed Oct. 20, 1838, at Candia, we learn: he enlisted in the Revolution at Hampton; only 18 years of age, he served about four months in 1777, as private in Capt. Moses Leavitt's Co., Col. Abraham Drake's Regiment, and was at the Surrender of Burgoyne (Saratoga, N. Y.); and nine months in 1778 in Gen. Sullivan's Rhode Island Expedition, Capt. Gile's Co., Col. Peabody's Regiment.

He married at Hampton, May 4, 1780, HANNAH BROWN, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth (Kenniston) (Johnson) Brown, born at Hampton, Apr. 23, 1760; died at Candia, Apr. 7, 1848, ae. 88; Will dated Jan. 27, 1847; probated Apr. 6, 1849; names only daughters Hannah Batchelder, Betsey Thresher, Mary Moore, son-in-law John Moore, Esq., executor (Rock. Co. Prob., 84:78). Her mother, Elizabeth Kenniston, married (1) Elisha Johnson who died Oct. 15, 1752; they had son Elisha Johnson; it was for this half-brother that Hannah named her first child. She was named executor in her son Daniel Taylor's Will, but May 9, 1833, the year after his death, she petitioned the court to be excused, "it being inconvenient for me to administer on the estate and having no son living within 100 miles and out of the State."

Children of John and Hannah (Brown) Taylor recorded at Candia, but first (and probably others) born elsewhere:

ELIZABETH[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Apr. 29, 1761; baptised May 3; died Oct. 26, 1842, ae. 81; named in her father's Will as "my daughter Elizabeth, wife of Nathaniel Batchelder." She married at North Hampton, Jan. 10, 1782, NATHANIEL[6] BATCHELDER, both of North Hampton (Ch. Recs.); he has been confused with another of same name and his line incorrectly given in the Batchelder Gen. as well as the Hist. of Hampton, according to Charles H. Batchelder of Portsmouth, who made special study of the Family; this Nathaniel was son of Samuel[5] (Samuel[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Stephen[1]) and Sarah (Drake) Batchelder, born June 30, 1755; died Mar. 12, 1803.

She married SAMUEL CHAPMAN, son of Samuel[4] (Job[3], Samuel[2], Edward[1] of Ipswich, Mass.) and Abigail (Hobbs) Chapman, born at North Hampton, Dec. 14, 1756; baptised Dec. 19; died there, Sept. 8, 1840, ae. 83; farmer; they lived in North Hampton on the Chapman Homestead, Sanborn Road (now Walnut Ave.), in a house which he built, is still standing, and, 1934, was owned by William E. McFadden who purchased it from descendants about 25 years ago; they had seven children, records of whom were furnished by Edward[8] M. Smith of North Hampton (vi. 7, c, below).

29. MARY[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]) born at Hampton, Apr. 15, 1737; died before July 2, 1778, when named in her father's Will as deceased. She married, as his 1st wife, DAVIS[6] BATCHELDER, son of Henry[5] (Samuel[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Stephen[1]) and Mary (Marston) Batchelder, baptised at Hampton, Sept. 1, 1734; died Oct. 5, 1816; farmer; they removed to Northwood about 1770 and there lived. Mary's younger sister, Elizabeth (31), married his brother Samuel—a second instance of Taylor sisters marrying Batchelder brothers (compare (22) and (27). Mr. Batchelder m. (2) Ruth Palmer of No. Hampton and (3) Mrs. Marston of No. Hampton; by these marriages 14 children, four of whom were living, 1847 (Reg., 7:245).

Children of Davis and Mary (Taylor) Batchelder, born at No. Hampton (Consult Cogswell's Northwood, 635 and Batchelder Gen., 159):

i. HENRY[6] BATCHELDER, b. June 5, 1755; d. Northwood, Dec. 10 (20), 1810; called Capt. Henry; named in grandfather Taylor's Will; m. Sally Randall. 9 Ch.[7]

ii. SIMON BATCHELDER, b. Mar. 5, 1758; d. Northwood, Mar. 10, 1847; at the outbreak of the Revolution, he and a companion went to Winter Hill (Somerville, Mass.), walking all day and night, enlisting next morning; was in Capt. Adams' Co., Col. Poor's Regt. and served at Boston, Newport, and Ticonderoga; named in grandfather Taylor's Will, 1778; farmer and deacon in Northwood, highly respected; his funeral sermon was preached by Rev. E. C. Cogswell and is noted in N. E. Hist. and Gen. Register, 7:245. He married, Apr. 4, 1778, Rachel Johnson, dau. of Benjamin, b. Nov. 14, 1756; d. Jan. 5, 1830. 7 Ch., a dau. being ancestress of Mrs. Madeline P. Britton of New Haven, Conn., helpful contributor.

iii. MARY BATCHELDER, d. young.

30. LIEUT. JOHN[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Sept. 21, 1740; prob. died at Effingham, after Mar. 10, 1812. Farmer in Hampton; removed to Effingham about 1795; officer in the Revolution.

He first lived on a farm at Bride Hill, near his father's, extending toward Stratham and North Hampton lines (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 118:263). In 1763 and 1770, he was deeded by his parents land in Hampton which formerly belonged to his maternal grandfather, Henry Dearborn. In 1767, Feb. 3, he was chosen to serve on a committee "to rebuild the Parsonage House . . . at 45 shillings old tenor and a gallon of rum per day" (Dow, 410). Nov. 5, 1770, he paid his parents £250 for three pieces of land, all in Hampton, described as follows:

26 acres, bounded northerly by highway leading from Bride Hill to North Hampton; southerly by land set-off to Esther Dearborn as part of her third in her late husband's estate; easterly on land of Samuel Page; and westerly on land of Robert Moulton.

27 acres, bounded easterly on highway leading from Exeter to Hampton; westerly on Ass Brook; northerly on land of William Sanborn and wife; and southerly on land of John and Enoch Fogg.

4 acres of salt marsh, being that piece of marsh set-off to Sarah Taylor as her share in her father Henry Dearborn's estate. This Deed was not recorded until Dec. 28, 1793 (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 135:423).

In 1776, John Taylor signed the Association Test at Hampton and is counted there in the Census of 1790 as head of a family consisting of two males over 16 years of age, two males under 16, and three females. In 1793, Jan. 27, he sold his house, "where I now live," to John Fogg of Hampton Falls. His homelot consisted of nine acres bounded "easterly on a priviledged road and land of Simon Sanborn; southerly on land of Col. John Dearborn; westerly on a roadway; and northerly on country road." With this property, he also conveyed 42 acres nearby, called the Wolf-pen, the abutting owners being Peter Tilton, John Fogg, Simon Sanborn and estate of Nathan Tilton (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 137:151). In 1794, Dec. 8, he sold 27 acres, partly in Hampton and partly in No. Hampton, to Morris Hobbs of North Hampton (Do., 147:218); this land seems to be the first item in Deed of 1770 above.

The previous year, Sept. 16, 1793, John Taylor of Hampton, Esq., bought land in Effingham (in what is now Freedom) from Phillips White—Lot No. 35, 2nd Division (Strafford Co. Deeds, 19:246); he sold it with other land to Thomas Cutts, Nov. 15, 1802, at which time he was of Effingham (Do., 51:315). Still of Hampton, Jan. 10, 1794, called gentleman, he bought 60 acres in Effingham (now Freedom) from Joseph Towle—part of Lot No. 33, 2nd Division, but in 1795, Mar. 2nd, he had become John Taylor Esq. of Effingham, when he purchased Lot No. 36, 2nd Division from Levi Marston (Do., 20:45). He disposed of part of this property in 1798, and the remainder in 1806, with other real estate, to son John Mills Taylor (Do., 29:251; 40:52 and 51: 380-1). He succeeded to his father's land in Effingham (now Freedom) as evidenced by his sale, May 14, 1799, of 100 acres, Lot No. 44, 2nd Division, to William Allen (Do., 44:135). This last was part of original grant, 1762, to John[4] Taylor (15). In 1804, Nov. 17th, he conveyed all his personal estate to son John M. Taylor, to which deed, Sarah Taylor, presumably his stepmother, was witness (Do., 47:15). He was party to other Deeds not here mentioned. The above are considered most important as they establish his identity, show what became of him after his disappearance from Hampton records, and separate him from at least six John Taylors who owned land in Effingham during his lifetime and first lived in Hampton or North Hampton.

At Effingham, he was known as Major John Taylor. In 1796, he was candidate for representative to the State Legislature against Col. Carr Leavitt, receiving 17 votes to 36 for the latter. In same year, he was selectman and appears to have held that post on several occasions. In 1797, he was on a committee "to pay for the preaching," while in 1800, with Redmon Moulton and Thomas Lord, he constituted the school committee for District No. 1. Effingham Town Records which survived the fire mention him in other capacities, the last being, Mar. 10, 1812, when he was surveyor of highways.

His exact date of death is unknown; he died intestate but, as noted, he had disposed of his personal estate by Deed in 1804 and his real estate by other Deeds.

In the Revolution: Apr. 20, 1775, upon receipt of news of fighting at Lexington and Concord, John Taylor marched as a private in Capt. Elkins' Co. of Hampton Minutemen to the assistance of Massachusetts, but was ordered back after reaching Ipswich (Toppan Ms.). May 26th following, he was Sergeant in Capt. Elkins' Co., Col. Enoch Poor's Regiment, and was engaged in this and Capt. Leavitt's Co. in coast defense duty and the Siege of Boston during 1775 and 1776 (Rev. Rolls, N. H. State Papers, 14:118, 137, 158, 192); in 1777, he was at Burgoyne's Surrender, as Sergeant in Capt. John Dearborn's Co., Col. Jonathan Moulton's Regiment of N. H. Militia, which marched from Hampton to re-inforce the American Army under Gen. Gates at Saratoga (Do., 15:411). In a list, dated Oct., 1777, "of those persons belonging to Hampton who went to Saratoga with Col. Moulton," included among the Town records, he is referred to as Lieut. John Taylor (Toppan Ms.)—the same title given him in the birth records of his two youngest children. He served in other roles: for instance, Apr. 7, 1777, Lieut. John Taylor was recruiting officer at Hampton (Dow, 262). Since he received no Pension, he probably died between

Mar. 10, 1812, his last appearance on Effingham records, and about the year 1818.*

He married at Hampton, Mar. 4, 1759, ZILLAH MILLS (VR), whose parentage is unknown; she was related in some way, possibly his daughter, to John Mills who died at Hampton, May 29, 1780, ae. 87; she was born Dec. 14, 1739 (FR) and was living at Hampton, Dec. 8, 1794, when she joined with her husband in deed of sale of Hampton property. She accompanied her husband and children to Effingham, probably later removed to Exeter with her son, John Mills Taylor, and was the "widow Taylor" who died there, May 25, 1824 (VR). There is some reason to believe she descended from John Mills of Scarborough, Me., whose people were among the three or four hundred inhabitants who evacuated the Maine settlements in 1690, retreating into New Hampshire, before a strong force of French and Indian raiders.(See Maine Hist. Colls., 3:137-8 and Hist. of Hampstead, N. H., 343.)

*Date of first general U. S. Pension legislation. To qualify for a Pension, soldiers had to prove nine months or more service, but were supposed to be in indigent circumstances; however, more claimants applied than could have survived from Washington's Army, and in 1820, Congress passed the Alarm Act, which required each claimant to file an inventory of his estate and income; many petitions were dropped who possessed as much as $150 in property. Numerous Acts followed liberalizing the law but service pensions to widows were not granted until 1836 (Messages & Papers of the Presidents, v.20, Pensions).

55. ix. HENRY DEARBORN, b. Jan. 4, 1784; m. Abigail Lord.

31. ELIZABETH[5] TAYLOR (John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Nov. 23, 1744; died Nov., 1813; named in her father's Will. She married, June 14, 1764, SAMUEL[6] BATCHELDER, son of Henry[5] (Samuel[4], Nathaniel[3], Nathaniel[2], Stephen[1]) and Mary (Marston) Batchelder, baptised Aug. 23, 1741; died Jan. 7, 1822.

Children born at Hampton (Batchelder Gen., 159):

i. JOHN[6] BATCHELDER, bp. Apr. 17, 1768; d. July 15, 1809; m. 1791, Abigail Prescott, dau. of James and Mary (Lane); lived in No. Hampton. 9 Ch.[7]
ii. SARAH BATCHELDER, bp. July 7, 1771.
iii. SAMUEL BATCHELDER, bp. Oct. 15, 1780; d. June 5 (12), 1857; tailor and farmer; prominent in Christian Baptist Church, No. Hampton; m. Sarah Leavitt, dau. of James. 14 Ch.

32. HENRY[5] DEARBORN TAYLOR (John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Jan. 21, 1746; died there, Jan. 3, 1803; buried on his farm; Will, Mar. 4, 1796; probated Feb. 14, 1803. Farmer in Hampton; succeeded, by Will and Deed, to the Homestead at Bride Hill, active management of which he undertook about 1770, and where he always resided.

Nov. 5, 1770, he was deeded by his father, to whom he was to pay £450, the following property:

40 acres in Hampton, "where I now live," bounded easterly on land lately Josiah Shaw's, deceased; westerly on land of Capt. Jeremiah Sanborn; northerly partly on land of said Sanborn and partly on land of John Fogg; and southerly on highway running from Exeter to Hampton.

40 acres in Hampton, with buildings thereon, bounded easterly on land of John Fogg and Abraham Brown; southerly on the several lands of said Brown, Daniel Brown and Samuel Melcher; westerly on land of said Jeremiah Sanborn; and northerly on highway above mentioned.

18 acres in Hampton, bounded easterly on road leading from highway above mentioned to North Hampton; westerly on land of Robert Moulton, Jr. in part and land of Jonathan Shaw in part.

Also, a certain piece of salt marsh in Hampton Falls. (Deed recorded Mar. 19, 1796, the month after his father's decease, Rockingham Co. Deeds, 141:449).

Also, land in Sanbornton, as per Deed same date (Strafford Co. Deeds, 16:430).

He signed the Association Test of 1776 at Hampton, but does not appear as head of a family in the Census of 1790, presumably being included with his family in that of his father, with whom he lived.

By terms of Will, Henry Dearborn Taylor left his land in Sanbornton, "near Jeremiah Sanborn's," to son Jonathan; the Homestead at Bride Hill to son Samuel D., who was named executor; and legacies to daughters: Sarah Mills, wife of Jacob; Meribah Lane, wife of Simon; Abigail Moulton, wife of Jonathan; Susannah Loveren (Lovering), wife of Samuel; and Zillah and Eunice Taylor, minors.

He married, Feb. 7, 1765, SUSANNAH SIBLEY (VR), reported at Hampton, daughter of Samuel[3] (Samuel[2], Richard[1] of Salem, Mass.) and Meribah (Bartlett) Sibley, baptised at Salem, Mass., Mar. 13, 1742/3 (VR); died at Hampton, Mar. 14, 1814. It should be specially noted that her name and parentage are as given above; that she was not Susannah Cilley as stated by Dow and widely copied.

Children of Henry Dearborn and Susannah (Sibley) Taylor, born at Hampton (1st eight recorded; ix. and x., FR; xi., Dow):

i. SARAH[6], b. Dec. 13, 1765; d. prob. after 1803; m. at Hampton, Nov. 15, 1785, Jacob Mills, prob. the one of that name in Effingham who, 1808, deeded land to John Mills Taylor (53); she was named in her father's Will as wife of Jacob Mills, which precludes her from being the mother of Taylor Page of Lee, whose descendants are given in Scales' Hist. of Dover, 343. Jacob and Sarah (Taylor) Mills may have had children but none are recorded.

56. ii. JONATHAN, b. Jan. 14, 1767; m. Abigail Moulton.

57. iii. MERIBAH, b. July 22, 1769; m. Simon Lane.

iv. ELIZABETH, b. June 27, 1770; d. Aug., 1771.

v. ABIGAIL, b. Dec. 28, 1772; d. after 1803; m. Nov. 18, 1791, as his 1st wife, Jonathan Moulton of Hampton

Falls, son of Redmond of Effingham. Ch. (Moulton Annals):

1. JONATHAN[7] MOULTON.
2. REDMOND MOULTON.
3. SIBLEY MOULTON.
4. NATHANIEL MOULTON.
5. IRA MOULTON.
6. NABBY MOULTON.
7. HANNAH MOULTON.
8. ELIZA MOULTON.

vi. SAMUEL, b. Jan. 17, 1776; d. Jan. 8, 1777.

vii. SUSANNAH, b. Nov. 22, 1777; d. after 1803; m. at Exeter, Mar. 8, 1796, Samuel Lovering of No. Hampton, son of Simon D. and Anna; lived in No. Hampton (Ch. Recs.).

viii. DEARBORN, b. Nov. 29, 1779; d. Apr. 11, 1781.

58. ix. ZILLAH, b. Jan. 10, 1784; m. Daniel Drake.

59. x. SAMUEL DEARBORN, b. July 13, 1786; m. Phebe Stevens.

xi. EUNICE, b. Mar., 1789; m. Feb. 6, 1804, Jacob Chase; n.f.r.

33. SUSANNA[5] TAYLOR (Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born Mar. 4, 1747 (FR), recorded at Deerfield; died after 1797. She married SAMUEL HOIT, son of Benjamin and Mary (Collins) Hoyt, born Feb. 16, 1741; died testate, 1797, says Hoyt Genealogy from which we quote: "they lived in that part of Nottingham set-off as Deerfield; tradition tells he was a man of remarkable strength; all his teeth were double; he participated in the Boston Tea Party." But on p. 52, it states that Samuel's wife was Susanna Graves, whereas the birth records of their children give her maiden name as Taylor.

Children born in Deerfield (VR):

i. MARY[6] HOIT, b. Sept. 23, 1768; m. Apr. 17, 1794, Stephen Merrill; rem. to Vermont.

ii. TAYLOR HOIT, b. Dec. 26, 1772; d. 1820-30.

iii. SUSANNA HOIT, b. Mar. 18, 1775; d. unm.; lived on the homestead in Deerfield; she seems to have inherited her father's remarkable strength, for "she could lift a barrel of cider over a wagon wheel."

iv. LYDIA HOIT, b. July 27, 1778; m. John Merrill; rem. to Vermont.

34. JONATHAN[5] TAYLOR (Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Brentwood(?), June 15, 1749; died there intestate, Mar. 5, 1816 (FR). Farmer in Brentwood; succeeded to the Homestead in May, 1784; owned other land in Deerfield, Epping and Sandwich.

He signed the Association Test of 1776 at Brentwood. In the Census of 1790 he is listed there as head of a family consisting of two males over 16 years of age, himself included, four males under 16 and five females.

Feb. 27, 1788, Jonathan Taylor bought 10 acres in Brentwood from the estate of Jonathan Shaw, deceased, for which he paid £43.13.11. (The original receipt, signed by Samuel Cram as administrator, is a small piece of paper only 2 x 4 3/4 inches in size and is now (1933) in possession of Mrs. Cora B. Taylor of Brentwood.) In 1795, Dec. 4, he sold 21 acres in Nottingham, now Deerfield, part of Lot No. 11, 3rd Range, 3rd Division, to Samuel Hoit, Jr. of Deerfield, his brother-in-law? His wife, Elizabeth Taylor, joined in signing the Deed; witnessed by Jonathan Taylor, Jr. (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 140:413). In 1813, May 19, he conveyed to son Samuel Taylor of Brentwood two parcels of land: 50 acres in Brentwood, "the home place where I now live," located on the north side of road from the Baptist Meeting House to Exeter, abutting land of Samuel Cram on the west, Josiah Shaw and Joseph Smith on the east, and Jeremiah Prescott to the north; and 38 acres in Epping, bounded westerly by land of Orlando Morrill and Samuel Cram, southerly by Jeremiah Prescott, easterly by Dudley Gordon, and northerly by said Gordon and Edward Lawrence; recorded June 12, 1815 (Do., 209:420).

Mar. 13, 1816, eight days after his decease, Susanna and Lydia Taylor, "spinsters," and Joseph Taylor, all of Brentwood, release "to our brother Samuel Taylor of Brentwood" all right etc . . . "to the estate of our Honored father, Jonathan Taylor, late of Brentwood." On this same date, Nathaniel Taylor of Sandwich acknowledged receipt of land in Sandwich "from my father Jonathan Taylor of Brentwood"; also, all claim to another piece of land in Sandwich, called the Blackly Pasture, which belonged to "my late brother William Taylor" (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 209:421).

His wife was named ELIZABETH as shown by Deed of 1795, the only mention of her found in the records; her last name may have been MANSON as this is the only suggestive name given to her children or grandchildren not otherwise explained; a family tradition is that one of the Taylors married an Indian girl. Was Elizabeth a Manson (Mansur, Munson), an Indian, both, or neither?

Children of Jonathan and Elizabeth Taylor (as per Deeds, except vii. whose birth is given in Bible; order uncertain):

i. JONATHAN[6], b. abt. 1773; prob. of age, 1795, when witness to Deed above; prob. d. before 1816, as he is not named in settlement of father's property.

ii. SUSANNA, unm. 1816.

60. iii. WILLIAM, m. Anna ——.

iv. LYDIA, unm. 1816.

v. JOSEPH, living in Brentwood, 1816; the year before, he sold to his brother Samuel Taylor, 6 acres "lately bought of Jeremiah Prescott, "being partly in Brentwood and partly in Epping, adjoining his own land and that of Jonathan Taylor; he was only signatory to Deed (Rock. Co., 208:211); n.f.r.

61. vi. NATHANIEL, b. abt. 1784; m. Dorothy ——.

62. vii. SAMUEL, b. Sept. 8, 1788; m. Phoebe Colcord.

(Others probably died young.)

35. ANTHONY[5] TAYLOR (James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Mar. 26, 1749; baptised there, Apr. 30, 1749; died at Danbury, Jan. 2, 1826, in 77th year; buried in First Cem. (burying-yard hollow), west of Four Corners, up the hill and opposite present Wells farm (FR). First white settler, 1771, in what is now Danbury; founder and leading citizen of that Town: first Selectman; Charter Mem. No. 1 of Church and first Deacon; farmer; Corporal in Revolution, 1777; lived west of the old Grafton road nearly opposite present Eastern Cem., half the land for which was donated to the parish out of his farm.

We are fortunate in having a written account of his pioneer life practically dictated by his grandson, Moses[7] L. Taylor (134) to the latter's son, Frank[8] Leavitt Taylor, who presented same at the Centennial of Danbury Church,

Aug., 1909. Some of the following information, not otherwise credited, is from this account:

When about ten years of age, Anthony accompanied his parents from Hampton to Sandown. As early as the fall of 1769, he and Amos Clark, Jr., brother-in-law-to-be, then of Hampstead, went on a hunting trip up the Merrimac. "They were in search of furs, but they also wished to locate land on which they might later settle—especially fertile meadow land, such as existed in the Merrimac Valley, which would not require too much clearing. They ascended the Merrimac by canoe to what is now Franklin, then up the Pemigewasset to a point about two miles south of present Bristol where a stream came in from the west. A man named Smith had built a mill there and this stream has ever since been called Smith's River. They followed Smith's River through the wilderness, passing over parts of present Bristol and Hill into what is now Danbury, most all of which was then Alexandria. When nearly opposite the place where Joshua Jackson (68, iii.) lived years afterwards, they came in view of an Indian Village; they were frightened and hastily beat a retreat, unperceived by the Indians. The next time they came up the river, they found the Indian habitations deserted and it appeared there must have been an epidemic which had filled the graves on the hillside nearby, and perhaps the living, being superstitious, fled the locality. This Indian burying place was on rising ground behind the Jackson barn, long since burned, on the right of road to Danbury Village. Many Indian relics have been found there by experts in aboriginal remains."

On one of their trips, presumably the second, they located claims. Anthony's claim comprised what for more than 165 years has been called Taylor Meadows, drained by a large brook, flowing into Smith's River. This brook was known as Taylor Brook. Amos Clark's claim, on which his brother Jonathan subsequently settled, was a mile or more to the south on the River, near present Clark Bridge, and has been known for generations as the Clark farm, formerly owned by Stillman Clark (later, his nephew Fred L. Clark), until recently in possession of descendants.

[One family account says it was Jonathan Clark who accompanied Anthony Taylor on these trips of exploration. But this seems unlikely because of the former's youthful age at the time. Also, another account states it was Amos Clark, Jr. The reason for the idea it was Jonathan Clark probably originated in the fact that he, not Amos, was the first of the name actually to settle in what is now Danbury, and became the ancestor of all the Danbury Clarks.

Jonathan Clark, son of Amos and Sarah (Kelly) Clark, was born at Hampstead, Apr. 30, 1756, three months after his father's death, and so was about seven years younger than Anthony Taylor; he was only thirteen years old in 1769, and fifteen years old when his sister and her husband—Priscilla and Anthony—made their historic journey. On the other hand, Amos Clark, Jr., an older brother, born Oct. 22, 1751, was only two years the junior of Anthony Taylor and therefore was of a more companionable age for such hazardous adventures; also, Amos Clark may be found in Hampstead, Census of 1790. [Dates from records kept by Priscilla (Clark) Taylor in the little Booklet referred to in Account 20.]

Young Anthony Taylor lost no time in securing legal title to his claim. His first Deed, original of which is now in possession of his great-great-grandson, Amos[9] Leavitt Taylor (313) of Boston and Belmont, Mass., was dated Dec. 22, 1770, by which William Tolford of Chester, gentleman, later a grantee* in the re-grant of Alexandria, conveyed to Anthony Taylor of Sandown, Yeoman, "in consideration of one pound Laful money" of the Province of New Hampshire, one-half of Lot 46, 2nd Division, in Alexandria Township. Witnesses: John Tolford, Edmund Bushee. This Deed was acknowledged, Dec. 25, 1770, before Matthew Thornton, as Justice of Peace, later Signer of the Declaration of Independence for New Hampshire. The purchase consisted of about 90 acres and was the original of the Taylor Homestead to which additions were later made. It descended through each succeeding generation and now (1935) consists of some 315 acres, still in the Taylor family, owned by Anthony's great-great-grandsons, Amos L., Scott F., and Henry A. Taylor.

As early as the fall of 1770, before the title was obtained, Anthony Taylor had "cut trees" on this land, and by the spring of 1771, cleared "near 4 acres; also planted a few Taytors," as shown by report to the Masonian Proprietors at Portsmouth, July 22, 1771 (N. H. State Papers, 27:20). In a similar report the next month, Aug., 16th, he had fulfilled the conditions of settlement; his Lot was stated to include 100 acres (Do., 27:22). Both reports list him as Non-Resident, and he is the only subsequent Danbury settler named.

"Nov. 25, 1771, we moved to Alexandria" (i.e. Danbury). This is the statement set down in the Booklet previously referred to, under James[4] Taylor (20) and was undoubtedly made by Priscilla, Anthony's wife. It is also the date of the first settlement in Danbury as given in N. H. State Papers, vol. 9, p. 826, printed 1866. In view of such evidence, we must discard the tradition that the removal was earlier in the season of this year and conclude that Nov. 25th (Monday) was the actual date that Anthony and Priscilla, with their babe in arms, took up residence in Danbury (see also Minot's report, pp. 99, 100, ante; also note report, above paragraph, in which he was non-resident, Aug., 1771.) "We moved to Alexandria"—a simple statement for a seventy-mile journey, part of it through wilderness to a log-cabin home, with winter almost at hand, where the nearest neighbor was ten miles distant at Smith's Mill!

. . . "He placed his wife and little Judith on a horse with such as the horse could carry, while he went on foot leading. They proceeded up the River Valley to Smith's Mill and then cut a path through overland to save some distance. Anthony is stated to have said it was ten miles, but in fact it is about eight miles by the present road . . . Priscilla rode on a feather bed; while crossing a brook, the feather bed caught on the branch of a tree and was pulled off, depositing all in the icy water . . . The log cabin into which they moved was the usual type; it had one large window with glass which they brought. The chimney was built from stones from the ledges now east of the highway running through the Taylor property. The floor was laid from split-logs with the flat (?) side up. (One of these floor logs, after the cabin was demolished, was built into a barn erected later by grandson Moses L.) . . . West of the cabin, ten or fifteen rods nearer the meadow, was the campsite occupied by Anthony when building the first home. Tradition says this campsite was marked by an apple tree planted from a seed which Priscilla brought with her. The tree lived to great age and was pointed out to descendants in each generation; it is now gone but a shoot has matured on the spot and may be seen today—the oldest looking tree of a group, standing alone on the bank which divides the upland from the meadow, a few hundred feet west of the highway . . .

The family occupied the log cabin for several years; Anthony set-out a number of trees, especially apple trees, which were grown from seeds in pots and then transplanted, the first tree being the only one which grew from a seed actually planted in the ground."

In the spring of 1772, Anthony Taylor sowed rye on the upland, near the cabin. Amos Clark, Jr. is said to have come up and helped him, but Amos did not settle in Danbury. Other settlers began to arrive in small numbers, among the first being Anthony's brother Jonathan (36); their father James (20) and his wife; later, brothers-in-law Peter Smith (37) and Jonathan Clark. Joshua Jackson, who married Anthony's daughter Mary (68), did not come until 1800, or just before, tradition to the contrary.

. . . "When Anthony and Priscilla first arrived on the location and the time came for prayers, they could not find the Bible. Finally, they located a single page, which they read and re-read at family devotions—every night and every morning—for a long time, until the rest of the household goods could be brought in by hand-sled from New Chester (Hill)." (This incident is also recited in Lawrence's Hist. of New Hampshire Churches.) This Bible, for a long time, was considered lost, but recently a part of it is believed to have come to light among old books of a descendant.

. . . "While Anthony was gone for the household goods, being away over night, Priscilla dared have no fire, for fear the smoke would attract roving Indians who could be heard chopping in the woods . . . All at once the window darkened and Priscilla saw the grinning face of an Indian pressed against the pane. She was frightened but tried not to show it; the Indian made friendly signs to be admitted, and, fortunately, when let-in, proved to be friendly; held the baby on his knee and played with her. In broken English, he explained he lived nearby and had a son at the Mission School at Hanover (for the education of the heathen), later Dartmouth College."

Not long after 1776, Anthony Taylor built what was then a pretentious dwelling-house, known for years as the Mansion House, south of the log-cabin and nearly opposite present Eastern Cemetery on the highway. Here he resided until his death in 1826. There is no record just when this house was erected but the date may be fixed with reasonable accuracy. The original purchase consisted mostly of meadow land and did not provide a suitable site for a permanent residence. Aug. 12, 1776, Anthony Taylor bought of Robert MacMurphy, a Proprietor in the re-grant of Alexandria, 19 acres adjacent to his first lot. This tract did contain an excellent site for house, barn, other buildings and garden.

The house, erected on this land, was undoubtedly commenced soon afterwards. Its raising was an important event in the life of the new settlement. Friends and neighbors* for miles around attended, as it was customary to make a holiday of these raisings, with plenty to eat and drink. Anthony was very angry because somebody appeared with Medford rum and passed it around. This house continued to be the Taylor residence for more than a century until it burned, in 1882, with most of its contents; after which Frank[8] L. Taylor (230), great-grandson, built a new house on the other side of the farm, across the meadow and nearer the Village. This house also burned, 1890, and was not re-built. Today there is not a building on the entire property.

Dec. 25, 1775, Anthony Taylor was a petitioner protesting the method of choosing a representative (Musgrove's Hist. of Bristol, 247).

June 28, 1776, he was a petitioner for guns and ammunition for purposes of defense (N. H. State Papers, 11:12). He cannot be said to have signed the Association Test of this year, as the return for Alexandria is among those lost (see page 106), but undoubtedly he did.

In the early summer of 1777, Burgoyne's Army on its southward invasion from Canada was threatening the Americans at Ticonderoga. The whole country-side was alarmed. The call went out for the Militia and was heard even in the remote hill towns of New Hampshire. (See Roberts' Rabble in Arms for a vivid description of these times.) At Plymouth, Capt. Willoughby recruited a Company "from adjacent towns" for Col. David Webster's Regiment. In this Company, Anthony Taylor was Corporal and his brother Jonathan a Private. They marched from Plymouth, July 5th, "to re-inforce the Garrison at Ticonderoga and proceeded as far as Cavendish (Vt.), when retreating troopers brought news that the Fort had been evacuated." The Company then returned home and, July 16th, was discharged. For this service, including travel allowance for 106 miles (out at 3 d. per mile; home at 2 d. per mile), Anthony Taylor was paid £4. 1s. 9d (Do., 15:124).

*A Census, about 1775, reported as many as 32 families then living in Alexandria (N. H. State Papers, 11:11).

In the Census of 1790, he appears as head of a family in Alexandria consisting of two sons over 16 years of age, two sons under 16, and five females. He kept a record in his own excellent handwriting of the vital statistics of his family (see his Bible, another page), to which descendants are indebted as town records are lacking.

He led in the movement for the organization of the new Town of Danbury as a separate political division from Alexandria. In 1794, Dec. 24, he was petitioner for such a division (N. H. State Papers, 11:19). At this time, he appears as Selectman of both Alexandria and New Chester, and as such, petitioned, June 10th the next year, for a committee to run a line between those Towns (Do., 21). Eight days later, June 18, 1795, Danbury was set-off from Alexandria and, undoubtedly, he became one of the new Town's two Selectman. He certainly is so identified in record dated Nov. 26, 1798 (Do., 477-8), and very likely served in this capacity for a period of years.

In 1808, he was chosen what would now be known as a Director of the New Chester and Danbury Turnpike Corporation, formed to build a highway from Union Bridge in New Chester to Grafton Turnpike at or near George's Mills in Danbury. The pike was built soon afterwards (Hist. of Bristol, 1:124).

He was also the leading spirit, as appears from the records, in the formation of the first Church in Danbury—the Congregational Society. This seems to have been formed, June 20, 1800 (another account specifies Nov. 14th), as a branch of the Salisbury Church, when "A Committee previously appointed . . . attended with the pastor, Rev. Thomas Worcester, at Danbury and there Anthony Taylor and his wife, Jonathan Taylor and his wife, Jonathan Clark, Rebekah wife of Thomas Huse, and Sally wife of John Adams—were admitted into communion with the Church" (Salisbury Church Records, as communicated by Mrs. Kate A. Jackson of Bethlehem).* Following negotiations largely carried on by Anthony Taylor, Danbury Church, some eight years later, was organized as an independent society, Feb. 9, 1809. (This is the actual date of organization but the event is celebrated in more seasonable months—the Centennial in August, 1909; the 125th Anniversary in May, 1934.) At the first church meeting, Anthony Taylor was chosen moderator and first deacon; Joshua Jackson, clerk; Jonathan Clark, second deacon. The Charter Members were: (1) Anthony Taylor; (2) Jonathan Taylor; (3) Jonathan Clark; (4) Joshua Jackson; (5) Peter Smith; (6) Dorothy Taylor; (7) Elizabeth Pillsbury; (8) Eleanor Jackson; (9) Mariam Clark; (10) Mary Smith; (11) Lydia Winchester; (12) Polly Winchester; and (13) Susanna Brown.*

*Prior to 1800, when the branch Church was established, Danbury residents worshipped at Alexandria Meeting House (Rev. Enoch Whipple), 10 miles distant. Afterwards, they enjoyed occasional preaching of their own and held religious gatherings regularly in their homes. Sometimes male and female members would attend the main Church at Salisbury, walking or riding the 17 miles each way over rough roads, often returning the same day, although frequently going on Saturday and staying-over (Lawrence, New Hampshire Churches, 528).

Many of the early meetings of the new congregation were held in Anthony Taylor's home, as there was no church building or settled pastor. The first church edifice was built in 1828, Rev. John Winter, pastor. It was erected on the front end of the Church Lot, the rear portion of which was reserved for the burial ground—the second one—now Eastern Cemetery (Centennial Sketch by Charles[8] S. Taylor (245), in Manchester Union, Aug. 15, 1909). This Church Lot lay between the Taylor and Jackson farms, each family contributing one-half the land. The Church remained here until 1855. The Northern Railroad had been extended through Danbury (first train, 1847) with its "fast passenger service to Boston" (only two and one-half days being needed for the trip!) and a village had grown-up around the railroad station—hence the old Meeting House was dismantled and moved to its present site. The Taylor family still own pews in this Church, although none of the name are now resident; but the Taylors, Clarks and Jacksons have always been prominent in its affairs. The Eastern Cemetery presents a silent record of these old families, the overwhelming number of those there buried being of these names or their descendants.*

But before Alexandria or Salisbury, the first settlers—at least the Taylors—kept up an affiliation with the far-removed Hampstead Church where the first ties were formed. Anthony and Priscilla Taylor, as members 130 and 131, owned the covenant there, June 22, 1770; their first born, Judith, was baptised there; their second James, "the first white child born in Danbury," was carried to Hampstead and baptised, 1773; Jonathan Taylor returned there to be married, 1779, and three years later owned the covenant there and had two sons baptised; as late as 1792, Judith Taylor, the babe previously mentioned, now grown-up, went to Hampstead to be married. (Consult Noyes' Hist. of Hampstead Church).

*To these were soon added Matty Favour and Sarah Tolford, wife of Capt. John. The original record of these proceedings, with new Covenant and baptisms during the Salisbury connection, is before me; it is a 24 page booklet, about 3 1/2 x 6 in. and appears to be in Anthony Taylor's handwriting. Cf. Church Manual, 1856, printed.

Despite the two burnings of the houses on the Taylor Homestead, several interesting personal possessions of Anthony Taylor have survived:

(1) Old Account Book—the day-book type once commonly used, about 6″ x 14″ x 1″; some of the entries, beginning in 1818, are believed to be in Anthony's hand; these are charges, not only for about everything a farmer could do, but also for settling estates and drawing papers—indicating that Anthony was sought for legal advice and did considerable work of that nature in the community.

(2) Pewter Snuffbox—perhaps used as such by Anthony, but now serving descendants as an ash tray.

(3) Joanna Paige's Bible (she was Anthony's second wife)—an Oxford Bible, printed 1769, by T. Wright and W. Gill, Printers to the University and sold by R. Baldwin and S. Crowder, in Paternoster Row, London—and by W. Jackson, in Oxford; contains records of her Paige and Reed families, inscribed "Joanna Paige, Her Bible, 1771;" entries in her handwriting.

(4) Pocketbook—a somewhat elaborate affair of hard leather, about 2 1/2″ x 4 1/2″, bound by strap.

(5) Taylor Family Bible, inscribed on inside front cover in his handwriting, "The property of Anthony Taylor June th24 year 1802," about 10″ x 8″ x 3″ in size, printed Edinburgh, by Mark and Charles Kerr, His Majesty's Printers, 1795, with full Apocrypha; in Anthony's hand are the births of his entire family and the first deaths—all as clear and distinct as when first entered. In England, during Anthony's lifetime and prior thereto, I understand it was common practice to place in churches and certain public places what was called a Chain Bible, i.e. a Bible fastened to a table or shelf and chained so that it could not be taken away, but might be read by anyone who desired. Apparently Anthony knew of and sought to follow this custom, bolting his Bible to a shelf in the public room of his home, where it remained open at all times and could be consulted by members of the community as well as the household; the holes through the four corners of each cover where they were bolted are clearly evident; the covers are badly worn, the binding across the back is gone, and the edges of the leaves are very much worn and soiled where they have been turned and thumbed so much; but the inside of the Bible is in comparatively good condition.

*May 19, 1934, at the 125th Anniversary Celebration of the founding of the Church, "in grateful recognition on the part of those remaining members of the family of Anthony Taylor, the first settler in the Town of Danbury and a first member of the First Church in Danbury, to associate forever with the work of our Church the names of their honored ancestors," the chapel was dedicated as Taylor Memorial Chapel. The historical address was delivered by Amos^{9} Leavitt Taylor (313), direct descendant.

Anthony Taylor married at Hampstead, May 17, 1770 (published Feb. 4, 1770), PRISCILLA[6] CLARK, daughter of Amos[5] (Jonathan[4], Daniel[3], Edward[2], Edward[1] of Haverhill, Mass.) and Sarah (Kelly) Clark, born at Hampstead, Mar. 13, 1749 (five different family records give this birthdate; Hist. of Hampstead, 1:407, gives 3 m. 17 d. 1749, i.e. May 17, 1749); died at Danbury, Apr. 14, 1802, "in 54th year of her age." (Her father, Amos Clark, was b. Jan. 12, 1719; d. Jan. 10, 1756; her mother, Sarah Kelly, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Emery), was b. West Newbury, Mass., Oct. 6, 1718; d. Apr. 12, 1804, in 86th year). Priscilla Clark was the 4th of eight children given in Booklet, pp. 101, 135, 136, ante; she not only entered therein the births of her children, but the actual date of the first settlement in Danbury, Nov. 25, 1771—the original source evidence. Of her brothers: Moses Clark settled in Warner; Amos, Jr., 5th child, was of Hampstead; Jonathan, youngest and posthumous, came to Danbury.

As with most of the pioneer women, Priscilla's participation in her husband's activities must be largely imagined —with the allusions above and the children below as a guide. However, it is easy to picture the courage possessed by this young woman, who consented to go to a frontier home in the wilderness, face approaching winter with a small baby, —no neighbors, no Church,—and live there in a log cabin in fear of Indians and wild animals, bearing eight children and raising them to adult life. All honor to Priscilla (Clark) Taylor, first white woman in Danbury!

Anthony Taylor married (2) Mrs. Joanna (Paige) Reed, daughter of Cornet John and Rebekah Paige of Bedford, Mass., born June 15, 1746 (VR); died at Danbury, July 26, 1820, "in 75th year of her age" (FR). [Her father, John Paige, was b. Oct. 11, 1703; d. Bedford, Mass., Feb. 18, 1782 (VR); her mother, Rebekah, d. Bedford, Mass., July 12, 1755, ae. 43 (VR), when Joanna, 9th child of 14, was nine years old (FR). Joanna Paige married (1) at Lexington, Mass., July 25, 1771, Samuel Reed of Woburn, Mass. (MR says she was then of Bedford), born 1741; died in Grafton, N. H., Feb. 23, 1798 in 57th yr. (FR); he belonged to the Woburn Family of Reeds, a descendant of William[1] whose sons George and Ralph were first settlers; Samuel Reed and wife removed early to Grafton, N. H., had five children; their descendants, including several clergymen, became one of the leading families of the section. Following Mr. Reed's death, his widow re-married as above, bringing her youngest child, Rebekah, to live in Anthony Taylor's household; (this daughter m. Anthony's son Amos (67), q.v.). She also brought with her two books of historic interest; these came from her Bedford home and were part of volumes taken from Harvard College, carried to Lexington, Concord and vicinity, and hidden in private homes for safe-keeping when the British invaded that territory; the tradition is that these books were part of a lot concealed in the Paige home and afterwards sent back to Harvard, but for some reason these particular volumes were not returned. "I remember seeing these books; they were large, heavy volumes, bound in sheep, much worn and dirty, stamped in red Harvard College, of a theological nature; they were burned in the first fire."]

36. JONATHAN[5] TAYLOR (James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Dec. 8 (3), 1750; baptised there, Dec. 16, 1750; died at Danbury, May 13, 1832, in 82nd year; buried Eastern Cem. (FR). One of the founders of Danbury; farmer; Revolutionary soldier; ancestor of a larger number of descendants than any other Taylor son of his generation—with progeny now living in Canadian Provinces, Florida, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, New England, etc.

He moved with the family to Sandown; in 1771, he and father were among seven men who had agreed to settle in the new Town of Alexandria in return for 100 acres of land; in the Spring of 1772, he built a log-cabin in that part of Alexandria set-off (1795) as Danbury, to which he brought his parents, who lived with him until after his marriage seven years later.

In 1775 and 1776, Jonathan Taylor was a petitioner from Alexandria—the latter year, for guns and ammunition for defense in the "exposed position" in which the first settlers found themselves. In July, 1777, he answered the Ticonderoga Alarm as a private in Capt. Willoughby's Co., Col. David Webster's Regt. of N. H. Militia, which marched from the vicinity of Plymouth to the relief of the Garrison at Ticonderoga; they proceeded as far as Cavendish (Vt.) when news was received by retreating soldiers that the Fort had been evacuated, whereupon the Company returned home and was discharged July 16th. (See p. 139, ante). He appears promptly to have re-enlisted, being the Jonathan Taylor, private, on payroll return of Capt. Edward Elliot, Col. David Hobart's Regt., Gen. Stark's Brigade, which marched against the British "from Plymouth and towns adjacent, July 21, 1777, to assist in operations around Saratoga resulting in Gen. Burgoyne's Surrender;" he was discharged Sept. 27, paid for 2 mos. 7 days service, and his travel allowance was for 70 miles to the rendezvous at Charlestown No. 4 and 170 miles home"—the same allowance as for known Danbury men (N. H. State Papers 15:150, 160).

Two years later he married and thereafter was chiefly occupied in raising a family of fourteen children, only one of whom died in infancy, while eleven lived to be over fifty. His farm was located at Danbury Four Corners, on the old road to Alexandria and descended from father to son until 1869; it was recently occupied by Fred Flanders. Jonathan's farm also had a brook known as Taylor Brook, so named on U. S. Geological Survey map, 1927; it flows into Smith River on east side of Taylor Hill.

We find these additional records: 1782, Jan. 12, Jonathan and Dorothy Taylor owned the covenant, as members 145 and 146, of the Hampstead Church (Congregational), at which time their first two children were baptised. In the Census of 1790, he was head of a family in Alexandria consisting of six males and two females, i.e. six sons, wife and daughter. In 1800, he and wife were among the seven admitted to full communion in Danbury as affiliate members of the Salisbury Church, and in 1809, they were among the thirteen charter members of the newly organized, independent Danbury Church, he as No. 2 and she as No. 6.

He married at Hampstead, Feb. 17, 1779, DOROTHY[7], called Dolly, FRENCH, daughter of Joseph[6] (Joseph[5], Joseph[4], Joseph[3], Joseph[2], Edward[1] of Salisbury, Mass.) and Judith (Dimond[2] or Diamond) French, born at South Hampton, Sept. 30, 1757; there baptised, Nov. 6, 1757; died at Danbury, Sept. 24, 1831 (FR). She is said by some to have a Mayflower line through the Frenches to John Alden, but I think not. The idea may have originated in the belief she was related to Rev. Jonathan French, pastor over fifty years at North Hampton, who is so descended (Reg., 11:281); but his is a different French Family. Joseph[6] French, father of our Dorothy, was son of Joseph and Hannah (Gould), and was born at Amesbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1732; died at Hampstead, Nov. 8, 1808; was Captain and Major of Militia in the Revolution. His wife, Judith[2] Diamond (Dimond on N. H. Vital Records), was daughter of Ezekiel and Miriam (Fowler). Ezekiel[1] Diamond emigrated from Devonshire, Eng., about 1725, to South Hampton where daughter Judith was born in 1734. (Consult Noyes' Hampstead, 2.)

37. MARY[5] (MOLLY) TAYLOR (James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Sandown, June 9, 1765 (FR); died at Danbury, July 25, 1843, ae. 78 (GR). She married, about 1784, PETER SMITH, born in or near Brentwood, 1761; died at Danbury, Apr. 19, 1841, ae. 80; both buried in Baptist Cem., graves marked by marble slab with double inscription reasonably legible. He was a soldier in the Revolution (GR), enlisting at Brentwood, Apr. 16, 1777, when only 16 years old; served three years in Washington's Army until discharged Apr. 16, 1780; mustered, May 6, 1777, private, Capt. James Gray's Co., Col. Alex. Scammell's 3rd N. H. Continental Regt. and received state bounty of £20; was one of the "immortals" at Valley Forge, in Capt. Titcomb's Co., Jan. 2 to June 2, 1778 (War Dept. Recs.). No Pension Record reported.

Peter Smith came to what is now Danbury soon after the War; was a farmer and tavernkeeper; settled near School Pond. About 1804, assisted by his boys, he built a large house, moved to its present site when the Post Road to Grafton was put through; this became known as The Tavern, being the regular stopping-place for stages to Grafton; here Peter and Molly resided the rest of life; here lived three generations of Smiths in each of which was a Capt. Smith, so-called; a descendant, the late George[8] W. Bean (iii, 4, below), bought the place, 1924, now occupied by his widow.

In Census of 1790 Peter Smith was head of a family in Alexandria (Danbury) consisting of two males under 16 and two females. In 1809, both he and wife were charter members of Danbury Church, he as No. 5 and she as No. 10.

SIXTH GENERATION

38. Benjamin[6] Taylor (Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Oct. 21, 1777; died at Effingham, May 11, 1850; buried in family lot on his farm. Early settler in Effingham to which he removed about 1800; his first home was a log cabin in District No. 2, followed by a frame house, later occupied by son Elijah and still standing, but long ago disposed of by descendants. About 1825, he built the dignified Colonial-type house, located a mile from Center Effingham Village going west toward Ossipee, where five generations have lived, now known as the old Taylor Homestead; owned and occupied, 1935, by his great-great-grandson, Harold[10] Taylor Potter (264, ii).

During his residence of half a century, Benjamin Taylor acquired much farm property and livestock; was highway surveyor many years; highly respected. A Deed of 1827, in possession of Edith[9] Knowles Taylor of Effingham, discloses the fact he leased 50 acres of land from the Town for a period of 999 years. He was a master carpenter by trade and many important buildings in Effingham and neighboring towns are monuments of his skill, including the "Old Squire Lord Mansion," built in 1822, now the summer residence of a Boston broker; and the quaint Porter (Me.) Meeting House, built in 1824. The latter, with its unique pew arrangement, is considered one of the finest examples of country church architecture of the period. On the ground floor a tier of pews extends entirely around the four walls, excepting space on the north side occupied by the pulpit and space in each opposite corner, at the entrances, from which winding flights of stairs lead to the balcony. The pews are the enclosed type, with door or gate, ornamented with molded balustrade supported by turned balusters about eight inches apart. The balcony likewise illustrates a high degree of craftsmanship.

The following entry from his account book used in the building of this Church is informative as to wages paid for skilled labor about 110 years ago:

"John Moulton and David Colket, the Committee of the Meeting House for Porter, detered to Benjamin Taylor:

Aug. 14. (1824)	24 days	work on meeting house	$18.00
Aug. 28.	23 "	" " " "	17.00
Sept. 4.	18 "	" " " "	12.00"

Four weeks skilled labor for $18, or $4.50 per week!

He signed his Will, Feb. 4, 1850; probated, Dec. 7, 1852; son Timothy Y., chief beneficiary. By its terms:

Thoughtful provision was made for his widow; in event of death of son Timothy Y., estate was to go to latter's sons in this order: Benjamin F. 2nd, Joseph S., or Timothy C.; $100 bequests to son Joseph D. Taylor and daughter Betsy Nutter; $50 to daughter Sally Neal; and smaller bequests to son Elijah Taylor; and (relationship not stated) Lydia Ann Huntress, Nancy Spencer, Benjamin Drake, Weare Drake.

Witnesses, John Drake 2nd,
James W. Libbey and Thomas P. Drake
(Carroll Co. Probate Recs., 49:46 1/2).

Benjamin Taylor married, about 1799, ELIZABETH (BETSEY) DAVIS, born at Gilmanton (dau. Elizabeth's death record), about 1783; died at Effingham, Oct. 13, 1845, ae. 62 years (GR); buried in family lot; the mother of the fourteen children; she was daughter of Elijah Davis (Nathaniel[5], John[4], Moses[3], John[2], James[1]) of Gilmanton, baptised in Dover, Jan. 29, 1750 (Register, 41:90; and FR). About 1849, Benjamin Taylor married (2) Charlotte ——who survived him.

Children of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Davis) Taylor, born at Effingham:

39. THOMAS[6] TAYLOR (Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Feb. 8, 1779; died at Stratham, Aug. 17, 1864, ae. 85 (VR). Stone-cutter and farmer; first lived in North Hampton. Mar. 6, 1817, called husbandman, he sold to Thomas Lovering of No. Hampton "the house in which my family now lives (on land) bounded southerly by road from No. Hampton Meeting House to Stratham and easterly by land of said Lovering" (Rock. Co. Deeds, 216:217). This was on the old Sanborn or Brumble Hill Road, now Walnut Ave., just west of Winnicut River, on land believed to have been owned, 1790, by William Palmer; the house is still standing in good condition and in 1935 was owned by William Kopanski. Thomas Taylor afterwards lived in Stratham. He married at Greenland, 1803, ELIZABETH FOSS, born at Rye, June 6, 1784 (VR, parents not stated); died Apr. 21, 1873 (FR).

84. vii. HENRY H., b. 1825; m. Olive Leighton Randall.

40. EBENEZER[6] TAYLOR (Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Oct. 8, 1781; died at Effingham, May 7, 1846; buried in family lot on his farm. Stone-cutter; operated a brickyard in Effingham whither he removed in 1834, although his first residence after marriage was in Stratham and then North Hampton again. May 2, 1833, he and son Elvin, "stone-cutters of North Hampton," bought of James Titcomb land in Effingham, one half of Lots No. 74, 75 and 76, 1st Division, "burying ground in Lot No. 74 excepted" (Strafford Co. Deeds, 155:383). Here, assisted by older brother Benjamin, he built a home, the buildings of which were standing in 1930, owned by Howard Wheeler. Ebenezer Taylor died intestate; Sept. 8, 1846, Silas M. Morse was appointed administrator of estate; only widow Nancy mentioned.

He married at Rye, NANCY RAND, daughter of Nathaniel and Sarah Rand, born there about 1784; died at Effingham, Dec. 12, 1856, ae. 72 (GR).

41. COL. JOHN[6] TAYLOR (Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Dec. 16, 1787; birth incorrectly recorded under name Joseph; baptised at North Hampton, "first Sabbath, Jan., 1788"; "died when at his daughter's in Pittsfield or vicinity, Feb. 17, 1855, ae. 67 years; N. B. he was Col. John Taylor"; buried Center Cem. This last quoted entry from records of No. Hampton First Congregational Church, in the handwriting of its pastor, Rev. Jonathan French, with the N. B. before it, sets at rest previous uncertainty as to the identity of Col. John Taylor.

He was called gentleman in Deeds; also, Junior, to distinguish him, not from his father, but from another John Taylor, perhaps his cousin (43); succeeded to his father's place by Deeds of 1809 and 1815, but later lived on Winnicut Road near Greenland and Stratham lines, where George E. Barton resided, 1934. Mar. 2, 1819, John Taylor, Jr., gentleman, sold land in North Hampton "on road to Stratham" to Jonathan Shaw and Morris Hobbs, Jr.; wife Betsey relinquished her right of dower; Deed also signed by stepmother Margaret Taylor (Rock. Co. Deeds, 223:27); also, Mar. 27, 1819, sold land in North Hampton on Greenland line to John Brown (Do., 221:260); was still living on Winnicut Road, 1836, but at time of death, was "of Greenland."

As his title implies, he was active in the New Hampshire Militia and, in 1823, was Lt. Col. of the 3rd N. H. Regiment commanded by Col. Jacob Noyes (Hist. of Hampton Falls, 267). His estate was probated May 7, 1855; real estate $250, personal $205.50; son-in-law Nehemiah Pickering, adm.; the petition states "deceased died leaving no widow, and Elizabeth A. Pickering, wife of Nehemiah, is the daughter and nearest relative residing in the State."

He married at Hampton, Apr. 14, 1814, BETSEY MARSTON (VR), daughter of Capt. Jonathan and Lydia (Robinson) Marston, born at Hampton, May 19, 1789; died at Greenland, Oct. 3, 1848; blind twenty-one years; buried Center Cem. (GR).

Children of Col. John and Betsey (Marston) Taylor, born at North Hampton:

43. JOHN[6] TAYLOR (Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, about 1789; died at North Hampton, May 7, 1852, ae. 63 (Ch. Rec. and GR); buried there in Family Lot, Center Cem.; Will, Jan. 8, 1850; prob. June 9, 1852; Rufus Leavitt, adm. Stone-cutter.

The tradition is: "John Taylor came to No. Hampton as a young man looking for work from somewhere back in the State; worked for and lived with a family named Fogg and married the daughter, Mary called Polly." He lived on Atlantic Ave., nearly opposite present Pine Road, "in a house torn down 50 or 60 years ago; most of the old homestead is now out of the family, but part of the farm was owned and occupied (1934) by great-grandson Frank A.[9] Taylor (172, iii). Dec. 15, 1840, John Taylor and wife Mary deeded to son John 4th, minor of No. Hampton, all right etc. "which said Mary Taylor has as heir-at-law to the undivided one-half in real estate of John Fogg, late of Hampton." (Rock. Co. Deeds, 302:22; 307:393). His Will mentions wife Mary and children then living.

He married at No. Hampton, Aug. 7, 1817, MARY FOGG (VR), daughter of Dr. John and Sarah (Dearborn) Fogg, born at Hampton, about 1797; died there, Aug. 16, 1882, ae. 85, "the oldest member of the Church"; buried beside her husband.

Children of John and Mary (Fogg) Taylor, born at North Hampton:

i. Daughter[7], b. Nov. 3, 1817; d. "12 days later."

ii. JOHN FOGG, b. June, 1819; d. Feb. 16, 1821.

iii. JOHN 4th, bp. Sept. 16, 1821; d. there, Aug. 16, 1846, ae. 25 yrs.; writes Rev. Jonathan French; "he yesterday committed suicide by discharging the contents of a gun loaded with shot into his right breast. He was an amiable young man, a member of the Church and gave, as we believed, evidence of devoted piety. He had long been in feeble health and was subject to transitions from great elevation to deep depression of spirit."

iv. MARY ELIZABETH, b. 1822; d. Nov. 19, 1876, ae. 54; unm.

89. v. SARAH ANN, b. Feb. 22, 1825; m. Nathaniel Tarlton.

vi. Son, b. and d. Feb. 26, 1827; "only breathed a few times."

91. viii. IRA JAMES, b. Aug. 7, 1830; m. Martha S. Locke.

44. JOSEPH[6] TAYLOR (Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, Jan. 23, 1793? (VR gives only month and day; year approximate, determined by family account that he was "about 32 years old" at time of death; died at Effingham, late in the year "1825, by the falling of the old bridge" (private record of James Dearborn Leavitt, written about 1868, now in possession of his granddaughter, Carrie M. Leavitt of Effingham).

Carpenter; lived in North Effingham, later set-off as Freedom; his house was situated on the hill just east of Cushing Corner Cemetery, on the right going toward Freedom Village; all that remains of it today is the cellar, overgrown with sizable trees and barberry bushes, still known by aged residents as "the old Taylor cellar." Presumably, this was located in Lot 103, 5th Range, 3rd Division, one-half of which he bought at auction, May 21, 1822, from Susanna Cushing, widow of Peter (Strafford Co. Deeds, 117:366); the land was later owned by the late Christopher C. Chase. The year previous, Mar. 13, 1821, Joseph Taylor, called yeoman, bought of Isaac Lord, for $40, five acres in this same Lot 103, but sold the land, Aug. 31, 1822, to Jonathan Moulton (Do., 119:375).

Young Joseph Taylor accompanied the family to Newfield, Me., there learned his trade and married. Soon after 1818, he located in North Effingham (Freedom) and lived there until death from an accident. In 1825, he was engaged by the Town in repairing the "old bridge" when the structure gave way and fell on him, and he was killed. (This was not the present bridge at Effingham Falls over the Great Ossipee, but one in another location long since gone.) Because of the circumstances, by which his widow was left with three small boys, the Town voted, Mar. 15, 1826, "to abate Joseph Taylor's Tax for 1825, on the north side of the River, $3.20." In Warrant for the next Town Meeting, one of the items of business on the docket was "to see if the Town will give anything to Mrs. Taylor, widow of Joseph, late deceased"; but on May 1st, same year, it was voted "not to give widow M. Taylor anything," although the following year, 1827, she did receive in the form of a tax abatement the sum of $.15—an amount of more consequence then than now of course, but hardly excessive compensation for her loss. (Effingham Town Recs., Old Book, pp. 151-6-7 and 170.)

Joseph Taylor's premature death was not only grim tragedy to his household, which it broke-up and scattered, but it deprived his descendants of almost all knowledge of his origin—the extent of the knowledge being that his father was named Richard.

Joseph married at Newfield, Me., Mar. 26, 1818, MIRIAM JORDAN, daughter of Nathaniel and Peace (Morrill) Jordan, born there, Feb. 27, 1796 (VR); died at North Anson, Me., Feb. 14, 1870 (FR); on Newfield records her name is spelled Marium and Mariam. Following her husband's death, she lived with relatives in several Maine towns and passed her last years at North Anson with her eldest son. An excellent enlargement of her photograph is now (1935) in possession of her grandson, Olin[8] Paine Taylor (177) of Cranston, R. I.

Children of Joseph and Miriam (Jordan) Taylor, born at Effingham (now Freedom):

92. i. JOHN[7], b. Jan. 4, 1819; m. Isabel Paine.

ii. NATHANIEL, b. Aug., 1820; d. No. Hampton, Oct. 6, 1885; he returned to the Town from which his grandfather Taylor had come and was known there as a sober, industrious farmer; opposite his death record in the Church Book, the minister wrote: "a good man"; his Will, Sept. 28, 1885, gave to brother John Taylor of No. Anson, Me., $10; to brother Joseph Morrill Taylor of Seneca, Kan., $10; residue to "my friend Edward Everett Marston"; Thomas E. Marston, Exec.; wit: John S. Hobbs, William H. Harris, Orinda A. Harris; unm.

93. iii. JOSEPH MORRILL, b. Oct. 5, 1821; m. Prudence Rice.

45. ELIZABETH[6] TAYLOR (Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, Nov. 5, 1797; died at Freedom, May 10, 1882, ae. 84:6:5. She married at Newfield, Me., Apr. 4, 1819, WILLIAM C. SANBORN, son of Edward and Deborah Sanborn, born at Exeter, Jan. 5, 1794; died at Freedom, Sept. 16, 1874; farmer; they lived in Freedom all their days in a house, still standing, on Cushing Corner road, about half-a-mile west of the Corner, at intersection with Eaton road; both buried in Sanborn Lot, Cushing Corner Cemetery. Excellent daguerreotypes of this couple in early life, encased in a gold locket and reproduced on another page, are now (1935) in possession of their granddaughter, Mrs. Ella (Drowne) Smith of Newton Highlands, Mass.

47. ELISHA[6] JOHNSON TAYLOR (John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born probably at No. Hampton, Nov. 18, 1780 (recorded at Candia); baptised at No. Hampton, Nov. 24, 1782; died at Wiscasset, Me., Aug. 10, 1854, ae. 74 (VR); buried in Sevey Lot, Evergreen Cem., ae. 73 yrs.

10 mos. (GR); ae. 73 yrs. 9 mos. (son's Bible). Early merchant (shoe dealer) in Wiscasset, Me. (then Massachusetts), whither he removed in or before 1808; selectman there, 1825, 1827, 1828, 1829, 1830; postmaster, 1833-42 and 1845-49; member No. 92, Wiscasset Fire Society. He lived on Main St. facing the Common, in a house still standing (1933) —one of the oldest in Wiscasset—but located since 1919 on Water St., following its first removal, 1883, to Middle St. (This house was torn down, 1934).

Originally occupied by John Merrill, Jr., early Wiscasset attorney and graduate of Brown Univ., 1793, this house, called "Elisha J. Taylor's old mansion," and an "old landmark," is described in diary of Alexander Johnston, 1883, as a one story affair 30′ x 22′, with lean-to kitchen and bedroom below; here "Mr. Taylor lived very comfortably with eight children and their mother"; in Census of 1850, his household had diminished and he was living with Sarah B. Taylor, ae. 31 (daughter) and Sarah B. Taylor, ae. 8 (grandchild). The house was sold outside the family 1883, following his 3rd wife's death, "to be removed"; its first peregrinations are related by our diarist: "Saturday, June 2 (1883)—Main St. is not wide enough (8 rods) to haul Aunt Ann's cottage through today (she was Elisha's 3rd wife and widow) and they landed it almost into Josh Hilton's front entry, and against a nice elm tree—one of the Centennials (one of the 150 trees set out in 1876 to commemorate the 100th Anniversary of Wiscasset)—and then unhooked and went home! whereat Josh swore some. . . . Monday, June 4—They have got one more Rines (rope) at work on the Taylor cottage and screwed it up high, ready for another tack on the voyage. The old landmarks do not like to move . . . Friday, June 8—Aunt Ann's Cottage starts again today on its voyage on rollers, with a competent man and a competent compensation and will go straight to its destination; no rum this time." (A photograph of this much traveled house, in its final setting, was presented the compiler by Mrs. Fannie Scott Chase, who, in addition, communicated much of the information herein about Elisha Taylor and his descendants from material collected in connection with her forthcoming History of Wiscasset.)

June 19, 1833, "Elisha J. Taylor of Wiscasset, Me." conveyed "all right in my honored father's estate" in Candia, N. H. "to my mother, Hannah Taylor," but the Deed was not recorded at Exeter until Feb. 21, 1871—nearly 38 years later and 17 years after Elisha's death (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 431:342).

He married three times; had one child by first marriage and ten by second. Although most of the children married, it appears almost certain that no descendants are living today. (Most of the vital records in his account are from a Family Bible, leather-bound and inscribed on front inside cover by son W. B. Taylor; printed and published by Mathew Carey, 122 Market St., Philadelphia, 1807; now in possession of Hon. Samuel B. Doggett of Boston, who received same from the late William Davis Patterson, of Wiscasset, Me., antiquary and historian. Records copied therefrom and sent me by both Mr. Doggett and Mrs. Fannie S. Chase.)

Elisha Taylor married (1) at Wiscasset, Me., Apr. 26, 1808, HANNAH STACY, daughter of Nymphas and Abigail (Elwell) Stacy, born there Apr. 29, 1788; died there, Dec. 11, 1809, ae. 21:7:18; buried in ancient cemetery on Federal St. (Reg., 72:278). [Her parents came to Wiscasset about 1780 from Gloucester, Mass., where Nymphas, son of Nymphas and Isabella (Parsons) Stacy, was b. Oct. 25, 1754; m. Oct. 29, 1778, Abigail Elwell; he d. 1811. 6 Ch.]

He married (2) at Wiscasset, June 8, 1811 (Town Recs.), July 21 (Bible), SARAH BOYD; she does not appear in any printed Boyd Genealogies as she belongs to a different branch; she was daughter and sixth child of Samuel and Frances (Fletcher) Boyd, born at Bristol, Me., Oct. 18, 1782; died at Wiscasset, May 4, 1849, ae. 66:6:16); buried Evergreen Cem., age on tombstone (shared with husband) 66y. 7m. [Her father, Samuel Boyd, was b. in Worcester, Mass., Mar. 1, 1736; removed to Bristol (Me.); her mother Frances (Fletcher), d. at Bristol, 1789; bur. in historic cemetery at Pemaquid Point; "her gravestone of English slate is still standing (1933) as perfect as when erected"; an older brother was the redoubtable Capt. William McIntyre Boyd, (1771-1846)—for whom she named a son—master mariner of Wiscasset and County Treasurer over 20 yrs.; Capt. Boyd is said to have "played a good knife and fork," was the biggest man in Town, weighing 325 lbs.; he had five wives and when someone mentioned his numerous matrimonial ventures, he said, "when God takes one wife, I take another."]

Elisha Taylor married (3) at Wiscasset, Jan. 27, 1853,

ANN HOMER BROOKS, born July 18, 1791; died July 5, 1880, ae. 89; she survived her husband and continued to live in the Main St. house until decease.

Bailey, 14; he was mem. No. 87, Wiscasset Fire Co. from Oct., 1843 to Jan. 1, 1853; rem. to Calais bef. 1860; m. at Wiscasset, Sept. 8, 1843, Ann Eliza Theobald, dau. of Dr. Philip E. and Nancy (Payson), b. Wiscasset, Aug. 25, 1816; d. there, Dec. 5, 1898. [Her father was an early Wiscasset physician who d. July 8, 1846, ae. 62, son of Dr. Ernst Fredrick Philip Theobald (1750-1809), Hessian physician and chaplain in German Division of Burgoyne's Army; after the Surrender at Saratoga, Oct. 17, 1777, the prisoners were sent to Boston for embarkation home, but due to unfortunate complications, concerning which the reader is referred to general history, none ever went, except as exchanges; a large number, especially Hessians, chose to remain in this country and became American citizens; Dr. Theobald, Sr., was one; he rem. to Maine (then Massachusetts) and practised medicine in Dresden.] Elisha and Ann (Theobald) Taylor had no children.

vii. SARAH[7] B(OYD), b. Mar. 29, 1818; d. Gardiner, Me., Oct. 15, 1897 (VR), "at the home of her sister, Mrs. Wm. F. Richards" (Newspaper); bur. in Sevey Lot, Evergreen Cem., Wiscasset (GR); m. at Charlestown, Mass., May 24, 1853, Joseph Smith Sevey (VR), son of Col. Samuel and Hannah (Smith), b. Wiscasset, 1807; d. there Sept. 23, 1888, ae. 81; Lieut. in the Texas Navy, 1836; returned to Wiscasset after Mexican War and always lived there; (his brother, Ralph Sevey, was one of the "immortals" who followed Gen. Sam Houston). No children, although Mrs. Sevey's niece and namesake, Sarah B. Taylor, lived with them some time until her early death, 1861.

viii. CHARLES M., b. Oct. 12, 1819; d. Charlestown, Mass., Sept. 16, 1859, ae. 39:11:4 (VR); m. at Boston, Sept. 27, 1851, Sophia Ann Coombs, dau. of Stephen and Sarah P., b. in Maine, Jan. 16, 1814; d. Charlestown, Apr. 24, 1866, ae. 52:4:8 (VR); lived in Charlestown. Ch. b. there:

Gardiner, May 7, 1891, ae. 69 (FR; 1899, printed VR); bur. there, Oak Grove Cem.; "a lover of fast trotting horses; he had one so fast he could never get another to pair with it and so was deprived of a span." No Ch.

x. Child, d. July 11, 1826 (Town Records).

xi. MARY THOMAS, b. Mar. 7, 1828; d. Sept. 13, 1828.

48. JOHN[6] TAYLOR (John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born Feb. 23, 1786; recorded at Candia, but probably actually born at Effingham before his parents removed from there to Candia; died at Candia?, Nov. 1, 1813 (Bible of sister, Hannah (Taylor) Batchelder (49), now in possession of Floyd A. Batchelder of White River Junction, Vt.). Name of wife unknown.

Due to his very early death, John Taylor's name did not get on the records and only these meagre items can be found concerning him or wife. They had a son Alfred whose date of death is evidently intended by entry in Bible above mentioned, but the Bible does not contain any marriage records; in Alfred's record of death at Lennoxsville, P. Q., Canada, filed at the Superior Court, District of St. Francis, Sherbrooke (certified copy furnished by prothonotary), the name of Alfred's father is given as John Taylor; Alfred's mother's name is not given; neither parent's name is specified in their son's marriage records, either in New Hampshire or Canada. No Deeds of record or Probate have been found.

Child, place of birth unknown:

96. i. ALFRED[7], b. July 5, 1812 (FR); m. Sarah S. Cate; (2) Phoebe Ann Mallory.

49. HANNAH[6] TAYLOR (John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Candia, July 19, 1788; died at Hampton, Jan. 8, 1859 (FR). She married (1) Apr. 6, 1820, GILMAN BEAN, born Sept. 23, 1794; died Mar. 29, 1821; and (2) Sept. 22 (29), 1822, as his 2nd wife, her first cousin, JOHN[7] BATCHELDER, son of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Taylor[5]) BATCHELDER (27), born Aug. 16, 1786; died May 5, 1863; shoemaker; they lived in Strafford, Hampton, and Candia. Mr. Batchelder's 1st wife was NANCY JOHNSON, whom he married July 24, 1810; she was born Aug. 12, 1786; died Mar. 15, 1816; since Mr. Batchelder's mother was a Taylor, his children by 1st marriage were also descendants of Anthony[1] Taylor; these are inserted below.

53. JOHN[6] MILLS TAYLOR (Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, May 14, 1773; died at Exeter, Feb. 18, 1860, ae. 86 yrs. 9 mos.; buried in Exeter Cem. (GR); Will, Mar. 28, 1856; probated Mar. 21, 1860 (Rockingham Co. Probate, 110:174). He lived first in Effingham, now Freedom, probably before 1800; purchased a grist mill there, Apr. 10, 1807, and land in Lots 33 and 35, 2nd Division (Strafford Co. Deeds, 72:166). Called yeoman, he appears as grantor or grantee in other Deeds from 1804 to 1810; Jan. 31, 1810, he sold 45 acres in Lot 5, 2nd Division, to Thomas Andrews, wife Polly Taylor also signed (Do., 93:300). He removed to Exeter, certainly before 1818, and appears to have lived on High St., where Arthur S. French now (1932) resides, in one of the oldest houses in Exeter. In 1855, of Exeter, and "very aged," he was sole beneficiary in son Simon Taylor's estate.

His Will gave cash bequests of $200 each to sons Samuel and John Taylor; $1 to son Jacob Taylor; and small cash bequests to daughter Betsey Yeaton; Eunice Taylor, "widow of my son David"; and George Taylor, son of said David; daughter Sally Taylor to have rights in the Homestead for life; son Joseph S. Taylor to receive residue and to be executor; bond $2,000.

John Mills Taylor married at North Hampton, Oct. 20, 1794, MARY (Polly) SMITH (VR), probably daughter of Joseph[5] and Esther (Stockbridge) Smith (Cf. Hist. of Newfields, 648), born at Stratham, Feb. 17, 1773; died at Exeter, June 14, 1842 (VR), ae. 69 yrs.; buried Exeter Cem. (GR).

Children of John Mills and Polly (Smith) Taylor, probably born at Effingham, except last at Exeter (birthdates approximate):

i. SIMON[7], b. 1795; d. at Exeter, Dec. 1, 1855, ae. 61 (VR); farmer; his estate included 40 acres, appraised, 1856, for $3,000, brother-in-law George S. Yeaton, executor; father, John Mills Taylor, sole beneficiary; unm.

Exeter, Oct. 1, 1872 (VR); they lived in Exeter; had four daus., the first three of whom died in infancy. Child: 1. GEORGIE[8] ANN YEATON, b. 1837; d. Dec. 12, 1879; unm.

99. vii. JOHN M(ILLS?), b. 1808; m. Dolly Batchelder.

100. viii. JOSEPH SMITH, b. Feb. 9, 1818; m. Almira A. Hurd.

54. SAMUEL[6] TAYLOR (Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Mar. 27, 1781; died at Porter, Me., Aug. 31, 1846; buried there, Village Cem. (GR). He accompanied the family to Effingham, but about 1803 moved over the State Line into Maine (at that time and until 1820, a District of Massachusetts); was an early settler of Porter, active in town affairs. July 18, 1814, "Samuel Taylor of Porter, Mass." (Maine), bought of Levi Willard of Lancaster, N. H. "right for Effingham of spinning machine" (Strafford Co. Deeds, 79:697). He was selectman of Porter, 1817, and held that office eleven terms; town treasurer, 1820-21 and 1833-35; town clerk, 1832; and representative in State Legislature, 1836 and 1838.

He married at Effingham, Aug. 23, 1803, SARAH TOWLE (not Sarah Coffin, as in Hists. of Hampton and Porter), daughter of Coffin Towle (Carr Leavitt performing the marriage, VR); she was born at Epsom, Mar. 26, 1785; died at Effingham, Apr. 10, 1866, surviving her husband 20 years; buried Porter Village Cem.

Children of Samuel and Sarah (Towle) Taylor, born at Porter, Me. (Moulton's Hist. of Porter):

106. viii. AMOS, b. ditto; m. Hannah W. Andrews.

55. HENRY[6] DEARBORN TAYLOR (Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, Jan. 4, 1784; died at Wells, Me., Sept. 20, 1860, ae. 76 (PR); buried No. Berwick Cem. (FR). Farmer in Effingham (Freedom), to which he came as a child with his parents and where he resided most of life, although in 1846, he was living at Kingston; in 1851, at South Hampton; and passed his last years at Wells, Me. with son Calvin M. He was a man of distinguished appearance and proportion, "of easy and generous disposition"; called Dearborn, although his personal signature was "Henrey D. Taylor."

He was a soldier in the War of 1812, enlisting, in spite of a growing family, at Effingham, May 11, 1813, as private in Capt. Dinsmore's Co., 33rd U. S. Infantry and served until May 11, 1814, when honorably discharged at Platts-

56. JONATHAN[6] TAYLOR (Henry[5] D., John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, June 14, 1767 (Bible record in possession of compiler, 1935; VR says Jan. 14); died at Sanbornton, Oct. 1, 1849, ae. 82. Early settler in Sanbornton, succeeding to grant of his grandfather, John[4] Taylor (17); called Jonathan, Jr. to distinguish him from an older Jonathan Taylor who also lived in that town. Runnels' Hist. of Sanbornton suggests they were second cousins but Jonathan Jr. disclaimed any relationship to the many other Taylors of Sanbornton, and there was none. [Jonathan, the elder, was son of Nathan[3] (Benjamin[2], William[1] of Exeter) and Rachael (Moore) Taylor, b. Oct. 2, 1739; d. Mar. 2, 1816]; also called Stone-Bridge Jonathan, as he lived near a stone culvert (in existence, 1882), early dignified as "Stone Bridge," over Giles Brook. He first lived in Hampton Falls, but in Mar., 1796, went to Sanbornton and made first improvements. "He was a man of probity and enterprise like the Hampton residents generally."

He married at Hampton Falls, Feb. 24, 1790, ABIGAIL MOULTON, born there, Jan. 23, 1770; died at Sanbornton, Feb. 16, 1856, ae. 86 (FR).

Children of Jonathan and Abigail (Moulton) Taylor, first three born at Hampton Falls; others at Sanbornton (Runnels); birthdates from Bible contributed by Mrs. Cora (Tilton) Robie of Bristol:

i. LITTLEFIELD[7], b. Dec. 17, 1791; d. Concord, Jan. 14, 1849, ae. 57, while there as representative at special session of State Legislature; served previously from 1847; machinist and farmer; lived on Steele's Hill; m. Nov. 22, 1810, Susannah Chapman of Gilmanton, who d.; (2) Sept. 12, 1824, Mary P. Boyd of Gilford. No Ch.

59. SAMUEL[6] DEARBORN TAYLOR (Henry[5] D., John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hampton, July 13, 1786; died there, Nov. 14, 1853; Will, June 22, 1847; probated Dec. 14, 1853 (Rockingham Co. Prob., 92:361); buried in Cemetery at Bride Hill. Farmer; occupied all his life the Taylor Homestead at Bride Hill. Selectman of Hampton, 1820, 1822 and 1829; active in the Congregational Society, for many years Warden. He left his estate to wife and children: wife to receive half the Homestead, which, after her decease, was to go to son Alba C., youngest child; said son to receive other half of Homestead and all land in Epsom, as well as to be residuary beneficiary and executor; cash bequests from $100 to $300 were made to each of the other sons and daughters: Joseph; Samuel D.; Josiah W.; Shubael; Sarah, wife of Darius Eaton; Nancy P., wife of William Grover; and Jonathan.

He married PHEBE STEVENS, daughter of Joseph and Phebe (Taylor) Stevens, born at Stratham, Aug. 5, 1786; died "soon after June, 1857"; buried at Bride Hill; Will, May 3, 1854; probated June 15, 1859 (Rock. Co. Prob., 110:20); mentions above children and "three youngest daughters of my daughter Sarah Eaton"; son Alba C. to receive her part of Homestead, "one eight-day clock and Bass Viol." [Joseph Stevens and Phebe Taylor of Stratham, her parents, were married at North Hampton, Mar. 24, 1774 (Ch. Recs.); he died Sept., 1794; she died, Apr. 20, 1842, ae. 91 yrs. 8 mos.; she was probably a descendant of William[1] Taylor of Exeter.]

Children of Samuel D. and Phebe (Stevens) Taylor, born at Hampton:

118. i. JOSEPH[7] S(TEVENS), b. Oct. 19, 1805; m. Rhoda Willey.

119. ii. SAMUEL DEARBORN, b. Jan. 15, 1807; m. Lucinda Upham.

123. x. ALBA C., b. Apr. 29, 1824; m. Caroline D. Dow.

60. WILLIAM[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Brentwood, about 1777; died intestate, at Sandwich before June 7, 1809, when John Beede of Sandwich was appointed executor of his estate; this was declared insolvent; in its settlement was a charge for going to Brentwood and Epping "to get possession of said Taylor's real estate." He probably came to Sandwich around 1800 (was counted in his father's family at Brentwood in Census of 1790); in 1818, his claim to Blackly pasture, so called, in Sandwich, passed to his brother Nathaniel, the Deed referring "to my brother, the late William Taylor of Sandwich." (Rockingham Co. Deeds, 209:422). The circumstances of his early death are unknown.

He married ANNA or NANCY ——; called Anna in settlement of his estate, and Nancy in her death record set down on sheet of paper in handwriting of their son William, who also kept other important family records. These, in 1933, were in possession of Mrs. Christine E. Skinner of Sandwich, who loaned them to the compiler. Nancy (Anna) Taylor died "at 3 A.M., Apr. 5, 1852." Her marriage or other vital records do not appear; no children are named in settlement of William's estate. The following list of children is from son William's record.

Children of William and Nancy (Anna) Taylor, probably all born at Sandwich:

124. i. JACOB[7], b. about 1800; m. Abigail M. Smith.

ii. JONATHAN, b. at Sandwich, July 16, 1828; unm.?

iii. NANCY G., b. 1805; d. Sandwich, Nov. 3, 1835, ae. 29 (FR); Haverhill (Mass.) Vital Records say: "Nancy G. Taylor of Sandwich, N. H., intended marriage, Mar. 8, 1834, (to) Stephen Noyes Hanson"; the Sandwich Reporter reported the marriage for Apr. 3, 1834, at Sandwich. Mr. Hanson was son of Winthrop and Hepzibah (Mahany), b. Haverhill, Mass., Mar. 19, 1810; he m. (2) July 15, 1836, Hannah M. Brown of Exeter. Nancy's death is recorded at Haverhill, Nov. 2, 1835, but FR says she d. next day "3 P.M."

125. iv. WILLIAM, b. June 8, 1808; m. Hannah Seavey.

61. NATHANIEL[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Brentwood, 1784; died at Sandwich, Oct. 19, 1848, ae. 64; buried there, Little Pond Cem. Farmer in Sandwich, whither he removed soon after 1800. Deed of record, Mar. 13, 1816, states: Nathaniel Taylor of Sandwich received land in Sandwich from his father; also from his brother (ante). He married DOROTHY ——, born about 1784; died at Sandwich, June 10, 1853, ae. 69; buried Little Pond Cem.

Children of Nathaniel and Dorothy Taylor born at Sandwich (VR):

i. CHARLES[7], b. Dec. 15, 1810; selectman of Sandwich, 1849-50; wife named Dorothy P.; both bur. Little Pond Cem. (no dates); also these children:
   1. GEORGE[8] WARREN, b. 1839; d. Mar. 12, 1842, ae. 3 yrs.
   2. SARAH ANN, b. 1840; d. Mar. 12, 1842, ae. 19 mos.

ii. FRANCIS DANE, b. May 15, 1812; d. Sandwich, Mar. 5, 1845, ae. 35, bur. Eastman Cem.; m. Sept. 23, 1835, Sophia Ricker (called Lydia) who d. Aug. 2, 1837, ae. 25; (2) Jan. 7, 1838, Rebecca W. Ricker. No Ch.

iii. GEORGE W., b. Aug. 28, 1821; d. Aug. 14, 1842.

iv. ALFRED, b. Apr. 16, 1824; may have m. at Manchester, Apr. 1, 1857, Angeline Frissell; n. f. r.

62. SAMUEL[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Brentwood, Sept. 8, 1788; died there about 1863; Will dated Dec. 10, 1856, not filed for probate; buried in old Family Cem. Farmer in Brentwood; in 1813, succeeded to Homestead; in 1843, built a new house on the property, which was occupied, 1935, by his great-grandson, Fred H. Taylor (307). (See illustration at p. 113).

Deeds state Samuel Taylor sold land in Exeter, 1843, to Charles G. Tash; and in Epping, 1859, to son Samuel Taylor of Lowell, Mass. By terms of Will, in which he is called husbandman, witnessed by Ira Thyng, Betsey H. Thyng and J. M. Sinclair (original loaned me by Mrs. Cora B. Taylor of Brentwood), he named sons Samuel Jr. and Ezra Taylor, executors, and bequeathed: To sons Samuel and Ezra, "my Butler pasture, so called, which I purchased of Josiah Butler of Deerfield," 45 acres, to be divided equally; to son Manson Hoit Taylor, one dollar, "having heretofor given him what I considered his share"; and to son John H., one dollar, "having by Deed given him my Homestead, Aug. 8, 1854, by his paying my debts .. .. .. and maintaining me and my wife in sickness and health during life."

He married PHOEBE[6] COLCORD, daughter of Eliphalet and Nancy (Hamilton) Colcord, born at Newmarket (son Samuel's death record); at Exeter, (son John's ditto), Sept. 11, 1794 (FR); died at Brentwood, Nov. 20, 1855, ae. 61 (FR). [Her father, Eliphalet[5] Colcord, born 1756; died Jan.

28, 1829, was descended from the ubiquitous Edward[1] Colcord; was an uncle of Tristram[6] Coffin Colcord, son of Peter[5] and Phoebe (Hamilton), who removed to Philadelphia, before 1845, shortened the spelling of his name to Colket to conform to its frequent pronunciation, and became millionaire builder of horse-car railroads; a friendly letter from him to Samuel Taylor of Brentwood, dated Philadelphia, Dec. 12, 1845, is before me; his son, C. Howard[7] Colket, compiled a Colcord-Colket Manuscript, now in possession of Tristram[8] Coffin Colket, 2nd, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Taylor's mother, Nancy (Hamilton) Colcord, passed her last years at the Taylor Homestead in Brentwood where she died, Dec. 20, 1854, ae. 100 years (but another family record says she died Jan. 20, 1855, ae. 102); she was daughter of James and Mary (Broughten) Hamilton of Portsmouth, N. H., "to which place the father came direct from the Highlands of Scotland, supposedly son of a nobleman"; James Hamilton m. at Portsmouth, about 1750, Mary (called Phebe) Broughten and they had: Nancy and Phoebe; these Hamilton sisters married the Colcord brothers, Eliphalet and Peter, as above; James Hamilton was a mariner; res. in south part of Portsmouth, being taxed there as late as 1775; his wife, Phebe Broughten (says C. C. W. in Query 5769, Boston Transcript, Oct. 1, 1902, communicated by Charles H. Batchelder of Portsmouth, Dec. 17, 1932), was undoubtedly daughter of one of three sons of John and Prudence Broughten. These Colcord-Hamilton-Broughten records do not appear in printed genealogies.]

i. ELIZABETH[7], d. Aug. 3, 1824 (VR); named for grandmother Taylor.

ii. Child, d. Feb. 11, 1822 (VR).

iii. SAMUEL, b. Oct. 13, 1823; d. Brentwood, Apr. 2, 1909, 85:5:20; teacher; m. Lowell, Mass., July 26, 1856, Mary Elizabeth Styles, dau. of Jesse and Arethusa (Perkins), b. Boxford, Mass., May 11, 1828; d. Brentwood, Jan. 2, 1904. No Ch.

126. iv. JOHN HARRIMAN, b. Mar. 5, 1826; m. Sarah Frances Chase.

127. v. FRANK EZRA, b. Apr. 22, 1832; m. Priscilla Ring; (2) Angie F. Pray; (3) Mary C. Sullivan.

vi. MANSON HOIT, b. May, 1836; d. Brentwood, abt. 1864; worked in Lowell and Tynsborough, Mass., but in 1856, with his young wife, located in Waterloo, Ia., where he had a small shoe business; Mar. 14, 1860, he left by mule team for work in the mines at Pikes Peak, Col., the route being via Council Bluffs which he hoped to reach in 15 days; the venture was not specially successful, his health was poor, and he returned to his boyhood home in Brentwood where he d. from consumption a few years afterward; he m. abt. 1855, Anna Hapney of Portsmouth, living in Waterloo, Ia., 1860; numerous letters to the Brentwood kin from this couple at Waterloo reveal considerable information of the times. Manson was particularly impressed by the richness of the soil, which did not require plowing, fertilizing, harrowing, etc. as at home; in planting potatoes, for instance, a man simply broke sod with an axe, dropped in seed and covered up—quite in contrast to his native New Hampshire experience; if his brother John would only come out and settle, he could be rich in ten years; but John preferred the home place. Ch. b. Waterloo, Ia.:

1. WILLIAM[8], b. 1859; "grew-up" but n. f. r.

63. JUDITH[6] TAYLOR (Anthony[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Sandown, Apr. 3, 1771; baptised at Hampstead, June 2 next; died at Plymouth, Aug. 13, 1844. She came to present Danbury with her parents, Nov. 25, 1771, being the first white baby there. She married at Hampstead, Mar. 22, 1792, AARON[6] STEARNS, son of Samuel[5] (Samuel[4], Samuel[3], Isaac[2], Isaac[1] of Watertown, Mass.), born June 1, 1768; died Nov. 9, 1857. 67. DEA. AMOS[6] TAYLOR (Anthony[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born in Alexandria (now Danbury), Apr. 30, 1784; died at Danbury, Apr. 2, 1866, ae. 82; buried in Family Lot, Eastern Cem. Farmer; trial justice; representative; Ensign and Lieut. of Militia; deacon. Always called Squire Amos; he succeeded to the Homestead to which he added several large tracts of land.

[Roughly speaking, the Deeds indicate that the Homestead property today approximates in shape a long parallelogram, the southwesterly end bearing on a bound (under water) at School Pond and the northeasterly end including the top of Bohonon or, more properly, Taylor Hill.* This parallelogram is divided into three diamond-shaped lots (the Town as granted was so shaped as well as all the early lots) of about 100 acres each. The southerly half of lot 46 (the original Anthony[5] Taylor purchase, page 136, containing

*The U. S. Geological Survey, on which is based the Map of Danbury, page facing 136, locates Taylor Hill south of Eastern Cemetery and between the old Grafton road and Four Corners. None of the oldest residents of Danbury (1935) ever heard this land referred to as Taylor Hill. What has always been known to them as Taylor Hill is the top of Bohonon Hill, so designated on Map, which is included in part in the Taylor Homestead. However, it is true that a man named Bohonon owned land on the northerly slope of said eminence and it seems likely that the names Taylor and Bohonon were used more or less interchangeably.

Location No. 1, see Map of Danbury, ante) occupies the center, with lot 39 on its northeasterly side (mostly the 5th purchase) and lot 55 on its southwesterly side (the 4th purchase). The parallelogram includes the early acquisition of a three-cornered piece of land off the southerly half of lot 39 (site of the old orchard), while added to it, to the south is the 19 acre purchase of 1776, referred to on page 138—parts of lots 47 and 38 (site of the Mansion House, Location No. 2 on Map, and half of Eastern Cemetery. As stated, the Homestead, including fertile meadow land,—originally flooded by an old beaver dam and enriched each season by silt,—with upland and pasturage, now comprises about 315 acres.]

Amos Taylor was appointed justice of the peace, 1805, as soon as he became twenty-one and eligible, and served in this capacity and as trial justice for the district throughout life; represented the Town in the State Legislature and was one of the political leaders. He did practically all the quasi-legal work of the neighborhood; left an Account Book in which he made entries of estates administered and a great variety of public and private work, indicating clearly his importance in the community.* He lived with his father, and later carried on the Homestead with success. He built thereon what is said to have been the largest barn within miles—over 100 feet long. He was an unusually strong man in every way—250 lbs. in weight; 6 feet in height; a pillar in the Church. Says a descendant, "if living today, he might be regarded as intolerant in religious matters, being especially anti-Baptist." Be that as it may, he married one, and was moderator of the church meeting, 1828, which granted certain concessions to Baptists, sic:

*This Account Book consisting of some 250 filled pages was referred to as a possession of Anthony Taylor (page 142) but it more properly belongs to Amos who certainly made most of the entries. It is an interesting record. There are approximately 130 accounts therein (including the Town of Danbury). The names give a virtual census of families living in Danbury in the early 19th century,—specifically, period 1819-39. The accounts are mostly with men and are arranged with debit on one page, credit on opposite page. References are made to "the first book." The entries include charges for collecting taxes, settling estates, drawing deeds, contracts, probate business, making cider, use of oxen, horses, and for sale of cider, apples, milk, cheese, potatoes, hay, meat, mutton, veal, pigs, oxen, keeping oxen, lumber, cloth, labor, etc.—also for trips to neighboring towns, such as Andover, Bethlehem, Concord, Salisbury, Grafton, Franklin, Sanbornton, Dorchester, Bristol and Wilmot. This Book is now in possession of Amos L. Taylor of Boston and Belmont, Mass.

At meeting, Mar. 24, 1828, of which Amos Taylor was moderator and Samuel Taylor (72), clerk, it was voted: "to build an M house on the plan adopted—34 ft. x 40—that said house shall stand between Amos Taylor, Esq. and William Winter; that the Calvanistick Baptist Society in Danbury may improve the M house when the Congregational Society in Danbury have no minister to preach in it; that Eben Cram, Amos Taylor and Joshua Jackson (be a) Committee or Board of Managers to provide materials, superintend and execute the plan."

At the auction sale of Pews, the following Oct. 14th, which brought prices from $14 to $20 per pew, Amos Taylor, Esq. appears to have bought five pews, and, out of some 21 subscribers, to have been much the largest purchaser. Other Taylors who bought pews were: John[6] (73), Anthony[6] (65), Anthony[7], Jr. (131), and Samuel[6] (72). (Danbury Ch. Recs.)

He was a total abstainer; with his wife, their son and his wife, he signed the Temperance Pledge which is pasted on inside front cover of Bible, originally his father's (q.v.). This read:

Family Temperance Society
Constitution

This Society shall be composed of AMOS TAYLOR and MOSES L. TAYLOR and such members of our families as shall hereunto subscribe their names.

In forming the constitution, we pledge ourselves to observe the following rules:

1. We will use no ardent spirits ourselves, nor suffer the use of them in our families, nor present them to our friends or those in our employment, unless in cases of extreme necessity for medical purposes.
2. Those of us who are or shall hereafter become heads of families, solemnly agree to teach our households the principles of entire abstinence, and use our best endeavours to obtain their signatures to this constitution.
3. A copy of this constitution shall be pasted in our family Bible, to which our children (if any) shall be often pointed as the act of their parents, and we solemnly enjoin it on them, as they revere our memories, sacredly to regard these our sentiments.

As justice of the peace, Squire Amos Taylor performed most of the marriages in Danbury and his book in his own handwriting, now in possession of his great-grandson, Amos L. Taylor (313), undoubtedly constitutes the only available record of these marriages. He presented a commanding figure and his fellow-townsmen are said not only to have respected him, but to have regarded him with awe, tinged perhaps with a little fear. He had a lingering sickness and his grandson, Frank L. Taylor, took care of him the last two years until death.

He married, Oct. 29, 1807, REBEKAH REED, daughter of Samuel and Joanna (Paige) Reed of Grafton, born Nov. 23, 1788; died at Danbury, Dec. 13, 1842 (see page 144). The Reeds of Grafton were Calvanistic Baptists. After her marriage, Rebekah Taylor sought to join the Congregational Church in Danbury, in which her husband was first deacon. Apparently, her request aroused considerable feeling; it was considered at several meetings, and finally, Aug. 8, 1833, it was voted not to receive her because of her Baptist proclivities.*

He married (2) Mrs. Hannah Haynes, daughter of Lt. Samuel and Elizabeth (Pingrey) Pillsbury and twin sister of Lydia Pillsbury who married Samuel[6] Taylor (72), born at Salisbury (Daniel Webster land), Nov. 26, 1791 (VR); died at Danbury, July 17, 1882 (her first husband was Nathaniel G. Haynes, b. July 3, 1783; d. Apr. 24, 1844; "there was a child by this marriage who d. Jan. 11, 1852, ae. 27").

She married JOSHUA[6] JACKSON, son of Joshua[5] (Joshua[4], Joshua[3], Caleb[2], Nicholas[1] of Rowley, Mass.) and Eleanor (Fisk) Jackson, born at Rowley, Mass., Dec. 5, 1785; died at Danbury, Dec. 29, 1867; farmer and deacon in the Congregational Church—the first Dea. Jackson in Danbury. They lived on the old Heath place and later in a little red house (now gone) near Eastern Cemetery. Before 1811, they removed to Eden, Vt. (with his parents, brothers and sister), at which place the family "heard the cannon roar at the Battle of Lake Champlain 25 miles distant, Sunday morning, Sept. 11, 1814." From Eden, they went to Hopbottom (now Brooklyn), Pa., but a few years later, about 1820, returned to Danbury where they lived thereafter.

[Joshua[5] Jackson, his father, was first of the name in Danbury and ancestor of all the Danbury Jacksons. Family tradition makes him an associate of Anthony[5] Taylor in the settlement of Danbury, but at that time, 1771, Joshua was a small lad under 10, living at Rowley, Mass. In fact, he did not bring his family to Danbury until after 1798, in which year a son was born in Londonderry.

Joshua[5] Jackson was born at Rowley, Mass., May 2, 1762 and died in Brooklyn, Susquehanna Co., Pa., Sept. 4, 1842; was a farmer; soldier in the Revolution: enl. at Rowley, Nov., 1780; disch. Dec. 3, 1781, having served 13 mos.; was then at West Point and had to walk home; the family account is that en route, he came to a mill for the night, climbed into the hopper and went to sleep, but was awakened by some young people who came in for a party; this became so hilarious that one of the number exclaimed, "if we don't watch-out, we will raise the Devil himself"; young Jackson was leaning forward the better to see, when suddenly, the hopper tipped and down he went right into their midst. "He has come! He has come"! the revelers cried in fright, tumbling out of the place,—whereat the hungry soldier helped himself to the abandoned food, filled his knapsack and departed, greatly refreshed.

He married at Rowley, Aug. 21, 1783, Eleanor Fisk of Ipswich, Mass., dau. of Joseph, b. Oct. 28, 1764; d. Brooklyn, Pa., July 31, 1849; they first lived in Rowley, where two children were born; then Londonderry, N. H.—there in Census of 1790—where four more came; removed to Danbury, 1798-1800, "where they also had four children and five died from scarlet fever, being buried in First Cemetery up next upper wall"; then went to Eden, Vt., and finally to Pennsylvania. In his Pension application, 1818 (Claim W. 7882), they were then living in Waterford, Pa.; later, removed to Brooklyn, where both died, Mrs. Jackson seven years after husband. According to a paper written by him, 1823, now in possession of Mrs. Kate A. Jackson of Bethlehem, N. H., he had "lived in 5 states, 10 towns and moved 27 times." Surviving children: Joshua[6] (above); Joseph, b. Londonderry, Feb. 25, 1789; Caleb, b. same, 1798; and Betsey, b. Danbury, 1807. One of the children who died was born at Danbury, Sept. 17, 1800. Excepting Joshua[6] who returned to Danbury, the others remained in Pennsylvania.]

Children of Joshua and Mary (Taylor) Jackson, first two and last two born at Danbury:

i. JOHN[7] JACKSON, b. Sept. 24, 1807; m. Priscilla Taylor (128).

ii. HIRAM TAYLOR JACKSON, b. Sept. 8, 1809; m. Polly Taylor (129).

iii. JOSHUA JACKSON, b. Eden, Vt., Aug. 31, 1811; d. Danbury, June 13, 1898; lived first at Franklin, afterwards at Danbury on farm adjoining his brother Hiram, but nearer village; his house (burned after his death), was nearly opposite place on Smith River where his grandfather, Anthony[5] Taylor, in 1769, came upon the Indian Village. He m. Polly G. Fifield, dau. of Winthrop and Mehitable (Pettingill), b. Salisbury, Sept. 23, 1808; d. Danbury, Mar. 11, 1893; she was a sister of Benjamin and Israel Fifield who married Dorothy[6] and Judith Taylor, respectively, daughters of Jonathan (36). Children of Joshua and Polly (Fifield) Jackson:

1. MARY[8] P. JACKSON, b. 1835; d. Nov. 17, 1861; m. Charles Flanders; res. Malden, Mass. Ch.:
   a. ALBERT[9] W. FLANDERS.
   b. HOWARD FLANDERS.
   c. HERBERT FLANDERS, supposed to have been murdered.

2. CHARLES JOSHUA JACKSON, b. Jan. 22, 1841; d. July 31, 1913; vocal music teacher and concert singer in Danbury and Concord; m. Ellen Reed, dau. of Ezekiel and Joanna (Judkins), b. Sept. 20, 1846; d. Nov. 21, 1894. Children:
   a. CHARLES[9] S. JACKSON, b. 1860; living So. Weymouth, Mass., 1935; grad. Dartmouth College; for many years teacher; then Supt. of Schools, Lynn, Mass.; m. Lillian Alice Fuller. Child:

vi. CYRIL GIDDINGS JACKSON, b. Mar. 13, 1821; d. 1824.

vii. CHARLES GIDDINGS JACKSON, b. Feb. 27, 1825; d. Dec. 15, 1842.

69. JAMES[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Alexandria, now Danbury, Jan. 17, 1781; baptised at Hampstead, Jan. 12, 1782; died at Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 15, 1855 (VR); buried Lot 302, Green Mount Cem. (GR). Farmer, first in Salisbury and then Middlesex, Vt., whither he removed in 1818; later lived in Montpelier.

He married at Salisbury, 1803, MARY (POLLY) BOHONON, daughter of Lt. Andrew and Susannah (Webster) Bohonon, born there, Apr. 11, 1780; died at Montpelier, July 26, 1868 (VR); buried Lot 302, Green Mount Cem.; "a woman of rare qualities, and greatly beloved" (Hist. of Salisbury). Her father served with distinction in both the French and Indian War and Revolution. Her mother was daughter of Ebenezer and Susannah (Batchelder) Webster and younger sister of Judge Ebenezer Webster, father of Daniel the Great. Thus, Polly Bohonon and Daniel Webster were own cousins and all descendants of James and Polly (Bohonon) Taylor are related to that statesman.

Children of James and Polly (Bohonon) Taylor, born at Salisbury, N. H. (except last two):

135. i. CAROLINE[7], b. Apr. 13, 1804; m. Luther Warren.

71. REV. JONATHAN[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Alexandria, now Danbury, Feb. 5, 1784; died at Cookshire, Eaton Township,*

*Eaton Township, named in 1800, was one of the Eastern or English-speaking townships, lying next to the U. S. Boundary, as distinguished from the French-speaking seigniories along the St. Lawrence. Ten miles square, it includes the incorporated towns of Cookshire and Sawyerville, and several villages—Birchton, Eaton Corner, Bulwer and Johnville, and is now part of Compton Co., which in area is somewhat larger than the State of Rhode Island. The first settlers were mostly from New England. See Channell's Hist. of Compton Co., 65-75. Most writers declare that these settlers went into Canada because of loyalty to England and dissatisfaction with conditions in the United States following the Revolution. No doubt some of them did, although such does not appear to have been the case with Jonathan and Ezra Taylor (74). The compiler is inclined to believe that many of these young men who went into the Eastern Townships, if not most of them, were responding to the age-old call of the pioneer for new land in a new country, without much regard to the political situation.

Rev. Jonathan[6] Taylor (71)
Cookshire, Eaton Township, P. Q., Canada

in what is now Compton Co., Province of Quebec, Canada, May 25, 1852; buried Cookshire Cem. (FR). First settled minister in Cookshire; for thirty years, Rector of the Episcopal Church (St. Peter's).

Jonathan Taylor studied under Dr. Samuel Wood of Boscawen, probably his uncle, who prepared scores of young men for the ministry and college, including Daniel Webster. But instead of going to Dartmouth, as did most of Dr. Wood's pupils, young Jonathan entered Middlebury College (Vt.), 1808, and received the A.B. degree, 1811, in three years, being the first Taylor to graduate from a higher institution of learning. Shortly thereafter, he went as a missionary into Eaton Township, Lower Canada (Province of Quebec), and took up residence in the new settlement called Cookshire. In addition to his ministerial labors, he taught the only school there for several years, receiving a yearly stipend of £40 payable mostly in meat, grain and supplies.

From 1815 to 1819, he was an ordained clergyman of the Congregational or Presbyterian Society at Cookshire (Alumni Recs., Middlebury College). Among the old church books, in his hand, is this record: "John Stratton was buried Dec. 15, 1815; buried by me, minister of the first Presbyterian Congregation of Eaton." In 1817, a wooden church edifice was erected—the first in the settlement and fourth in all the Eastern Townships, the nearest one being forty miles distant at Stanstead. In 1819, he was ordained Rector of the Episcopal Church in Cookshire and served as such until 1849, when failing health necessitated retirement. As an indication of the personal esteem with which he was always regarded: at the time he entered the Episcopal communion, he was followed in a body by his former congregation composed of several denominations. "Loved by old and young, his life was devoted to the cause of Christ, the Church in which he labored being secondary to the good he could do."

In 1825, Feb. 4, Rev. Jonathan Taylor bought 100 acres in Cookshire from Ephraim Wood of Lebanon, N. H., farmer, his father-in-law. The Deed, recorded at the Registry in Sherbrooke (9210), is in possession of his great-grandson, Herbert[9] A. Taylor of Cookshire, to whom the property descended. It is described as being the south part of Lot No. 13, 8th Range, in the Township of Eaton; the price paid was £200. He first lived on the site of the Cookshire House on Main and Craig Sts., and his was the first frame house in town. Later, about 1835, finding clay on his land suitable for making bricks, he erected a brick house, still standing,—opposite the Rectory and Church on Main St.,—owned, 1931, by Fred A. Noble.

When Rev. Jonathan Taylor first came to Cookshire, he met and overcame, in common with other early settlers, the same pioneer conditions which prevail in every infant settlement. He baptised the first children born in the new country and married the first couple. People wishing to get married prior to 1828, generally went to New Hampshire. Rev. Jonathan did so himself, bringing back his bride on horseback behind him from Lebanon, some 160 miles distant. The first recorded marriage performed by him was Sept. 8, 1828,* when he "united by bans Wadley Leavet, farmer, and Mary Percival, spinster." Was this the couple referred to in following family tradition? Early in his pastorate, a young couple came to him to be married, i.e. as near as possible. It was the season of high-water and, there being no bridge over the river (first bridge built, 1836), the intended bridal pair could not cross to the parsonage. Notwithstanding, Rev. Jonathan performed the ceremony—the bride and groom standing on one bank of the stream and the minister on the other, the service being shouted back and forth.

A Memorial Window on the east wall of St. Peter's Church commemorates his, and his brother's labors. Beneath a reproduction of The Good Shepherd is this inscription:

TO THE GLORY OF GOD AND IN MEMORY OF
REV. JONATHAN TAYLOR, FIRST INCUMBENT AND FOR THIRTY YEARS MINISTER OF THIS PARISH
ENTERED INTO HIS REST MAY 25, 1852
AND OF EZRA TAYLOR HIS BROTHER A FAITHFUL LAY-READER AND PARISH WORKER FOR MANY YEARS
ENTERED INTO HIS REST MAY 6, 1870.

*Marriages appear on the Registers prior to this date, but they were performed in the States and later legalized in Canada (Hist. of Compton Co., 69).

Rev. Jonathan Taylor married at Lebanon, N. H., July 23, 1815, MARTHA WOOD (residence of groom given as Eaton, Canada); she was daughter of Ephraim and Martha (Jackson) Wood, born at Lebanon, Aug. 26, 1789 (VR); died at Lachine, P. Q., Oct. 1, 1873; buried Cookshire Cem. (FR). Her father, Ephraim Wood, was probably born in Mansfield, Conn. and, in 1766, accompanied his father, Capt. Joseph Wood, up the Connecticut Valley to Lebanon, of which town the senior Wood was one of the first settlers. Martha (Wood) Taylor was mother of nine children, survived her husband over twenty-one years, and passed her last days with daughter Lucy in Lachine.

EZRA[6] TAYLOR (Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Danbury, Sept. 12, 1797; died at Eaton, Compton Co., Prov. of Quebec, Canada, May 6, 1870; buried Cookshire Cem. (FR). Pioneer settler and farmer in Eaton, P. Q.; co-founder of the most numerous Canadian branch of the Family.*

In 1815, he went to Cookshire (Eaton Township) with his brother, Rev. Jonathan Taylor, who had come to Lebanon to be married, visited the boyhood home in Danbury and was returning to his frontier post. Ezra Taylor first

*Not all Taylors in the Eastern Townships descend from Ezra and Rev. Jonathan Taylor, although many of them do. See Alfred[7] Taylor (96). Rev. Ernest Manley Taylor of Knowlton, P. Q., wellknown clergyman, active in the Brome Co. Hist. Soc., now (1935) in 88th year, is not a descendant of Anthony Taylor of Hampton, N. H. However, his paternal ancestors also came early from New England—from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and through Vermont into Canada.

His great-grandfather, Daniel Taylor, son of Eleazor, was born, 1767, in or near Salem, Mass. (FR; but neither name is in printed VR of Salem, Ipswich, Marblehead or Beverly); went to Danville Green, Vt.; was a blacksmith there and married; then became pioneer settler in Bolton, P. Q., 1797; m. Sobriety Davis, dau. of Dudley and Polly (Straw), born in Barrington, N. H.; both bur. E. Bolton Cem.; his tombstone says: "He read the Bible through 43 times"; they left several hundred descendants in Canada and U. S., including a number of clergymen. Eleazer Taylor served in the Revolution (FR).

lived in Cookshire, but in 1843, bought 410 acres outside the town—in Eaton. His idea was to give farms to his six sons as they came of age and have them settle nearby. However, none of them did, except Samuel, the second son, who took over the management of the home-place upon his father's retirement, 1855. This farm has continued in the Taylor Family ever since and in 1935, was actively carried on by his great-grandson, Arthur[9] H. Taylor (333).

Ezra Taylor was an influential member of the community; active in the affairs of the Episcopal or Anglican Church; its revered Lay Reader for many years; a member of the first School Board of whose meeting there is official record, Apr. 23, 1842. He shares with his brother the Memorial Window installed by appreciative descendants in present St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Cookshire, inscription of which appears on page 204. His descendants, from various parts of the Eastern Townships, now assemble in Family Reunion at Birchton, the last Sunday in June of each year.

He married at Cookshire, Feb. 23, 1824, PERSIS HAWLEY, daughter of Amos and Susannah (Bailey) Hawley, born at Eaton, Aug. 2, 1804; died there, Feb. 9, 1883; buried Cookshire Cem.

SEVENTH GENERATION

77. Elijah[7] Taylor (Benjamin[6], Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, Nov. 12, 1802; died there, Oct. 20, 1883, gored by his bull; buried in Family Lot on Taylor Homestead. Successful farmer and carpenter of Effingham; active in town affairs. He learned his trade from his father and followed it throughout life; was a large landowner, having at time of death about 2,000 acres in Effingham and vicinity. After 1852, he occupied the Homestead. Deeds indicate he purchased the rights to this property from all the other heirs following the settlement of his father's estate. From 1835 to 1839, he was tax collector and served as such five additional terms, the last in 1871; was surveyor of highways, 1857 and 1859, and for many years justice of the peace. He was a great lover of live-stock and always owned some fine specimens; it was one of these, a treacherous bull, which gored him, resulting in his death only twenty-three days before his 81st birthday.

He married, at Effingham, May 19, 1825, Clarissa Granville, daughter of Stephen and Ann (Huckins) Granville, born at Conway, May 14, 1805; died at Brookline, Mass., Sept. 4, 1894. Her father, Stephen Granville, son of Joseph, was born June 29, 1777; died at Effingham, July 29, 1848; buried Davis Meeting House Cem.; he had a large farm in the Pine River District, near Granville Hill; his Homestead is now (1930) owned and kept in good condition by his granddaughter, Mabelle (Granville) Cole. (Joseph Granville, born at Newburyport, Mass., about 1762, joined the Revolutionary Army at 16 years of age; about 1783, he moved from Durham to Parsonsfield, Me., where he was an early settler and leading citizen.)

Mrs. Taylor's mother, Ann (Huckins[7]) Granville, was born at Gilmanton, Oct. 27, 1784; died at Effingham, Sept. 12, 1848; daughter of John[6] (Joseph[5], Joseph[4], Robert[3], James[2], Robert[1]) and Hannah (Mudgett) Huckins of Gilmanton. (See Huckins Gen.) (Hannah Mudgett d. 1807; was

Aug. 26, 1846, still of North Hampton, called 3rd and husbandman, he sold to Benjamin Crimbell land partly in North Hampton and in Stratham, known as Sanborn Pasture, which they had purchased jointly from Thomas Lovering, deceased (Rock. Co. Deeds, 370:343). Mar. 20, 1852, John Taylor, Jr. of Effingham, husbandman, sold 40 acres in North Hampton and other tracts, "meaning to deed all my homestead farms in North Hampton," to Joseph S. Marston of North Hampton; wife Abigail Taylor relinquished dower (Do., 348:239); part of this farm off Sanborn Road (Walnut Ave.) is now (1935) owned by George D. Batchelder (82, vi, 2).

He married ABIGAIL (H.) NAY, daughter of John and Sarah (Swain) Nay, born at Georgia, Vt., Mar. 13, 1809 (Fullonton's Hist. of Raymond, 260); died at North Hampton, May 25, 1861, ae. 53 (Ch. Recs.). Her parents had removed from Raymond to Vermont, where Mr. Nay died; after which, the widow and children returned to Raymond and Abigail married as above. She married (2), about 1856, Capt. Benjamin Crimbell of No. Hampton, whose first wife was her older sister, Sarah Nay, born Nov. 20, 1798; died Mar. 5, 1855, ae. 56. Mr. Crimbell married (3) at Nottingham, Apr. 19, 1866, Abigail[7] B. Taylor, a sister of the subject of this account (Cf. No. 40, viii).

Dec. 12, 1855, Sarah A., James W., and John N. Taylor of No. Hampton, minor children of John Taylor, late of Effingham, petitioned for their mother to be made their guardian; Mar. 19, 1856, Abigail Crimbell of No. Hampton was so appointed, bond being furnished by Abigail H. Crimbell of No. Hampton; Benjamin Crimbell, husband of said Abigail; Joseph S. Marston and Tappan Leavitt.

Children of John and Abigail (Nay) Taylor, born at No. Hampton:

i. JAMES[8] W., b. Jan. 23, 1838; d. San Diego, Cal., Nov. 28, 1916 (FR); went to California with brother John in the early gold seeking days, to what is now Smartsville, Yuba Co., being attracted there by the success of their uncle Joseph[7] W. Taylor (88), one of the first prospectors; he m. at Smartsville, Cal., Dec. 16, 1869, Sarah A. Knowles "who had come out with his sister Sarah (below) from New Hampshire"; the marriage was a double wedding, the other bridal pair being said sister Sarah and Joseph Flint (see 165). No children.

ii. JOHN NAY, b. Jan. 11, 1839; d. San Diego, Cal., Oct.

13, 1914; also went to California for gold; did prospecting around Smartsville; later operated a stone quarry in Rocklin, Placer Co.; returned East and lived at Exeter, N. H., in family of his cousin, Charles W. Taylor (170), with whom he engaged in a hardware and plumbing business, around 1898; next, went to Alaska in the Gold Rush there, but returned to California, living last years in San Diego; he married but name of wife is not recalled "as she d. early." They had no children but adopted a daughter named Ruby.

165. iii. SARAH ABIGAIL, b. July 30, 1843; m. Joseph Flint.

86. ELVIN[7] TAYLOR (Ebenezer[6], Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born probably at Stratham, 1811; died at Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1885, ae. 74; buried in Family Lot, Albany Rural Cem. Successful business man in Albany, N. Y. He learned the stone mason's trade and followed it in No. Hampton, Effingham and Pelham; later, operated a stoneyard in Boston.

Before 1844, he removed to Albany, where he resided the rest of life. He also operated a stoneyard there, in the lower part of the city; one of his contracts was to supply stone for the old Albany Post Office, a three story building on site of the present one at State St. and Broadway; later, he conducted a wholesale grocery business. In 1860, he bought out the saddlery and carriage hardware business of Nathaniel Hobbs which he conducted at 420 Broadway under name of Elvin Taylor & Sons until he died. This business was continued by the sons until sold in the late 90s, when the advent of the automobile became imminent. During part of his proprietorship, he also operated a large mill in New Albany, Ind., for the manufacture of carriage woodwork for carriage builders. While the Civil War was in progress, he had a Government contract for feeding troops en route to the scene of hostilities and G. A. R. Veterans living in 1930 attest to the liberality and efficiency with which the work was performed.

He married at Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 1, 1837, SARAH HAZELTINE (both of Boston in MR, which incorrectly prints his name as Elviri), daughter of Stephen and Mary (Kimball) Hazeltine, born at Hampstead, Apr. 20, 1806 (VR); died at Albany, N. Y., Aug. 11, 1844; re-buried in Albany Rural Cem. He married (2) at Albany, June 10, 1846, CORNELIA STEVENS, daughter of George Martin and Annie Stilwell (Donnelly) Stevens (FR), born at Albany, about 1824; died there, Jan. 4, 1889, ae. 65; buried Albany Rural Cem. [Her mother, who d. Jan. 12, 1819, was dau. of Thomas Donnelly of New York City, b. May 29, 1764; d. Feb. 4, 1835, and Ruth (Pettenger), b. 1767; d. July 7, 1838; Thomas Donnelly was son of Peter who was b. in Dublin, Ireland, 1727, and Eleanor (McGraw); both father and son served in the Revolution (FR).]

166. i. JOSEPH[8] ELVIN, b. June 20, 1839; m. Sarah Robb.
ii. JAMES WILLIAMS, b. 1841; d. in infancy.

2. RUSSELL CREGO, b. 1878; living Pa., 1930.
3. ELLA CREGO, b. 1880; married; living "near Buffalo, N. Y., 1930."
168. viii. EUGENE RUSSELL, b. Oct. 23, 1858; m. Sarah J. Childs.
ix. ELLA, b. 1862; d. in infancy; "she and older sisters, Cornelia and Emma, first buried in the Old Cemetery removed when the City laid-out the Washington Park section, being re-interred in Albany Rural Cemetery."
169. x. WILLIAM E., b. Dec. 19, 1864; m. Jeanne E. Mann.

87. CHARLES[7] L. (LEVI C.) TAYLOR (Ebenezer[6], Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, 1826 (or 1833, if age in MR is correct); buried July 12, 1869, ae. 43, in brother Elvin's Family Lot, Albany (N. Y.) Rural Cem. (GR) Stone mason; helped build present

Minot's Light (Boston), of which work he was always especially proud; during its construction he lived at Cohasset, Mass. (Minot's Light on Minot's Ledge, outside Boston Harbor, was first built in 1851, following the great loss of vessels at this point; the construction was inferior and it blew down in the Gale of Apr. 17, 1851—two keepers lost; was re-built and completed, 1860; still standing, it ranks even today as one of the great feats of engineering.)

About 1861, with young wife and three-year old child, he went to California by boat and lived several years in Smartsville, Yuba Co., where younger brother Joseph W. was established. Mrs. Taylor, either during or after the voyage, contracted pneumonia and died; about 1868, "father and son, about ten, returned to New Hampshire where the former died soon after" (FR). No record of death in New Hampshire or Massachusetts. In 1930, Eugene R. Taylor, then of Delmar, N. Y., wrote: "I recall uncle Charley when I was a small boy and he visited us in Albany . . . he had sandy hair, ruddy complexion, a fine looking man . . . I never knew if he was a family man or not . . . the next I knew of him was when the body was brought on from somewhere in the East and was buried in father's old lot in Albany Rural Cem."

Charles L. Taylor married at Weymouth, Mass., Dec. 19, 1857, SUSANNA MCNEILY, daughter of William and Mary J. McNeily, born in Edinburgh, Scotland, about 1834; died about 1861-3, as above. (MR describes the groom thus: "Levi C. Taylor, ae. 24, born in Northampton, son of Ebenezer and Nancy.")

Child of Charles L. and Susanna (McNeily) Taylor, born at Cohasset, Mass.:

170. i. CHARLES[8] WOODBURY, b. Mar. 21, 1858; m. Alice H. Safford.

88. JOSEPH[7] WOODBURY TAYLOR (Ebenezer[6], Joseph[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at North Hampton, Jan. 15, 1828; died at Palmyra, N. Y., Mar. 27, 1900; buried Palmyra Cem. (FR). Forty-Niner; afterwards, prominent manufacturer in Palmyra, N. Y.

As a young man, he learned the stone mason's trade; in or about 1844, was associated with older brother Elvin in the operation of latter's stone yard in Albany, N. Y. In 1849, he joined the Gold Rush to California, via Panama route, locating in what was soon known as Smartsville, Yuba Co.; remained there about twenty years and was eminently successful in prospecting operations for gold; built the first frame house in Smartsville, still standing, 1930; also built the first flume for conveying water, then known as Taylor's Ditch, now called Excelsior; in 1856, was admitted to Rose Bar Lodge, A. F. & A. M. About 1868, he returned East, locating in Palmyra, N. Y., where he established a vinegar factory, which he later converted into a malt house and operated until decease. In Dec., 1872, he associated with Palmyra Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and was always active in the Masonic Order: Worshipful Master; Knight Templar; etc.

He married at Colfax, Placer Co., Cal., 1867, THIRMUTHUS ORANCY PIPER, daughter of Seymore W. and Lucy (Bentley) Piper, born at Sharon, Pa., Feb. 2, 1847; died at Oakland, Cal., Aug. 15, 1932 (FR). In 1851, when a child of four, she came with her parents to Grass Valley, Nevada Co., Cal. (Her father was a native of Vermont, b. 1818; d. 1890; her mother of Pennsylvania, b. 1818; d. Grass Valley, Cal., Feb. 1, 1867.) She married (2) Dr. Cyrus C. Thoms of Rochester, N. Y. who died in 1914. (No children by this marriage.)

JOHN[7] TAYLOR (92), North Anson, Me.

ISABEL (PAINE) TAYLOR, His Wife

Emmons T. and Annie (Palmer) of Little Boar's Head, No. Hampton, b. June 30, 1882; she kindly furnished most of the records of this branch; in 1935, they occupied the Taylor Homestead on Pine Road. No Ch.

92. JOHN[7] TAYLOR (Joseph[6], Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, now Freedom, Jan. 4, 1819; died at North Anson, Me., Nov. 30, 1907, ae. nearly 89; buried in his Lot, North Anson Cem. Blacksmith in North Anson, Me. over forty-five years.

After his father's untimely death, John Taylor, aged seven, was bound out to a Quaker family named Frye, in or near Effingham. About 1833, he went to live with his uncle, Samuel Jordan, at New Portland, Me., from whom he learned the blacksmith's trade; later, he served an apprenticeship in Winchester, Mass. In 1848, he went to North Anson, bought a shop, set up forge and soon became the leading village smith, continuing as such until he retired about 1895.

He bought a lot, originally containing about 15 acres, on Union St., between property owned by Asa Paine and Albert Ware, Esq., on which he built a comfortable, substantial home and out-buildings. To this place, Nov., 1851, he brought his bride, raised his family and lived the remainder of his days—over fifty-six years in the same house. This was located on Union St., about midway between Madison Road and the railroad crossing, the land extending back to the Carrabasset River (Seven Mile Brook), the roar of whose rapids as it hurried on to join the Kennebec not only used to lull his children to sleep at night but also made a never-to-be forgotten impression in my memory when I was fortunate enough, as a small boy, to visit the homestead. After his retirement, my grandfather sold the property to the Carrabasset Stock Farms Co., but retained a life-lease in the Homestead for himself and wife. In 1935, the house was still standing in about its original condition, although the present occupant had converted a portion of the barn into a garage.

John Taylor was regarded as an expert smith; examples of his craft, including sets of hand-forged chains, are now in the possession of his son, Olin Paine Taylor of Cranston, R. I. Although never active in town affairs, he was a highly respected citizen: in politics, a "Jeffersonian Democrat"; in habits, a total abstainer; physically and mentally vigorous until death. Slightly less than medium height, he was "strong and wiry" in build; sparing in conversation, with keen, common-sense philosophy of life. He did not attend church,—although wife and children were members and active in the Congregational Society, following its division with the Baptists,—but he had firm principles of morality and his fellow-townsmen used to say "John Taylor's word is better than most men's bond." "His industry and fair dealings with everyone," said his obituary in the Union Advocate, Dec. 5, 1907, "gave him a name that will live many years."

He married at North Anson, Me., Nov. 27, 1851, ISABEL PAINE, daughter of John[8] (William[7], John[6], Joseph[5], Thomas[4], William[3], Moses[2], Moses[1]) and Mary (Butler) Paine, born at North Anson, July 3, 1830; died there, June 3, 1906; buried in Family Lot, No. Anson Cem. She was of the 9th generation of descendants from Moses Paine who came to Braintree, Mass., from the vicinity of London, as early as 1632. Through the Badcocks (Babcocks) of Milton, Mass., she was distantly related to distinguished members of the Field Family; also Thomas Jefferson. Her maternal ancestor, Nicholas Butler, emigrated from County Kent, England, and about 1636, settled at Dorchester Neck (Boston). (For further details of her lineage, see manuscript copy, "Ancestors of Harold Murdock Taylor, Jr." by the compiler, deposited with the New England Historic Genealogical Society, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass.) Isabel Paine was known as the "belle of North Anson"; for several years before marriage she taught school; she became a devoted wife and mother, passing on—"in the month of roses," as was her expressed wish—about a year and a half before her husband. An excellent likeness of her at time of marriage, with companion picture of husband reproduced herein, is now in the possession of the compiler.

93. JOSEPH[7] MORRILL TAYLOR (Joseph[6], Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, now Freedom, Oct. 5, 1821; died at Seneca, Kan., Nov. 23, 1899, ae. 78; buried Seneca Cem. Carpenter; soldier; pioneer settler in Seneca, Kan.; served his Country on both land and sea: in two Wars, an Indian Expedition and a Naval enlistment.

In 1839, at the minimum age of eighteen, he enlisted in the U. S. Navy and served three years until 1842; details are missing as the Navy Dept. advises that the muster rolls of Portsmouth and Boston, from either of which Station he must have entered service, are lost for these years. Nov. 3, 1847, he enlisted at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn (New York City), for service in the Mexican War; his organization was Co. I, First Massachusetts Volunteers; discharged at Boston, July 24, 1848; for his services, his widow later received Pension No. 12,283.

Soon after this War, Joseph Morrill Taylor went West to Vermilion Co., Ill. and in 1852 was at Danville, where he married. In 1859, he moved further West, settling in Seneca, Nemaha Co., Kan. and living there the residue of his life. When he came to Kansas, it was still a Territory,—rent by violent controversy over negro slavery; in this turmoil, he was on the side of the Free Soilers, or those who wished to exclude slavery from new regions. During the Civil War, he entered the Union Armies and served "almost continuously until hostilities ceased"; at one time, Gen. Curtis was his commanding officer; he was engaged in action at Nashville, in Texas and at Atlanta, among other places, but unfortunately his service record again was lost; he never received a Civil War Pension and we are entirely dependent on the family account. Since he "was a man of few words," complete details of his military engagements were not handed down to his children. In Aug., 1863, he participated in an expedition against the notorious Quantrill who had raided Lawrence, Kan., and in the action he had the tip of the middle finger on his right hand shot away.

After the War, he had the Gold Fever. Seneca, near the Oregon Trail, lay on one of the routes to the Gold Fields. One day, about 1866, an emigrant train of twenty-five covered wagons hove in sight and encamped for the night near the home he had just finished building. The emigrants were bound for California; but their leader had become discouraged and offered to trade his outfit with Joseph Taylor for the new house. The man stayed over until the next day to win Mrs. Taylor's approval to the exchange. However, for the first time in their married life, she opposed her husband's wishes. "Joseph," she said, "thee must quit thy wanderings and settle down. Thee would never get near California if thee did start. Thee has no money and it will take money to buy feed for the horses and thy family. And, Joseph, I will not sign the Deed." The Caravan went on but Joseph Taylor remained behind—greatly chagrined. Two weeks later, Kit Carson, the famous Indian scout, brought in the news that he had found the remains of the party a hundred miles out; the Indians had attacked, killed men, women and children, and burned the wagons; no one escaped.

Perhaps this massacre induced Joseph Taylor to enter upon his last military adventure, for, in 1867, he joined an expedition against the Cheyennes, Kiowas and Arapahoes, met the Indians in the vicinity of Fort Kearney, Nebr., and put those marauders on the reservation for good and all.

He married at Danville, Vermilion Co., Ill., Nov. 30,

1852, PRUDENCE RICE, daughter of Raleigh and Susan (Leggett) Rice, born at Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18, 1823; died at Seneca, Kan., Apr. 17, 1917, ae. 93y. 5m.; buried Seneca Cem. She was reared in the Quaker faith, one of six children. (Her father was born in Raleigh, N. C., June 2, 1794, and named for that place; her mother, in Richmond, Va., May 15, 1800; they married in Richmond, Jan. 1, 1820, and the next year removed to Springfield, Ill., being pioneer settlers of that State. In 1840, they located in Danville. Mr. Rice operated an iron foundry as a young man in Richmond; and a maple sugar camp in Illinois.)

Children of Joseph Morrill and Prudence (Rice) Taylor, born at Seneca, Kansas (except 1st two at Danville, Ill.):

i. JOHN[8] RALEIGH, b. Sept. 5, 1854; d. Oct. 18.

ii. SARAH ELIZABETH, b. Aug. 14, 1857; d. Edgar, Nebr., Nov. 15, 1921; m. May 15, 1890, at Seneca, Kan., Frank A. Brass of Juniata, Adams Co., Nebr., who was living in Los Angeles, 1925. No Ch.

iii. JOSEPH JORDAN, b. Apr. 14, 1862; d. June 2, 1864.

178. iv. SUSAN, twin, b. Apr. 14, 1862; m. James Mason.

v. MERIAM, b. Nov. 12, 1865; d. Nov. 18, 1865.

vi. MARY, b. June 5, 1868; d. Oct. 26, 1872.

94. JOHN[7] TAYLOR (Elisha[6] J., John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Wiscasset, Me., Mar. 18, 1812; died at Concord, N. H., May 11, 1854, ae. 42:1:23 [FR; also Bible of Betsey (Taylor) Thresher, in possession of Mrs. Addie E. Fellows of Manchester, N. H.]; the "affectionate brother" who erected tombstone in Wiscasset, Me. to twin sister Susan. He lived in Concord; probably was the John Taylor chosen clerk, Jan. 5, 1842, at the first meeting for organizing the Universalist Church in Concord (Lyford's Hist. of Concord, 2:765).

He married at Manchester, N. H., CAROLINE E. BURGESS, who died at Concord, Feb.? 7, 1847, ae. 28 (FR).

Children of John and Caroline (Burgess) Taylor, born at Concord (FR):

i. CAROLINE[8] E., b. Aug., 1839; d. Oct. 14, 1841.

ii. SARAH BOYD, b. June 19, 1842; d. Wiscasset, Me., Apr. 25, 1861, ae. 18:10:6; after her mother's death,

iii. CHARLES HENRY, b. Apr., 1846; d. July 22, 1846.

95. WILLIAM[7] BOYD TAYLOR (Elisha[6] J., John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Wiscasset, Me., Jan. 16, 1815; died at Bath, Me., May 24, 1895, ae. 80:4:8; buried in Bath. Wellknown citizen and public official there. He was named for his uncle Capt. William M. Boyd, master mariner, and is not to be confused with another unrelated William Boyd Taylor of Wiscasset, son of George and Rhoda, born there, Mar. 15, 1808. Our W. B. went to Bath as a young man and was bank clerk and cashier there many years; also, city clerk, five years; city treasurer, fourteen years; active member, Beacon St. Methodist Church, serving as treasurer, trustee and steward. He owned and kept the Family Bible, previously referred to, which contains full records of births, marriages and deaths of his father's large family and their descendants—one of the most complete records of its kind I have ever seen.

He married at Alna, Me., Apr. 22, 1844, JANE SPRAGUE MORSE (Rev. Daniel Clark), born at Wiscasset, Feb. 4, 1811; died at Bath, Feb. 2, 1891, ae. 79:11:29; at the time of marriage, she was of Alna.

Children of William Boyd and Jane (Morse) Taylor:

i. CHARLES[8] DAVENPORT, b. Oct. 28, 1847; d. Nov. 2.

179. ii. CHARLES WILLIAM, b. Feb. 14, 1849; m. Mary J. Lewis.

iii. GEORGE DUNCAN, b. Jan. 4, 1851; d. Bath, Mar. 4, 1926; he had scarlet fever when a child "which impaired his mental development to some extent; he was cheerful and did odd job-work about town"; lived with his parents and then with his brother; unm.

96. ALFRED[7] TAYLOR (John[6], John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born July 5, 1812 (FR); died at Lennoxville, Sherbrooke Co., Province of Quebec, Canada, Aug. 30, 1892; buried Universalist Cem., Huntingville, P. Q.; his death record filed in Superior Court, Dist. of St. Francis,

ALFRED[7] TAYLOR (96), Aged 24 Years, July 5, 1836 and SALLY S. CATE, His Wife, Aged 20 Years, June 27, 1836
(Painted at Strafford, N. H., 1836)

Sherbrooke, signed by Wilburn Potter, pastor of Universalist Church, states: "Alfred Taylor of Lennoxville, son of John Taylor, age 80 yrs. 1 mo. 24 ds., died of Heart failure Aug. 30 (1892)." Early merchant in Lennoxville.

Left fatherless, and probably motherless, in infancy, Alfred Taylor first appears on New Hampshire records at Strafford, 1836, when there married; at that time he was "of Barrington," the next town. [A painting of himself and young bride is reproduced on another page. This intricately drawn and vividly colored work of art, 14 1/4 x 11 1/2, done at Strafford, 1836, by an unknown artist, is now in possession of a granddaughter, Mrs. Frederick[9] G. Platt (181, iv) of Springfield, Mass.] Young Alfred Taylor lived several years in Strafford, where first two children were born; but, about 1841, removed to Bradford (Haverhill), Mass. and resided there some fourteen years. He conducted a retail shoe business in Bradford—until his partner absconded with most of the firm's ready cash.

Soon afterwards, about 1855, he went north into Lower Canada, now Province of Quebec, first living in Stanstead. About four years later, he settled in Lennoxville, where he became one of its leading merchants and businessmen. He owned a large commercial block on the site of the present United Church (formerly the Methodist Society), to which, following the fire, he sold land for its new edifice; in one of the stores of this block, he conducted a grain and grocery business.

About 1871, he purchased a farm, on Eaton Road, 3 1/2 miles from Lennoxville, where he lived until 1877, when his 2nd wife died. In 1874, much of his town property was lost in the fire which destroyed most of Lennoxville. He passed his last years with son Alfred[8] on a farm now owned and occupied in part by Bishop's College. Miss Kathleen[9] H. Taylor (182, iv), a granddaughter, wrote (1934): "I asked an aged lady of 86 or 87, why my grandparents, uncle and aunt, were buried at the Universalist Church in Huntingville (where she always attended), but she did not know, except was sure they were not Universalists."

Capt. Joseph Cate of Strafford (VR; FR; also, Reg., 76:38); born at Barrington, June 27, 1816 (FR); died at Lennoxville, P. Q., Apr. 16, 1870 (FR). New Hampshire Vital Statistics give the marriages of several Joseph Cates in or near Barrington, but it is not clear which, if any, was father of Sally above. (One Joseph Cate married, Mar. 29, 1802, Sally Randel.) [The Cates of Barrington built the Old Garrison, one of the first houses—the usual type of garrison house or fort for refuge in case of Indian attack, constructed of logs, with upper story projecting over lower and plenty of loopholes; this place stood near Barrington Depot and was torn down about 1870, after an existence of 150 years; here Capt. William Cate lived; here, 1754, the first town meeting was held and Wm. Cate chosen selectman (Granite Monthly, 24:162). On the maternal side Sally Cate may have been a Sevey, or possibly a Sullivan—at least the former would explain her middle name and the latter why she named her first son Sullivan (documentary evidence lacking); if a Sullivan, she was probably related to Gen. John Sullivan, American officer in the Revolution and distinguished New Hampshire son who lived in the neighborhood.]

Mr. Taylor married (2) at Sherbrooke, P. Q., Dec. 26, 1872, PHOEBE ANN MALLORY (Rev. Archibald Duff, Plymouth Congregational, now United Church of Canada), the certificate of marriage speciyfing:

"Alfred Taylor, Trader, Widower, and Phoebe Ann Mallory, Spinster, Daughter of the late Aaron and Maria A. Mallory, all of Lennoxville, were Married, by Special License, on this twenty-sixth December, One thousand eight hundred and Seventy two, in presence of the subscribing Witnesses, by me

(Signed) Arch'd Duff

Phebe Ann Mallory
F. M. Mallory, brother of the Bride.
Ada Mallory, sister of the Bride.
G. W. Taylor, son of the Bridegroom.
Clara Mallory, sister of the Bride."

Phoebe[8] Ann Mallory, daughter of Aaron[7] Burke (Samuel[6], Aaron[5], Aaron[4], Thomas[3], Thomas[2], Peter[1] who signed the New Haven Plantation Covenant, 1644) and Ann (Garland) Mallory, was born in Lennoxville, P. Q., Jan. 12, 1845; died there, Sept. 5, 1877 (FR).

[Her great-grandfather, Aaron[5] Mallory, was a pioneer settler, 1804, in what is now Lennoxville, then consisting of a few temporary surveyor-huts and known as Little or Upper Forks to distinguish it from Big or Lower Forks, now Sherbrooke (the former refers to the junction of the Massawippi and St. Francis Rivers at Butternut Island, the stopping-place of the Indian trader in the old days). Aaron[5] Mallory, son of Aaron[4] and Joanna (Mitchell), was born in Old Woodbury, Conn., Apr. 9, 1760; baptised, Apr. 13; died Lennoxville, P. Q., Nov. 26, 1846 (FR); married Olive Terrill, daughter of Timothy, Jr. and Hope (Lee), born June 25, 1759; Aaron and Olive Mallory had six children, all born in Woodbury. He appears as the Aaron Mallory who served in the Revolution as "an aid to Gen. Washington for three years"; his grandfather, Thomas[3] Mallory, was the one who removed to Woodbury from New Haven (East Haven), being born there, Jan. 1, 1685; died Woodbury, July 21, 1783, not ae. 101 yrs., as stated, but 98:6:9; married, Jan., 1706, Elizabeth Bartlett, probably daughter of John who came to Stratford, Conn., 1678. (See Cothren's Hist. of Woodbury, 1:616 and 2:1514). The tradition is that Aaron[5] Mallory first came into Canadian territory on a hunting trip about 1800; much pleased with the prospect, he returned to Woodbury, sold his home a few years afterwards and freed his two negro slaves, Dan and Tike (Dan receiving gift of cottage and garden); he then brought his family (most of it) overland into Canada and settled on the scene of his previous explorations. He cleared from the primeval forest the estate now known as Fairview Dairy Farm, which passed from generation to generation, now (1935) owned and occupied by a descendant, Mrs. Florence[9] (Mallory) Herring (181, v) and family; he also cleared a large tract of land on the opposite side of the River, farms from which were later occupied by Mrs. Taylor's brothers, Samuel and Fred Mallory,—sold outside the Family after their decease. The original Mallory Homestead, now consisting of several hundred acres, lies on the west bank of the Massawippi; the old house was destroyed by fire and the present one built in the summer of 1887 by James Garland Mallory, another brother of Mrs. Taylor and husband of Helen[8] A. Taylor (181); this he gave to their daughter Florence as her wedding dowry; it is situated at an elevation on Route 5 to Derby Line, Vt., about 1/2 mile from the Lennoxville Post Office. (See Sherbrooke Daily Record, Dec. 12, 1930 and Feb. 25, 1933).]

i. CALANTHA[8] C., b. Feb. 26, 1837; d. Bradford, Mass., 1918; m. Sept. 19, 1860, Thomas A. Howard; res. Bradford, Mass. No Ch.

180. ii. SULLIVAN A(LFRED), b. Jan. 19, 1839; m. twice.

181. iv. HELEN AUGUSTA, b. same, Feb. 11, 1848; m. James Garland Mallory.

182. v. GEORGE WILSON, b. same, Feb. 3, 1851; m. Clara Olive Mallory.

vi. ALVERDO W., b. July 4, 1858; d. Jan. 29, 1882; m. May 11, 1881, Fannie E. Warner; b. Oct., 1861; d. Mar. 24, 1882. No Ch.

Children of Alfred and Phoebe (Mallory) Taylor, born at Lennoxville, P. Q.

viii. PHOEBE ANNE, b. Aug. 29, 1877; d. Oct. 16, 1880.

97. DAVID[7] TAYLOR (John[6] M., Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born prob. at Effingham, about 1796; died at Newmarket, Dec. 15, 1840 (PR). Farmer; served in War of 1812: enl. at Effingham, Oct. 5, 1814, ae. about 18 yrs., as private in Capt. John Willey's Co., N. H. Militia; disch. following Nov. 22; lived first in Effingham, but about 1829, removed to Exeter and then, 1839, to Newmarket.

He married at Effingham, May 27, 1819, EUNICE W. DAVIS (VR), born about 1799; died at Exeter, Mar. 23, 1882 (VR); Will, Feb. 22, 1882; prob. Mar. 27, 1882 (Rock. Co. Prob., 170:109). By its terms, she left to:

Niece Eveline Palmer of Fall River, Mass., silver and glass ware, cashmere shawl, 1 pr. blankets.

Niece Sarah Palmer of Dover, N. H., long black shawl, etc.
Almira Taylor of Exeter, bureau.
Sarah F. Keyes of Lowell, Mass., black shawl.
Abbie McIntire of Exeter, hooked rugs, etc.
Grandnephew George Palmer of Dover, rocking chair.
George W. Ryan of Waltham, Mass., bookcase.
Residue to said Eveline Palmer, Sarah and Eva Palmer, and Sarah F. Keyes; Eveline Palmer named executor.

In 1853, Mrs. Taylor was living in Exeter again, where she continued to reside; in 1878, Apr. 13, ae. 79, she applied for a Pension on account of her husband's military service (W. C. 9811), which was allowed; in her application, reference was made to children but no names designated. She and son George (only child mentioned) are named, 1856, in Will of John Mills Taylor (53), her father-in-law.

Child of David and Eunice (Davis) Taylor, born at Exeter:

i. GEORGE[8] A., b. Aug. 3, 1829; d. Exeter, June 9, 1870, ae. 41 (Exeter Directory, 1872); Corp. in Civil War, Co. E, 2nd N. H. Infantry (GR, Winter St. Cem., Exeter); mustered in June 3, 1861; disch. for disability, Aug. 2, 1861 (Bell's Hist. of Exeter).

98. JACOB[7] R. TAYLOR (John[6] M., Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born probably at Effingham, 1800 (GR); died at Exeter, Apr. 26, 1872, ae. 71 (GR and Exeter Directory, 1872, p. 89); buried Exeter Cem. Miller; lived first in Effingham, but, after marriage, in Gilmanton and later in Exeter; named in father's Will, 1856.

He married ELIZA HODGE, born in Dover, 1806; died at Exeter, 1877 (GR); in 1872, Exeter Directory states she was living on Middle St., Exeter. No vital records.

Children of Jacob R. and Eliza (Hodge) Taylor:

184. i. CHARLES[8] G., b. Gilmanton, May 8, 1825; m. Abby Lane.

ii. GEORGE G., b. 1838 (GR); d. Exeter, June 2, 1861, ae. 22 (VR); bur. in Family Lot, Exeter Cem.

99. JOHN[7] M. TAYLOR (John[6] Mills, Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born probably at Effingham, 1808 (GR); died at Brentwood, Aug., 1883-6 (Mrs. Nellie

M. Taylor of Exeter, 1933); buried Exeter Cem.; but if this is correct, tombstone death-date, 1878, is in error. He drove a tin peddler's cart and was known as tinman Taylor to distinguish him from another John[7] Taylor (126), also of Brentwood, called soapman Taylor; first lived in Exeter (Chestnut Hill), where his great-granddaughter, Blanche[10] Churchill Leavitt, resided, 1934; he bought land in Exeter, 1835, on Stratham-Portsmouth road and sold same, 1839; purchased lot in Exeter Cemetery, 1855; later, removed to Brentwood, probably before 1872, as he is not in Exeter Directory of that year.

He married, probably at Hampton, DOLLY BATCHELDER, daughter of Sanborn and Mary (Elkins) Batchelder of Bride Hill, Hampton (Dow; also, Batchelder Gen.), born there 1807 (GR); died at Exeter, Feb. 6, 1871, ae. 64 (VR); buried Exeter Cem. beside husband. He appears to have married (2) Dorothy H. ——, who died at Epping, Dec. 27, 1889, his widow, ae. 77:3:20 (VR) and whose Will, proved Jan. 15, 1890, states:

> Aug. 2, 1889, Dorothy Taylor of Brentwood, bequeaths to Maria True of Epping, wife of Daniel (David) True, the homestead in Brentwood, 3/4 a. and buildings, bought of Benj. F. Labree; also, promissory note for $100 of Asa B. Robinson, to my late husband John Taylor; also, residue of estate. Geo. N. Shepard of Epping, exect. (Rock. Co. Prob., 182:262).

> Dec. 10, 1875, Asa B. Robinson conveys to John Taylor, both of Brentwood, land in Brentwood. Again, Apr. 7, 1877, John M. Taylor of Brentwood assigns to D. H. Taylor for $100, mortgage note which he held against said Asa B. Robinson (Rock. Co. Deeds, 457:210). The identity of said D. H. Taylor is not disclosed, but we infer the party to be Dorothy Taylor, above testator.

Children of John M. and Dolly (Batchelder) Taylor, born at Exeter:

185. i. JOSIAH[8] W., b. Nov. 1, 1831; m. Urania Stilson.

186. ii. CLARA FRENCH, b. 1835; m. Almander Churchill.

iii. JOHN H., b. Mar. 25, 1844; d. Exeter, Feb. 18, 1915, ae. 70:11:18 (VR); bur. Exeter Cem.; his death record says he was b. in Brentwood, but this is prob. an error; birth not recorded; machinist in MR, emp. Swampscott Mch. Co., So. Newmarket; shoemaker in DR; many yrs. sexton, Congregational Ch., Exeter; he had in his possession an old Mills Family Bible now unfortunately lost; m. Cambridge, Mass., June 30, 1881, Martha J. Hall, dau. of Jeremiah and Sarah (Holt) (VR), b. Exeter, Apr. 28, 1841; d. there, Jan. 31, 1913 (VR); (her mother was b. Andover, Mass.). No Ch.

100. JOSEPH[7] SMITH TAYLOR (John[6] M., Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Exeter, Feb. 9, 1818; died there, Dec. 3, 1876; buried Exeter Cem. (GR). As a young man, lived in Lowell, Mass.; mill-overseer there, 1846; but returned to Exeter and, after father's death, occupied the Homestead; he resided on High St. in house owned now (1932) by Arthur S. French, one of the oldest houses in Exeter. He died intestate and William P. Moulton was appointed, Dec. 13, 1876, administrator; bond $3,000 (Rock. Co. Prob. 2109).

He married at Lowell, Mass., Feb. 22, 1846, ALMIRA A. HURD, daughter of Reuben and Sarah Hurd, said to have been born in or near Ossipee, N. H., Aug., 1819; died at Exeter, Jan. 25, 1886, ae. 66y. 5m.; buried Exeter Cem. (GR); Will, Jan. 14, 1886; prob. Feb. 1, next; personal estate to son (adopted) Herbert S. Taylor and George E. Robinson, equally (Rock. Co. Prob. 172:417).

Child (adopted) of Joseph S. and Almira (Hurd) Taylor:

i. HERBERT[8] S., b. Jefferson, Me., Nov. 22, 1854; d. Exeter, Mar. 29, 1925; cabinetmaker; he was son of William and Angeline Senior (MR); m. at Exeter, Nov. 24, 1881, Nellie M. Cram, dau. of Newton and Mary E. (Baker), b. Exeter, Sept. 1, 1856; d. there, Oct. 21, 1933, ae. 77; she kindly looked up gravestone records and was otherwise encouraging with this work. No Ch.

101. WILLIAM[7] T. TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Porter, Me. (Mass.), Apr. 24, 1810; died there, July 26, 1883; buried Porter Cem. Leading citizen and farmer of Porter. He served as town clerk for five years, 1833-8; selectman, 1841-3 and 1850-1; and was a member of the State Legislature, 1846.

He married, July 19, 1834, SALLY RICE, daughter of Nathaniel and Ruth (Libby) Rice of Freedom, N. H., born at Buxton, Me., Nov. 2, 1809; died at Porter, Me., Mar. 16, 1866; buried Porter Cem.

Children of William T. and Sally (Rice) Taylor, born at Porter, Me. (FR):

187. i. SAMUEL[8], b. Nov. 11, 1835; m. Evelyn M. Thompson.
188. ii. SARAH FRANCES, b. Dec. 14, 1836; m. Joseph F. Parsons.
189. iii. URSULA, b. June 5, 1838; m. Gilman Appleton Norton.
190. iv. RUTH RICE, b. Oct. 17, 1840; m. William Ridlon.

102. SAMUEL[7] TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Porter, Me. (Mass.), Mar. 23, 1812; died at Effingham, N. H., Mar. 9, 1855; buried Porter Cem. (Moulton's Hist. of Porter). Shoemaker; lived first in Porter, Me. and was town treasurer, 1839-40; removed to Effingham, where the children were born and he died, not quite 43.

He married SARAH JANE PULSIFER, daughter of Daniel Pulsifer, born at Gilmanton, N. H., Aug. 10, 1826; died at Boston, Mass., June 2, 1902; buried Wells, Me. (VR). She married (2), 1857, her first husband's own cousin, Calvin[7] M. Taylor (112) and they lived in Wells, Me.; after his decease, she removed to Boston.

Children of Samuel and Sarah (Pulsifer) Taylor, born at Effingham (FR):

i. ELODIA[8], b. abt. 1845; d. Wells, Me., abt. 1868; m. Joel Allen. Child:
1. HORTENSE[9] ALLEN, d. in infancy.

191. ii. EUGENE (Frank E.), b. Apr. 7, 1849; m. (1) Mary A. Littlefield.

103. SIMON[7] TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Porter, Me. (Mass.), Apr. 16, 1815; died at sea, about 1850. Storekeeper in Effingham Falls, N. H.; perhaps postmaster there, 1848 (Hist. of Carroll Co., 542), although he first lived in Freedom where birth of first child is recorded. The family account is: "Upon receipt of news of the discovery of gold in California, 1849, he left for the Gold Fields by ship via the Horn, being among the first to start; the vessel was lost and he was never heard of again."

He married, 1839, ROSE ANNE TOWLE, daughter of Amos and Betsey (Andrews) Towle, Jr., born at Freedom, Oct. 8, 1822; died at Milton, Mass. May, 1900 (FR).

Children of Simon and Rose (Towle) Taylor:

i. ADELAIDE[8] VICTORIA, b. Freedom, N. H., Oct. 17, 1839 (VR); d. Chelsea, Mass., 1864; unm.

192. ii. BESSIE TOWLE, b. Mar. 21, 1842; m. Jason G. Witham.

iii. LIDA ANN, b. May 23, 1843; d. Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 27, 1930; unm.

104. DANIEL[7] TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Porter, Me., Mar. 4, 1823; died at Effingham Falls, N. H., May 3, 1905, ae. 82; buried there. Miller; about 1848, he located at Effingham Falls and engaged in the grain, woolen and lumber business there over fifty years.

107. THOMAS[7] LORD TAYLOR (Henry[6] D., Lt. John[5], John, Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, about 1810; died in the West Indies, about 1845 (FR). First lived near Haverhill, Mass., where, 1836-8, he was superintendent of the Poor Farm; thereafter, engaged in the hotel promotion business in New York State and Massachusetts; in 1842, resided in Boston and in a revival joined the Dudley St. Baptist Church.

In the fall of 1843, he went on a business trip to the West Indies; we have before us photostat of a highminded letter, three pages, written by him at Curaçoa (40 mi. n. w. Venezuela), Dec. 30, 1843. This letter was addressed to his wife, Mary Pearson Taylor, %George C. Goodwin, and begins, "Dear much beloved wife and children." He writes that he expected to go "next Wednesday" to St. Thomas

(one of the Virgin Islands), where the small-pox was then in epidemic, and "in about two months to Boston"; this he evidently did (the records give a son born at East Cambridge, Mass., Mar., 1845, to Thomas and Mary Taylor), but went back to the Caribbean where he died. The exact date of death is unknown but his health was poor, as revealed in the letter of 1843, and he had just recovered from a serious sickness in Curaçoa. However, it seems apparent that the 1843 trip was not his last as one family account has it.

He married (1) MARY GOODWIN who died at Haverhill, Mass., Apr. 15, 1836 (VR); and (2) at Haverhill, Aug. 13, 1836, MARY PEARSON (VR), daughter of Isaac and Sarah (Jackman) Pearson, born there, Sept. 30, 1807; died July 17, 1890. Ellery[9] Kirke Taylor (282) states: her father was son of Noyes[4] (David[3], Benjamin[2], John[1] of Rowley, Mass., 1643) and Hannah (Adams) Pearson, Noyes Pearson being a Revolutionary soldier, 1775; her mother was dau. of Dea. Timothy[5], 3rd, (Benjamin[4], Timothy[3], James[2], James[1] of Newbury, Mass., 1648) and Mercy or Molly (Burbank) Jackman, Timothy[5] Jackman, 3rd, being a drummer at the Battle of Bunker Hill; over 40 other immigrant ancestors of Mary Pearson, all here before 1656, have been identified and charted (photostat before me) by Mr. Taylor.

110. NEHEMIAH[7] FOLSOM TAYLOR (Henry[6] D., Lt. John[5], John[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Effingham, Mar. 17, 1818; died at Los Angeles, Cal., May 20, 1911, ae. 93; buried there (FR). Hotelkeeper and merchant, Nashua; Sunrise City, Minn.; and Boston; also lived in Freeport, Ill. and Los Angeles, Cal.

At time of marriage, 1846, he was of Kingston, N. H. (Printed record gives erroneously name of father as Henry B.); later, he conducted the old Nashua House in Nashua.

About 1855, Nehemiah F. Taylor removed to Sunrise City, Minn. and kept there a general store and tavern; this was a trading post for the Chippewa Indians who brought in furs and beadwork in return for supplies; the Indian agents always put up at his establishment when in the locality; he was also the postmaster. In or before 1867, he removed to Freeport, Ill., where he engaged in the insurance business over ten years. About 1880, he returned East, to Boston, and for twenty-five years conducted a surgical supply business there, residing in Malden. In 1905, he retired and went to Los Angeles with his daughter and her family. He is recalled as "a gentleman of the old school."

He married at Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 25, 1846, ESTHER WOODMAN COLBY (he gave his age as 28; she as 19) (VR), daughter of Ebenezer and Sally (Blodgett) Colby, 3rd, born at Sanbornton, N. H., Apr. 19, 1827 (FR) or Apr. 16, 1826 (Hist. of Sanbornton); died at Wells, Me., Aug. 9, 1904. (Her grandfather, Ebenezer Colby, 2nd, served as a Revolutionary soldier; corp., Capt. Ezra Currier's Co., Col. Drake's Regt., at Burgoyne's Surrender, 1777; her grandmother, Anna (Hoyt) Colby, was daughter of Bernard Hoyt and Alma[4] (Stuart), the latter purported to be directly descended from Robert[3], Ebenezer[2] and Duncan[1] Stuart, the emigrant from Scotland and "a very near relative of Mary Queen of Scots." Mrs. Taylor was an unusual woman in her own right; she was one of the first women physicians in Boston; studied medicine after her marriage and when living in Illinois, attended Hahnemann College of Homeopathy, then located in Chicago; received her M.D. about 1872, and a degree in Surgery; practised successfully for many years in Freeport, Ill., and Boston.

Child of Nehemiah F. and Esther (Colby) Taylor, born at Sanbornton, N. H.:

About 1848, he was in the livery business, Lawrence, Mass.; 1850, in the bakery business in Haverhill and, later, in Amesbury, Mass.

In the Spring of 1852, he removed to Illinois and established an eating-place at Huntley Station, then the western terminus of the Northwestern Railroad in process of extension; he followed the construction until the Road reached Rockford. Afterwards, he located near Savanna on the Mississippi, and conducted a hack line from that place to Freeport; was also the mail carrier. In 1855, he became a resident of Freeport and opened the livery, feed and sale stable business with which he was prominently identified the residue of his life; burned out in 1861, he immediately erected a large two-story brick structure and developed one of the finest enterprises of its kind in northern Illinois. He was a man of distinguished appearance, in later life with a long-pointed, white beard; member of the Presbyterian Church, and Excelsior Lodge, A. F. & A. M. (Hist. of Stephenson Co.).

He married at Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 17, 1847, FRANCENA M. PRESCOTT (VR), then of Bristol, N. H., daughter of Jeremiah H. and Sally (Drake) Prescott (Prescott Mem., 537-80), born at Wentworth, N. H., Aug. 16, 1826 (Hist. of Bristol); died at Chicago, Apr. 1, 1915, ae. 89, at the home of grandson Everett[9] Taylor Clayton, where she passed her last years; buried in Freeport (FR).

124. JACOB[7] TAYLOR (William[6], Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born presumably at Sandwich, about 1800; died at Sandwich, Feb. 5, 1870, ae. 70 (FR). Farmer in Sandwich; lived first on farm owned jointly with brother William and then on a place adjoining; these were located on southerly side of Holderness road. He was sometimes called Jr. to distinguish him from an older Jacob, not related. The following Deeds refer to him:

1831, Sept. 3, Josiah Cooke, wife Jane, to Jacob and William Taylor, husbandmen, all of Sandwich, for $600, two pieces of land there, as follows: 50 a. on road leading to Holderness; and 8 a., adjoining land of Winthrop Seavey and land formerly owned by Joseph Hadley. (The Cooke property was previously owned by Elizabeth Pinkham and Reuben Moulton who sold to Cooke, 1827 and 1829. (Strafford Co. Deeds, 154:394.)

1837, Nov. 29, Aaron Beede, wife Mary, to Jacob Taylor, Yeoman, all of Sandwich, for $85, about 18 a., Lot No. 6, 3rd Long Range, abutting David C. Page and Samuel Thompson; also a narrow strip on east side of southerly half of said lot. (Do., 180:174).

1837, Dec. 9, Jacob Taylor to William Taylor, both of Sandwich, for $300, easterly half of farm "on which said William now resides"; also 8 a. adjoining easterly side of said farm (Do., 181: 502).

1848, June 29, Jacob Taylor, Jr., wife Abigail M., to William Taylor, both husbandmen, of Sandwich, for $12, 1 a. This land was surrounded by William Taylor's farm and according to pencil note on Deed was "by the big barn" (Carroll Co. Deeds, 21:49). (This Deed is the first mention of him as Jacob, Jr.)

The next day he gave receipt for $1 received of William Taylor in full settlement of all demands to date.

1864, May 7, in Deed of the Homestead from William Taylor to son Augustus F., Jacob Taylor's farm is cited as laying on west side of property conveyed.

Jacob Taylor married at Sandwich, Nov. 21, 1847, ABIGAIL M. SMITH (VR), daughter of Gilman and Annie (Mooney) Smith, born at Sandwich, about 1809; died there, Jan. 25, 1885, ae. 76; her death record says her father was born in Brentwood; her mother in Eaton.

Child of Jacob and Abigail (Smith) Taylor (perhaps others):

i. BERT[8], family record says he went West; n. f. r.

125. WILLIAM[7] TAYLOR (William[6], Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Sandwich, June 8, 1808; died there, May 6, 1875 (VR); buried Grove (Methodist) Cem. Farmer in Sandwich; his Homestead was on southerly side of Holderness road, about 2 1/2 miles from Center Sandwich; the original house is still standing, owned, until recently, by the late Archibald Carey Coolidge of Brookline, Mass. After 1865, when he sold the house to his son, he lived on a smaller farm nearer the Center; this is now (1933) owned by Herbert O. Warner of Hartford, Conn.

William Taylor was only about a year old when his father died, but we are indebted to him for most of what is known of his parents, brothers and sister, as well as his own family, since the vital records are very incomplete. He kept a record of births and deaths, original of which has been preserved by his grandson's widow, Mrs. Christine E. Taylor of Sandwich; she loaned it to me, together with some dozen deeds in which he and brother Jacob Taylor are mentioned.

In 1830, Apr. 26, William Taylor leased on shares homestead farm of Eleanor Horne; Nancy Taylor, witness to agreement. July 28th, next, he bought five acres of Joseph Hadley, part of Lot No. 8, 1st Long Range (Strafford Co. Deeds, 150:452). The following year, Sept. 3, he and brother Jacob bought the Josiah Cooke farm, of which, Dec. 9, 1837, he became sole owner, as stated.

Other purchases which he made:

1839, Apr. 8, Winthrop Seavey, wife Elizabeth, to William Taylor, husbandman, all of Sandwich, for $250, about 19 a. in Sandwich: bounded northerly by highway from Theodore Atkinson's to David C. Page's land; westerly by his own land; southerly by land of said Taylor and Page; easterly by John Cook and Jonathan W. Curtis; a pencil note on the Deed says this land was "known to me as School House field"; it had been sold to Seavey by Samuel Thompson, 1838. (Strafford Co. Deeds, 181:540).

1843, Jan. 11, Lowel N. Clifford, wife Abigail, of Epping, to William Taylor of Sandwich, husbandman, for $110, about 40 a. (evidently part of the "mountain pasture," so called), as follows: beginning at n. w. corner of land of said William Taylor, running northeasterly to ledge; easterly bounding on the mountain to land of Jeremiah Smith and Josiah Cook; thence south to William Taylor's land; thence west to first mentioned bound—"land which I bought of John Norris" (Carroll Co. Deeds, 3:535). (The mountain referred to is known as Taylor Mountain; the land remained in the family until Aug., 1931, when grandson's widow sold to Archibald Carey Coolidge; it is now (1933) owned by Lawrence Webster of Boston and Holderness.)

1849, May 23, Thomas Burleigh, Jr., wife Theresa, of Sandwich, to William Taylor, ditto, farmer, for $155, about 20 a.; bounded northerly by Samuel Thompson; easterly by said Thompson and John Beede; southerly on land of said Beede and H. D. Howe; westerly by said Taylor and George Page (Do., 14:463).

In 1855, Dec. 10, William Taylor bought land in Illinois, to which State many Sandwich residents had migrated previously; he did not go there himself, but two of his sons did, q.v. On this date, Winthrop Seavey (brother-in-law) of Lee Co., Ill., sold to William Taylor of Sandwich, land in Whiteside and Lee Cos., as follows: 1/2 quarter section No. 11, in Township No. 22, North Range No. 7 East in Whiteside Co., and timber lot, five acres, in Lee Co.; the Deed is recorded in both Counties: in Whiteside, Jan. 23, 1856 (Bk. S, p. 207); in Lee, June 15, 1865, nearly 10 years after purchase (Bk. 6, p. 207?).

In 1864, May 7, he conveyed his Homestead and other Sandwich property to son Augustus F. Taylor in return for $2,000 and maintenance for life of himself and wife; both to be provided "with suitable food, drink, clothes, nursing, medicine and all other things suitable and necessary" in the son's home, or, at their option, to receive yearly instead $100 during life (Carroll Co. Deeds, 45:568).

He married at Sandwich, July 22, 1830, HANNAH SEAVEY (FR), daughter of Joshua and Betsey (Webster) Seavey, born at Farmington, May 16, 1812 (FR; her death rec. also says Farmington, but son Augustus' death rec. gives her birthplace as Brentwood); died at Sandwich, Feb. 3, 1881 (VR). "Her three brothers, Winthrop, Jessie and Asa Seavey," writes Mrs. Harry C. Mason of Portsmouth, a relative, "went to Sugar Grove, Ill., about 1841; also both parents; Joshua Seavey d. Nov. 4, 1862 and Betsey, his wife, d. June 17, 1861; both buried in Sugar Grove Cem., near Dixon, Ill."

(Only iii. and viii. appear on Town Records.)

126. JOHN[7] HARRIMAN TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Jonathan[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Brentwood, Mar. 4 (5), 1826; died there, Oct. 31, 1893 (VR); buried Brentwood Cem. Farmer and soapmaker in Brentwood; was named for Rev. John Harriman, popular pastor in Hampton, Plaistow, etc. He helped his father build the house, the present Taylor Homestead, which he purchased, Aug. 8, 1854, with the land, for $4000, agreeing to care for his parents "in sickness and health during life." This he and his wife did in creditable fashion as well as for others in and out of the family. They attended the Brentwood Baptist Church and, at one time, he sang in the choir. Except for brief residence in East Wilton, 1854, he always lived on the Homestead, "the best father who ever lived."

"In the winter of 1856, he was working in the woods one bitter cold day when he found an Indian family —Tom, Mary his wife, and little baby—in pitiful circumstances. The parents were half-frozen in their rude shanty and the baby was sick. He brought them to his own home and sent for a doctor . . . He kept them there the rest of the winter; they occupied what is now the kitchen and made many Indian baskets."

He carried on the work of his father—on the Homestead, to which he succeeded, and especially in legal matters. As a young man, he was licensed to teach school. Dec. 26, 1832, Ephraim Crockett and Leavitt C. Little, "Superintinding Committee," stated:

"This may certify, that having examined Mr. Moses L. Taylor in reading, writing, Arithmatick, Geography and English Grammer, give it, as our opinion, that he is qualified to instruct, or teach a common primary school as Law requires."

Although not a church member, he was one of its corporation and active in its affairs for many years. He served in the State Legislature several terms; was delegate to Republican Conventions; justice of the peace and trial justice, often holding court in his parlor or kitchen. Once, some boys were before him on trial for fishing in Taylor's brook on the Sabbath. After sternly reprimanding them, he fined them a cent apiece for each fish caught—16 in all. After they had gone, the local minister, who had brought the charge, remonstrated with the court for being so lenient. The judge looked-up at him and gently queried, "Didn't you and I catch fish in that brook on Sundays when we were that age?"

He was the recognized political leader of the district; held political meetings at his house and was a keen student of politics, local and national; subscribed to the leading Republican paper of his day, Horace Greeley's New York Tribune. It has always been said that he was delegate to the first Republican Convention in New Hampshire; he was specially active in the campaign to elect Hon. Cyrus Sulloway to Congress (37, ii, 3, a). He was known as the Squire, being the only one so called in town during his time. He vigorously carried on the Homestead, but after his second marriage, he built a new house in the village, turned the farm over to son Frank L., and thereafter devoted himself mostly to legal business. At his funeral one of his neighbors said: "he was the only man in town who could cast interest without mistake." He also had a deep concern in local and family history; was President of Danbury Centennial which celebrated, Oct. 25, 1871, the founding of the Town by his grandfather*; was prime mover in the Reed Family Association, organized 1867; kept records not only of his immediate ancestors, but received and passed on the important tradition that Anthony[1] Taylor the Founder came to Strawberry Bank, 1636, via West Indies.

He married at Danbury, Mar. 18, 1834, his first cousin, REBEKAH REED, daughter of Samuel and Annie (Sayles) Reed, born at Grafton, Aug. 23, 1808; died at Danbury, Oct. 6, 1879, ae. 71; buried Eastern Cem. [Her father, Samuel Reed, was son of Samuel and Joanna (Paige)

*The Officers of the Day included: Moses L. Taylor, President; Stillman Clark, Secretary; Dea. John[6] Taylor (73), Vice-President; Capt. James[7] Taylor Smith (37, ii, 5), Marshall. Other descendants of Anthony[5] Taylor were prominent in the exercises, "held on the common between the Town-House and the Baptist Meeting House . . . by count from 1000 to 1500 were present . . . the largest gathering in Danbury." (Newspaper account.)

(p. 198), b. Jan. 6, 1772; d. Oct. 29, 1824, in 53rd year; m. Annie Sayles and had nine children; their descendants formed the Reed Family Assn. (above), first meeting held in Danbury; they continued to meet, with few lapses, every two years on Labor Day. Sept. 7, 1914, the 15th bi-annual Reunion was held at the Waldo Congregational Church, Brockton, Mass.:

About 75 were present; Mr. and Mrs. George H. Corliss of Seattle, Wash. and F. R. Corliss, Eagle Grove, Ia. came the greatest distance; M. B. Foss, Etna, N. H. and Mrs. Abbie Smith, Laconia, N. H., both 81, were oldest present, while Russell Reed, Hyde Park, Mass., ae. 18 mos., was youngest. Those participating in program: Rev. Cyrus Corliss, Lisbon, N. H.; Rev. Francis Reed, Worcester, Mass.; Mrs. Rena A. Harriman and Mrs. Ray E. Reed, Brockton, Mass.; Scott F. Taylor, Hyde Park and Amos L. Taylor, Belmont, Mass.; Frank L. Taylor of Dorchester, Mass., elected President; descendants of eight of the nine Reed children attended. (Excerpt from Brockton paper, Sept. 8, 1914.)]

138. RUFUS[7] TAYLOR (James[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Salisbury, Oct. 11, 1809; died at Nashua, Feb. 20, 1892, ae. 82 yrs. 4 mos.; buried there, Woodlawn Cem. (VR). Stone mason and contractor in Nashua.

He accompanied his parents to Middlesex, Vt.; lived for a short time in "Canada Easte," where first child was born. The birth record of this child, as contained in book at Chipman Post No. 89, G. A. R., Beverly, Mass. and communicated by Mrs. Cora P. Sawtell, is: "Orange Rufus Taylor born Jan. 28, 1836, Bloomfield, C. E.," i.e., Canada East or Lower Province of Quebec. (No such town as Bloomfield appears in Canada East; it may be that Bloomfield, Vt., near the Canadian Line, is referred to, although no vital records are found there.)

Before 1840, he was living in Vermont and resided at Montpelier and Middlesex, but about 1844, located in Nashua, N. H., where he was a respected member of the community: tax collector, ward 5, 1862; selectman, 1868, and other years.

He married AMANDA POST, who died at Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 30, 1843 (VR); buried Lot 302, Green Mount Cem. (GR). According to death record, she was daughter of Moses Post and her birthplace was Dunham, Conn. I never found any Dunham, Conn.; possibly Dunham, Missisquoi Co., P. Q., was intended, despite tradition "though married in Canada, she was not a Canadian." (Durham, Conn. was considered—without success.) It is possible their marriage was performed by his uncle Rev. Jonathan Taylor of Cookshire, as Bloomfield, Vt. is on the road over present State Line, leading directly to Cookshire, but that is pure conjecture.

Rufus Taylor married (2) at Nashua, N. H., Feb. 25, 1847, SARAH ROBINSON, daughter of Moses and Lucy (Burnham) Robinson, born at Greenfield, Oct. 14, 1815; died at Nashua, Feb. 21, 1896; buried Woodlawn Cem. (FR and GR).

237. iii. JAMES FRANK, b. Mar. 9, 1863; m. Emily A. French.

141. HIRAM[7] R. TAYLOR (Joseph[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Hebron, Nov. 9, 1811; died at Chicago some time after 1874 (FR). Carpenter in Hebron and Warren; went to Chicago before July, 1863; returned to Warren at wife's decease, 1874, but went back to Chicago. He was of an inventive turn of mind and took out patents on threshing machinery. The Hist. of Plymouth confuses him with his brother George.

He married at Hebron, Oct., 1835, MARY M. FOWLER, daughter of David and Deborah (Blake) Fowler, born there, Nov. 15, 1812; died at Warren, Apr. 27, 1874; there bur. (FR). (See also Hist. of Bristol, 199.)

Children of Hiram R. and Mary (Fowler) Taylor, born at Hebron (FR):

i. SARAH[8], m. Mr. Bean; lived in Hebron and had:
1. HERSHEL[9] BEAN, who was adopted by his grandmother Taylor, after his mother's death, and re-named Hershel Hiram Taylor; about 1874, he is said to have located in Manchester and married, but I found there no vital records.
238. ii. LUCY M., b. July 1, 1839; m. Proctor E. Harris.

142. JONATHAN[7] FRENCH TAYLOR (Rev. Jonathan[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., Apr. 18, 1816; died there, Nov. 5, 1898, ae. 82; buried Cookshire Cem. Always called French—his own middle name and his grandmother's maiden name; successful farmer in Cookshire all his life. About 1847, he succeeded to the homestead, then consisting of 270 acres (the original 100 a. in lot No. 13, 8th Range, previously referred to; and in addition, 170 a., in lots 13, 14 and 16, 7th Range). This farm is about a mile from town toward Eaton Corner, east of that of F. R. Cromwell, and, in 1931, was occupied by Albert Pageau.

French Taylor married at Cookshire, Dec. 13, 1838, ELIZA OLIVE POPE, daughter of Col. John and Sophia (Laberee) Pope, born at Cookshire, Aug. 27, 1817; died there, Dec. 25, 1865; buried Cookshire Cem. Her father, Col. John Pope (1786-1856), was son of John and Fanny Pope. John, Sr. (1763-1853) is said to have lived in Dorchester (Boston), Mass., to have disagreed with his family, perhaps over the Revolutionary conflict, and to have left home about 1780. As early as 1792, he was in Hereford, Lower Canada, at the headwaters of the Connecticut, and later settled in what is now Cookshire. Mrs. Taylor's brother was Hon. John Henry Pope (1819-1889), one of the Dominion's distinguished sons—cabinet minister, railroad builder, financier—father of Hon. Rufus H. Pope, M.P., director of large enterprises, now (1931) living in Cookshire. Her mother, Sophia Laberee, was daughter of Rufus Laberee (1769-1842), who, with his wife, Olive Farwell, and six children, came to Eaton from Charlestown, N. H., 1798, at which time there were "only four families." Consult Channell's Hist. of Compton Co.

Children of Jonathan F. and Eliza (Pope) Taylor, born at Cookshire (FR):

i. LOUISA[8] ELIZABETH, b. Aug. 5, 1841; d. 1862; unm.

143. REV. OLIVER[7] TAYLOR (Rev. Jonathan[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., Jan. 24, 1818; died at Orange Park, Fla., Sept. 3, 1891; buried in Orlando, Fla. (FR). Active and beloved clergyman in the Episcopal Church, as his father before him; first at Sault St. Marie, Mich. and later, 1850-54, amid pioneer conditions, at Pontiac, Mich., where he was first Rector of Zion Church.

Oliver Taylor studied for the ministry at the Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church (now Kenyon College), Gambier, Ohio; took Priest's Orders at Zanesville, O., Sept. 12, 1847; and for the next few years, 1847-50, before locating in Pontiac, was at Maumee, O. He served in the Civil War as Chaplain of the 5th Michigan Cavalry: appointed, Sept. 2, 1862; taken prisoner, July 5, 1863, following the Battle of Gettysburg in which he was engaged; confined three months in notorious Libby Prison before exchanged and paroled. With health broken, he returned to Pine Lake, Mich. near Pontiac, and resided there until 1879, when he sought a less rigorous climate in Florida,—at Orange Park—again as one of the first residents. Here he preached some years more, until retirement, and lived the residue of life.

He married at Dundee, Tuscarawas Co., O., Oct. 21, 1850, Mrs. Anna Marie Schoolcroft, daughter of John Johnston; she died at Pontiac, Feb. 19, 1852. No children. He married (2) at Pine Lake, Mich., Apr. 19, 1854, HELEN ANN WILSON, daughter of Dr. William and Susan (Simpson) Wilson, born at Dorchester, near Oxford, England, Aug. 12, 1826; died Apr. 25, 1912; buried in Orlando, Fla. 144. REUBEN[7] TAYLOR (Rev. Jonathan[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., Mar. 7, 1825; died at Montreal, July 10, 1909, ae. 84; there buried. He attended school in Cookshire and Bishop's College, Lennoxville. His father wished him to take up farming but business and the city appealed more, and in 1844, he went to Montreal, where he engaged in the wholesale dry goods business for forty-five years. He retired in 1889 but continued to reside in Montreal; highly respected and widely known for his hospitality.

He married at Montreal, June 1, 1855, MARY ELIZABETH LONSDELL, eldest daughter of Rev. Richard and Lydia (Byrd) Lonsdell, born at Cork, Youghal Co., Ireland, Aug. 7, 1828; died at Montreal, Nov. 19, 1910. Her father was of Youghal Co. and her mother of Wicklow, Wicklow Co., Ireland.

146. SAMUEL[7] SELDEN TAYLOR (Samuel[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Danbury, Aug. 29, 1818; died there, July 31, 1861; buried Eastern Cem. (FR). Farmer; always occupied the Homestead at Four Corners.

He married at Danbury, Oct. 26, 1841, MARY[7] SARAH JACKSON, daughter of Dea. Joshua and Mary (Taylor)

Jackson, born at Brooklyn, Pa., Sept. 24, 1818; died at Danbury, Oct. 25, 1901; buried Eastern Cem. She was his 2nd cousin and came to Danbury with her parents when a small child; see (68). When "keeping company" with her future husband, so the story goes, she was once accused by her parents of coming home with "that Selden Taylor." "And don't you lie about it either," shouted her father, the Deacon. "I will too lie about it," replied Mary with equal spirit.

Children of Samuel S. and Mary (Jackson) Taylor, born at Danbury:

245. i. CHARLES[8] SELDEN, b. July 21, 1843; m. twice.
ii. MARY ALICE, b. Nov. 21, 1847; d. 1865; ae. 18.

148. EZRA[7] AUGUSTUS TAYLOR (Ezra[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., July 13, 1825; died at Toronto, Ont., Jan. 5, 1894; buried Woodlawn Cem., Malden (now Everett), Mass. Bookseller in London, Ont. and Toronto. (Photo at p. 276.)

He went to Boston as a young man and was employed there several years as a clerk; about 1857, removed to London, Ont. and for more than thirty years conducted a book and stationery business. About 1890, he withdrew from this enterprise and located in Toronto where he was Asst. Manager of the Bible Society on Yonge St. He is remembered as a man of high character, much respected. After he had purchased the book business in London, he suffered a heavy fire loss and was forced to assign; but he did not let it go at that; he refused to rest content until he had paid off every cent of debt unpaid at time of receivership. Books and Notions, Canadian Booksellers Journal, 10:16: ".. .. .. he was a true bookseller, loving books for their own sake .. .. .. a veritable encyclopedia of book knowledge .. .. .. one of Canada's leading men in the profession .. .. .."

He married at Boston, Mass., July 5, 1854, as her 2nd husband, MRS. BETSEY FLETCHER NICHOLS BALL, daughter of Ebenezer and Betsey (Fletcher) Nichols, born at South Malden, now Everett, Mass., Oct. 10, 1827; died Dec. 29, 1897; buried Woodlawn Cem., Malden, Mass. Her first husband was Ezra Homer Ball who died Oct. 16, 1851, a few years after their marriage.

Children of Ezra A. and Betsey (Nichols) (Ball) Taylor, born at London, Ont.:

249. i. ANNIE[8] PERSIS, b. Aug. 31, 1858; m. Arthur L. Nichols.

250. ii. EDWARD ARTHUR, b. Jan. 4, 1864; m. Isabella Hunter.

149. SAMUEL[7] TAYLOR (Ezra[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., June 18, 1827; died at Eaton, Feb. 8, 1895; buried Cookshire Cem. Farmer, although he taught school a few years as a young man. About 1855, he sold his own farm and moved on to that of his father, which then comprised about 225 acres. He continued to occupy and work the homestead the rest of life; was long active in the Anglican Church and Sunday School work.

He married, Nov. 4, 1852, HARRIET OUGHTRED, daughter of Thomas and Lydia (Laberee) Oughtred, born at Eaton, Nov. 29, 1831; died at Cookshire, Apr. 3, 1912; buried Cook-shire Cem. [Her father, Thomas Oughtred, came from Yorkshire, Eng. about 1823, as a government teacher; was a land surveyor and lay reader in the Anglican Church; active in local affairs but died prematurely, in 1836, when Harriet was only five years old. Her mother, left with three young daughters, succeeded in raising them and educating them, so that each became a school teacher at fourteen years of age. Harriet was so employed for seven years, until her marriage. She kept an accurate list of the children of Jonathan[5] and Dolly (French) Taylor, her husband's grandparents, and other family records, now in the possession of Mrs. Col. John[8] Henry Taylor (239) of Cookshire.]

Children of Samuel and Harriet (Oughtred) Taylor, born at Eaton, P. Q.:

251. i. THOMAS[8] WALTER, b. July 9, 1855; m. Edna T. Cummings.

ii. ADA M., b. Aug. 31, 1861; d. Apr. 27, 1884; m. Mar. 31, 1882, S. Alonzo Hodge, son of Samuel Beech and Lois (Hall), b. Eaton, Aug. 17, 1846; d. Mar. 27, 1897; (after his wife's death, Mr. Hodge m. (2) June 4, 1885, Nabbie Ann Rolfe of Dudswell). Child:
1. T. WALTER[9] HODGE, b. Mar. 22, 1883; d. 1885.

iii. EVA H., b. Oct. 12, 1863; lived in Eaton and Cookshire but moved to Lennoxville, 1933; res. there, 1935; her life was devoted to the service of others; unm.

iv. WILLIAM HENRY, b. Aug. 24, 1868; d. Aug. 28.

150. JOSEPH[7] L. TAYLOR (Ezra[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Cookshire (Eaton), P. Q., Nov. 25, 1829; died at Birchton (Eaton), P. Q., May 16, 1909, ae. 79 yrs. 6 mos.; buried Eaton Cem.

His middle initial "L" did not stand for a middle name, but was used by him to distinguish from another Joseph, unrelated. He taught both day and singing school for several years, but became a farmer; held important local offices: councillor; school commissioner; Sunday School Supt. and Choir Leader, Birchton Congregational Church; lived between Eaton Corner and Birchton, on what was originally the Laberee Homestead, which he acquired, 1860. This fertile farm originally comprised about 600 acres, Lots 13 and 14, 5th Range; the first clearing was made, 1798, by Rufus Laberee, Sr., who built a log-cabin; in 1812, his son Henry built a frame house—the fourth frame house in Eaton—still standing in good repair, the home of succeeding Taylor generations. For years it was the favorite stopping-place of the Sherbrooke-Sawyerville stage. In 1935, it was owned by Edgar[8] E. Taylor, but occupied by his son, Stanley[9] J. Taylor (338).

This Homestead is the scene of Taylor Family Reunions held annually the last Sunday in June since 1933. They are attended by members of the Family, from 60 to 75 in number, from many parts of the Eastern Townships. In the morning, the descendants assemble for divine worship at the Church where special services are conducted by the pastor, Rev. L. O. Bunt; after which, they proceed to Taylor's Sugar Grove, about one-quarter mile from the farmhouse, where a picnic lunch is served. The afternoon is spent in review of family history by various speakers and renewal of family ties. See Sherbrooke Daily Record, July 5, 1933 and July 6, 1935.

Joseph L. Taylor married, Sept. 5, 1853, THEODOTIA LABEREE, daughter of Henry and Harriet (Chambers) Laberee, born on the Homestead, Sept. 5, 1833; always lived there until she died, Mar. 14, 1910; buried Eaton Cem.; active member of the Congregational Church; granddaughter of Rufus Laberee, pioneer settler who came to Eaton from Charlestown, N. H., 1798. See Account 142.

Children of Joseph L. and Theodotia (Laberee) Taylor, born on the Homestead, Birchton (Eaton Township), P. Q.:

252. i. EDWIN[8] AUGUSTUS, b. July 22, 1854; m. Margaret Nutbrown.

LONGEVITY STATISTICS OF SEVEN GENERATIONS

The first Seven Generations of the Anthony Taylor Family in America have now made their exit. (The 8th generation is nearly gone; at the moment, the 9th and 10th hold the center of the stage; the 11th and 12th have arrived and are just coming on.)

The first Seven Generations comprise 151 heads of families, male and female. Of these, 60 individuals, or nearly 40 per cent, lived to be 75 or more years of age, the average being over 80 years of age. Stated another way, one out of every three Taylors averaged over 82 years of age—a record of longevity high in any family. It is the more remarkable since those Taylors who enjoyed the Biblical allotment of three score and ten—quite a number of them—as well as those who reached or exceeded the required age but were not assigned serial numbers (usually because they had no surviving children), are not included in the tabulation.

Computed by generations, the record of Taylors (their wives or husbands not included) living to be 75 years or more of age, out of the total number of heads, is something like this:

Generation	Number living to be 75 yrs. or more	Total No. Heads	Approx. %
1st	1	1	100
2nd	1	6	17
5th	7	17	41
6th	15	38	39
7th	32	75	42
Totals:	60 out of	151, or	40%

Obviously, the span of life in the Taylor Family is increasing—which is in conformity with the conclusion reached by life insurance actuaries for the population as a whole. While the 8th generation is not included in the above, the returns not being complete, it is evident from the vital statistics already at hand that the average of Taylor longevity will be maintained, if not further increased.

Following is a chronological list of heads of families who lived to be 75 years or more of age, with their place of residence and age at death:

Millwright in Lynn, where he equipped many large factories and was recognized as one of the foremost in his trade; a man of tremendous energy and powerful physique, weighing about 250 pounds.

As a young man, he made several trips to California in the gold-seeking days; the first in 1851, when, accompanied by his older brother Carr L., he crossed the Isthmus of Panama on foot and then proceeded up the Coast in an old whaling vessel; it took ninety days to sail from Panama to Santiago, Lower California, where the vessel was abandoned as unseaworthy; he and brother separated upon reaching San Francisco. He made subsequent trips to the gold fields of California and Nevada,—one via Cape Horn, and another via the Nicaragua route; was successful in his mining operations (one nugget he found was worth $3200), but he confined himself mostly to mechanical work rather than actual mining. About 1866, he returned to Lynn for the last time and followed his trade there over fifty years, enjoying the respect and esteem of his fellow-citizens.

He married at Lynn, Mass., May 12, 1860, ARABELLA CLIFFORD, daughter of Philo and Catherine (Blake) Clifford, born at Lynn, June 6, 1835; died there, Feb. 15, 1898; and (2) June 15, 1899, Helen C. Bagley.

S. Congress, Mar. 8, 1862, when the Merrimac entered Hampton Roads and destroyed that vessel, being one of the few survivors; he later re-enlisted in Co. L, 4th Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, and was on night picket-duty near Washington when President Lincoln was assassinated.

After the War, Charles Benjamin Taylor returned to Lynn and was engaged as a millwright for many years. He was also skilled in fine cabinet work and took much pleasure in making small boxes, writing desks, cribbage boards and the like, which he ingeniously inlaid with wood of other colors; his versatility was further shown by examples of fine embroidery and rugs with elaborate-figured designs; in later years he kept a flower and vegetable garden which provided him great delight and diversion; he was an enthusiastic yachtsman and with his boat, owned jointly with his brother, George, captured numerous prizes in local races.

He married at Lynn, Mass., Aug. 23, 1865, MARY JANE RHODES, daughter of Benjamin and Abigail (Martin) Rhodes, born at Lynn, Mar. 16, 1843; died there, Mar. 23, 1926, ae. 83.

177. OLIN[8] PAINE TAYLOR (John[7], Joseph[6], Richard[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at No. Anson, Me., Nov. 8 1867; wellknown realtor in Providence and Cranston, R. I., where he conducted his own business over thirty-four years; developer of Meshanticut Park; previously, engaged about fifteen years in retail shoe business, Chelsea, Mass., New York City and Providence.

My father's early life in No. Anson included the usual chores and farm work of the country boy, attendance at district schools and Anson Academy, and such employment as a small town in central Maine had to offer. In 1886, he left home and was a shoe salesman for five years in a retail store, Chelsea, Mass.; in 1891, he went into business there for himself, with another young man, under name of Taylor & Freeman, Boots, Shoes, and Gents' Furnishings, located cor. Broadway and Everett Ave. (this store was burned in the Chelsea Fire of 1908); he successfully conducted this business about three years, when he sold out to his partner, married, returned to No. Anson and bought from his father the homestead on which he was born and raised; in 1894, he deeded the property back to his father, with the improvements made, and went to New York City, re-entering the shoe business, as manager, shoe dept., H. C. F. Koch & Co., Harlem Dept. Store; four years later, 1898, he came to Providence, R. I. to manage the O. P. Taylor Co., Boots and Shoes, 280 Westminster St. (next to Tilden & Thurber), which is still recalled as one of the leading shoe stores of the City at that period.

About 1901, he decided to retire from the shoe business, and, without associates, established himself in an entirely new field—real estate, mortgages and insurance, with offices, first in the Vaughn Bldg., Custom House St., and then, as one of its first tenants, in the Turks Head Bldg., where he has continued to the present. By conservative methods, he built up a reputation for integrity and sound judgment known throughout the State. He specialized in the investment end of the business; managed and administered estates; did much conveyancing, leasing and other quasi-legal work; placed mortgages for clients on real estate which withstood the deflated values of the Depression following 1929; often acted as appraiser, including court cases; superintended the erection of many houses built on constructional loans—all in addition to the routine buying, selling and renting of residence, farm and commercial property, and writing insurance. In the earlier years, he also bought and sold local investment securities, and had other varied dealings—such as his purchase at government sale during the World War, New London, Conn., as agent for the late William H. Draper, of a four-masted, sea-going sailing schooner, the Charlotte W. Miller; and more recently, his sale of a farm at Pleasant Pond, Me. to a buyer in Shanghai, China. While he operated on a comparatively small scale, the basic principles which he pursued from the beginning enabled him to weather the financial storm which swept many larger businesses in the same line into bankruptcy. Some of his clients in 1935 were the same ones he had when he first started in business.

After the defeat of the Progressive Party, 1912, he was induced to enter politics, and for more than twenty years was a Democratic leader. He was the first Democrat to serve on the Cranston School Committee; chosen its Chairman and continued as such the following year when the Republicans regained control; for years, was delegate to city and state conventions as well as chairman of his ward committee; often choice of the Party for office, but generally unsuccessful as Cranston was overwhelmingly Republican; was candidate for representative; state senator, 1924; and Mayor of Cranston, 1926; in the presidential election of 1928, was Democratic nominee for General Treasurer of Rhode Island, polled over 200,000 votes, but met defeat with the rest of the State Ticket by a narrow margin.

In June, 1899, he bought a house in Meshanticut Park, Cranston, ever since the family home, and was one of the first residents there. Next to John M. Dean, he led in the development of Meshanticut Park as a residential section, not only in the restricted sale of houses and building lots, but in the opening-up and conversion of farm land into improved property for homes. He acquired considerable land in the neighborhood and built thereon a number of houses, some of which he still owns. One of his early undertakings—then called Taylor's Folly— was the reclamation of a piece of scrub-acreage on a side hill, with a thickly-covered swamp at its foot, overlooking Meshanticut Lake; he cleared and drained the land, built three attractive houses with separate garages, and installed a water-supply system for their use from two springs on the property; he did much of the physical labor himself. (His latest building effort is the colonial-type house of brick, with historic doorway, in which the compiler now resides and in which most of these pages were written.)

He did not engage in any particular form of recreation, but I think it was not so much because he was disinterested, as because he always felt he had no time for it; he rarely took a vacation. He was a true lover of good horses and always had one in the stable added soon after coming to Meshanticut. Long after his children outgrew their ponies, he continued to keep a horse and only disposed of his outfit, with keenest regret, in 1932, when the new highway construction and motor car forced the driving horse from the road. He was undoubtedly one of the last men in the State to part with his equipage (the buggy went to Portugal). Under "Know Your Neighbor," the Cranston News, Oct. 22, 1924, in the last paragraph of an account, had this to say:,

> "Mr. Taylor is a gentleman with a vision for the future and a quaint liking for the old fashioned comforts of the past. He takes time to enjoy his horse and carriage, and while hundreds of automobiles speed up and down Cranston Street, the sleek well-fed horse and shining buggy of our Cranston neighbor is a sight that lovers of horses like to see."

He was a charter member, Providence Real Estate Men's Exchange; later, a director and member of the membership committee; organizer of the Cranston Business Men's Assn., now Chamber of Commerce, and first elected vice-president; chairman of Board of Directors many years, long active in its affairs as well as those of the community—such as movements to establish in Cranston a bank and post office (assisted in laying cornerstone of latter), the site for a new City Hall, etc.; also was a director of the Pine Tree State Club of Rhode Island; and master, Oaklawn Grange No. 42, Patrons of Husbandry.

Olin Paine Taylor married at Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., June 29, 1893, ALICE ISABEL MURDOCK, daughter of Frank E. and Harriet (Upham) Murdock, born at Charlestown (Boston), Mass., Oct. 29, 1871; living at Meshanticut Park, Cranston, R. I., 1935; long associated with movements for the public welfare; a devoted wife and mother; for details of her ancestry, see the Murdock and Upham Genealgoies and "Ancestors of Harold Murdock Taylor, Jr.," in manuscript, by the compiler and deposited with the N. E. H. Genealogical Society, Boston, Mass.

She received her early education in the public schools of Charlestown and, after study under several teachers, embarked as a young girl upon the career of reader and concert artist, in which press reports indicate she was eminently successful. In 1889, she obtained her first theatrical engagement and thereafter, until marriage, played juvenile-lead roles with several wellknown repertoire companies—Thomas Shea, Emerson, Smith and Grady, and Reuben Glue—traveling on the road in New England, Ohio and Indiana. After marriage, she became interested in church work and for more than thirty years was active in the Church of the Mediator (Universalist), Providence.

In 1901, she founded the Meshanticut Reading Club, of which she was often president. She was intensely interested in the Woman's Movement, the Consumers League, World Peace and Prohibition. She was an early member of the Rhode Island League of Women Voters; formed the local section; its chairman, 1920-4; chairman, Cranston Unit, 1925 to date; director, State Organization, 1930-3; delegate to National Conventions; also, was a wide reader, unusually well-informed in current events and literature; taught piano many years; coached and took part in amateur theatricals; in demand as a reader; active in the Grange; and an enthusiastic flower-gardener.

Children of Olin Paine and Alice (Murdock) Taylor:

180. SULLIVAN[8] A. TAYLOR (Alfred[7], John[6] John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Strafford, Jan. 19, 1839; died at Gilmanton Iron Works, Feb. 23, 1902; bur. Malvern Cem., Lennoxville, P. Q. (VR). Physician in Epsom, Concord and Gilmanton over thirty years. From papers among effects of his sister, Mrs. Thomas A. Howard of Bradford, Mass., we quote: "His home was in Canada from age of 16 to 31, four years at Stanstead, P. Q., where he attended the Seminary . . . (in Bradford) Dr. George Cogswell and Gen. William Cogswell were friends of his early boyhood." He taught school a few years, but Dec. 30, 1864, enlisted in the Civil War, being mustered out at Readville, Mass., June 30, 1865; his discharge papers describe him as 5 ft. 3½ in. tall, blue eyes, light complexion. After service, he went to Canada again and entered Bishop's College, Lennoxville, from which he graduated with honors, A.B., 1868; then from medical school, McGill University, Montreal, 1870, first in rank in Class; was licensed by the College of Physicians and Surgeons, May 10, 1870; returned to his native New Hampshire and practised his profession there the rest of life.

He married Harriet Thorne, born 1846; died Apr. 9, 1871 (FR); and (2) at Northwood, Nov. 10, 1871, Kate Louise Meade (VR), daughter of Levi H. and Katherine (Berry) Meade, born at Northwood, July 10, 1837; died at Lennoxville, P. Q., Dec. 27, 1913 (FR); after her husband's death, she lived with the George W. Taylor (182) family.

There were no children by either marriage.

181. HELEN[8] AUGUSTA TAYLOR (Alfred[7], John[6], John[5], John[4], Richard[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Bradford, Mass., Feb. 11, 1848; died at Lennoxville, P. Business man in Boston and Somerville, Mass., residing in latter place over fifty-five years. He attended school in Effingham Falls, and then at Biddeford, Me., to which he journeyed alone by stage when 14 years of age. In 1867, he went to Boston and found employment with Butler & Towle, teamsters, in Milk St.; about 1870, he and his brother-in-law, Benjamin F. Bennett, entered into partnership in the teaming business under the name of Bennett & Taylor, with which he was connected over sixty years and which is now carried on by his son, Louis[9] A. Taylor; in 1930, this business, long-since converted into a trucking firm, was located at 172-3, State St.; when over eighty years of age, Mr. Taylor made daily visits to the office.

During this period, for about twenty-five years, 1890-1915, he also conducted a carriage business in Somerville, Mass., under name of Taylor & Rawson; this establishment was on Broadway, abutting the old Nunnery Grounds, since levelled, on site of present East Somerville Public Library.

He was also active, about the same number of years, as salesman for several wellknown produce concerns of Boston, covering eastern Massachusetts and northern Rhode Island. He was fond of horses and always had one or two when the horse was king. Although sickly as a child, Mr. Taylor at eighty was the picture of health, standing erect, nearly six feet tall, and weighing over 200; he looked fifteen years younger; on several occasions, he called upon me at Medford Hillside, Mass. and we had great pleasure discussing "old times," embellished with anecdotes from his long experience. He was charter member, Somerville Knights of Pythias.

He married at Charlestown (Boston), Oct. 28, 1871, LETITIA E. JOHNSON, daughter of Hugh and Mary (Henderson) Johnson, born at Granby, P. Q., Sept. 8, 1849; died at Somerville, Mass., July 3, 1900; the mother of his children. 230. FRANK[8] LEAVITT TAYLOR (Moses[7] L., Amos[6], Anthony[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Danbury, May 19, 1844; died at Boston (Dorchester), Mass., Jan. 18, 1929, in 85th year; bur. Family Lot, Eastern Cem., Danbury. Farmer, succeeding to the Homestead; active in politics and fraternal orders; removed to Franklin, Jan., 1892, and to Boston (Dorchester), Mass., Mar., 1905, where he resided residue of life.

Frank Leavitt Taylor (christened Franklin, but always called Frank) was not robust as his father and grandfather had been, yet he lived to be over 84 years of age. He was about 5 ft. 7 in. tall, of slender build, weighing 150 lbs. in early life—never more than 175 lbs. A professional career was planned for him and he was sent to private school in Andover, but this was abandoned largely because of his health. About 1877, he entered into an agreement with his father to take over the Homestead farm, which he managed successfully nearly fifteen years. This then consisted of more than 300 acres, 100 head of cattle, a large flock of sheep and other livestock. To carry on the work as many as twenty-five hired help were often necessary. During the winter of 1877-8, he met with a serious accident: he was in the woods with a yoke of oxen hauling out logs when the chain slipped off a log and whipped around his leg; the young steers were frightened and ran away, dragging him over the rough ground a long distance; he was never the same again physically and was obliged to have most of the farm labor done by others. Whereupon, he gave the farm his supervision and was active with an agency for mowing machines, horse-rakes, fertilizers and similar farm staples.

In 1882, the old Homestead, called the Mansion House, burned with most of its contents, including valuable articles of family history. However, he at once built a new house on the other side of the property, west of the original Homestead and nearer the village. Most of the lumber used in its construction was from the farm itself. He lived here until 1891, when his house burned a second time. Two years later, he removed to Franklin, chiefly in order that his children might attend high school, and was employed there as an accountant and collector for many years. He built his own home, the lumber again being cut on the Homestead in Danbury, and then hauled to Franklin.

During the Danbury residence, he took over most of the legal work of his father—settling estates, drawing wills, deeds, contracts and giving similar advice. He was chairman of the Town Republican Club, and candidate for the State Legislature, but never elected as Danbury had now become strongly Democratic. He was first master of Blazing Star Grange, P. of H.; also, district deputy and went about the State organizing new Granges. Later, in Franklin, he was prominent in the Odd Fellows, going through all the Chairs in that organization. He also was much interested in family history; for many years, was president of the Reed Family Assn. (Descendants of Samuel Reed of Grafton), being first so chosen at a meeting in Brockton, Mass., 1914. In March, 1905, to be near the children, he and wife moved to Dorchester, Mass., where they passed their last years.

He married at Danbury, Nov. 28, 1869, NELLIE JANE MARTIN, daughter of Newell Smith and Elvira (Moore) Martin of Chester, born June 10, 1844; died at Dorchester, Mass., Jan. 23, 1929, five days after her husband; bur. Eastern Cem., Danbury.

Colonel in command of the Regiment; in a Cavalry Inspection, just before his retirement, of seven military organizations from various parts of the Province, encamped on Compton Plain, his Regiment was rated by the Military Gazette as the most efficient; Col. Taylor was presented with a marble clock and a silver epergne by his fellow-officers and men "in recognition of his many years of able service."

He married at Cookshire, Mar. 29, 1871, MARY HARRIET COOK, daughter of Col. John H. and Mary Pond (Osgood) Cook, born at Cookshire, P. Q., Mar. 18, 1850; living there with son, 1935. Her grandfather, Capt. John Cook, died 1819; was one of the original grantees and first settlers of Eaton within the present limits of Cookshire, which was named for him and so called as early as 1795. (Hist. of Compton Co., 104, states that Cookshire derived its name from Capt. John Cook and was so called at the suggestion of Col. John H. Taylor, but the last part of the statement is obviously an error.)

Child of Col. John H. and Mary (Cook) Taylor:

248. WARREN[8] FRENCH TAYLOR (Harum[7] F., Samuel[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Danbury, June 29, 1854; wellknown merchant in Lawrence, Mass., many years. He went there as a youth, 1873, and for thirty-two years was employed in the wood-working plant of Briggs & Allyn Mfg. Co. In 1908, he started his own business as W. F. Taylor, Wholesale and Retail Dealer in Window Glass and Building Materials, 638-640 Essex St.; later, due to increasing success, he took into partnership his two younger sons; by initiative and hard work, he made the concern one of the leading enterprises of its kind in Lawrence. As late as 1930, he refused to retire, often working in the store twelve hours a day; but, in 1934, finally did so upon reaching the age of 80; even then he continued, during summer months, to assist his son Ralph who had succeeded to the active management of the business.

Since 1921, Mr. Taylor spent the winters in St. Petersburg, Fla. In 1935, he was one of two surviving members of a Three-Quarter Century Club there originally composed of 24 members upwards of 75 yrs. of age, but now comprising 240 members from 75 to 104 years of age; 27 of the more athletically inclined members organized two Diamond ball teams called the Kubs and the Kids, which played 5-inning games with each other, twice a week from November to April; some of their contests were attended by 3,000 to 4,000 people; this is undoubtedly the only organization of its kind in the country, if not the world; Mr. Taylor was regular catcher for the Kubs. In addition to Diamond ball and walking four miles to town nearly every day, he conducted as his special hobby a vegetable garden.

He married at Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 4, 1879, MARY E. ALLYN, daughter of Alfred W. and Caroline (Chandler) Allyn, born at Lawrence, Sept. 3, 1850; died there, Nov. 20, 1924; bur. Bellevue Cem.; her father, Alfred W. Allyn, was a prominent manufacturer in Lawrence (Briggs & Allyn Mfg. Co.). Mr. Taylor married (2) Dec. 24, 1926, Sarah Angeline Siffert, daughter of Rev. John and Amanda (Huse) Siffert, born at Canton, O., Nov. 9, 1861; died at St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 30, 1934.

253. ORION[8] STEWART TAYLOR (Joseph[7] L., Ezra[6], Jonathan[5], James[4], Jonathan[3], John[2], Anthony[1]), born at Birchton (Eaton Township), P. Q., Jan. 30, 1857; died at Montreal, Jan. 27, 1916; bur. there, Mount Royal Cem. Concert singer and vocal teacher in Pasadena, Cal., and Montreal.

Unlike his brothers, all of whom became successful farmers, he early showed a positive dislike for farm-work. Fortunately, his parents were sympathetic and, when he was 16, sent him to his uncle Arthur Taylor in Boston where he studied vocal music at the Boston Conservatory. About 1885, he went to Paris to complete his musical education. Returning, he located in Pasadena, Cal., doing much concert work and teaching there for more than ten years. A press notice from a Pasadena newspaper, dated Oct. 16, 1890, is at hand: it describes one of a series of musicales given that season by Mr. and Mrs. Taylor at their residence, Cleff Hall, Grand Ave. and Lockhaven St., "attended by over 100 distinguished and fashionable guests." Chinese lanterns illuminating the grounds .. .. .. potted palms .. .. .. garlands of roses .. .. .. brilliant costumes .. .. .. a symphony orchestra from Los Angeles—these were the background for a "fine vocal program of classical music .. .. .. Mr. Taylor was in splendid voice and had several enthusiastic recalls, confirming anew his reputation as a singer of exceptional power and culture." About 1900, he moved to Montreal where he continued his teaching and concert work until death.

He married at Paris, France, July, 1886, KATHERINE ALEXANDER VEDDER, daughter of Stephen Y. and Margaret (Van Vrauken) Vedder, born at Schenectady, N. Y.; died at Montreal, Dec. 20, 1917; bur. Mt. Royal Cem.

Amos[9] Leavitt Taylor (313)
Boston and Belmont, Mass.

Among his corporate connections, in addition to trusteeships: vice-president and director, Carbone, Inc.; director and clerk, Pilgrim Photo Engraving Co., J. B. Prescott Co., What Cheer Laundry Co., Clifford Steacie Co., T. W. Pierce Hardware Co., Inc.; director, Decatur & Hopkins Co., Temple & Crane, Inc., Frances Merry Barnard Home, Inc., Waverley Co-operative Bank; clerk, Atlantic Lard Co., Fisher Webster Co., John Reardon & Sons, Bohn Kent Co., Ashby Stock Farms, Ramby Specialty Co., Martell Bros., Inc.; mem. of corporation and counsel, Belmont Savings Bank; 1920-30, director, mem. of executive committee and counsel, Waverley Trust Co.; 1927-33, mem. of executive committee, director and president, Belmont Trust Co.

Since 1913, mem. Belmont Republican Town Committee; 1921-26, 1933-4, chairman; 1924 to date, mem. Massachusetts Republican State Committee; 1927-8, secretary; 1929-32, chairman (1929, unanimously elected; 1931, practically unanimously, 78 to 1, reelected); 1924, alternate delegate, Republican National Convention; 1932, delegate Republican National Convention. His chairmanship of the State Committee was during the trying days of the Depression, culminating, 1932, politically speaking, in the near rout of the Republican Party from coast to coast; in that Democratic sweep, it is a matter of record that the Republicans in Massachusetts, under his leadership, not only retained the offices filled at the preceding election, but actually made gains— a record probably unique.

Among his professional, fraternal, religious and social associations: mem. American Bar, Massachusetts Bar, Boston Bar, and Middlesex Bar Assns.; Bostonian Society; Academy of Political Science; Phi Gamma Delta; Gamma Eta Gamma; 32° Mason, Aleppo Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; Belmont Lodge, A. F. & A. M.; Master, 1920; Beaver Lodge, A. F. & A. M.; organizer and Master, 1922-23; Dist. Boston Chamber of Commerce. Recreational interests: political affairs, tennis, photography, family and local history. He was probably the first to envisage a complete Anthony Taylor Genealogy and actually commence its compilation; for some years after college, in conjunction with his law studies and early legal practice, he collected records in his own branch—the Danbury Taylors—and intended further endeavor, but pressure of business compelled its abandonment; nevertheless, his interest always continued, and in 1929, he generously placed at the disposal of this work his previous efforts—invaluable, since local records were mostly minus—and has since cooperated to the fullest possible extent.

Amos Leavitt Taylor married at Cambridge, Mass., June 16, 1906, MYRA[10] LILLIAN FAIRBANK, daughter of Nathan[9] P. (Jonathan[8] Parker, Drury[7], Jonathan[6], Daniel[5], Jonathan[4], Jonathan[3], George[2], Jonathan[1] of Dedham, Mass.) and Jennie (Jewett) Fairbank, born at Sudbury, Mass., Mar. 7, 1881; see Fairbank Genealogy.
